

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

First General Meeting.

OPENING CEREMONY.

Held in the Assembly Hall of the New National Museum, Washington,
September 28, 1908.

The opening meeting of the Sixth International Congress on Tuberculosis was held in the Assembly Hall of the New National Museum, on Monday morning, September 28th.

The Secretary of the Treasury, followed by the ministers and ambassadors, the foreign delegates, and the officers of the Congress, went to the platform at 11 o'clock. The hall was filled to overflowing.

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY, MR. GEORGE BRUCE CORTELYOU, in opening the meeting, announced the names of the Honorary Presidents of the Congress: Dr. Robert Koch, Dr. Louis Landouzy, Dr. C. Theodore Williams, and Dr. Edward L. Trudeau.

The SECRETARY then proceeded to address the Congress as follows:

Your Excellencies; Delegates and Members of the International Congress on Tuberculosis; Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is a great honor to be called on to preside over this distinguished gathering, and particularly to do so as the representative of the President of the United States, whose welcome and whose good wishes I am commissioned to convey to you this morning. In the name of the American people, for whom he speaks, he congratulates you upon what you have already accomplished and upon the promise of much greater accomplishment in the beneficent work in which you are engaged.

Especially am I commissioned by the President to assure the delegates from foreign lands, who have come here to our American capital, many of them from great distances, to confer with our delegates, that our people gratefully appreciate not only the interest but the spirit of cordial good-will which their governments have shown, and which their presence here testifies.

The great nations here represented have responded most cordially to an invitation most cordially extended. As your hosts, we have looked forward to this gathering with the hope and the purpose of making it worthy to take its place with the meetings that have preceded it, and if you do not find on every hand the evidences of our deep interest, it is because we have fallen short in our efforts to make this occasion an expression of our sincere good-will and our friendly hospitality.

We are living in a day of great moral and material movements. It is a time of uplift, of widening vision, of deepening research, of broadening coöperation. The days when the people of a State or a nation sat idly by and left to desultory investigation the study of evils which gravely menaced the welfare of large numbers of people are passing away, and in their place we find concerted action, either under governmental inspiration or with governmental encouragement, which in many instances is enlarged into such potent international organizations as this Congress.

It is not my province to make detailed reference to the historical aspects of this movement, nor to the character or extent of the work you are carrying on. All that will be presented to you by those best equipped to do so; but I have thought it would not be out of place on this occasion to give a brief outline of what has been done in this country in the direction of combating tuberculosis.

The first organized movement in the United States was begun by the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis in 1892, under the leadership of Dr. Lawrence F. Flick and others. Since 1892 numerous other societies, leagues, and commissions have been formed, until to-day there are nearly two hundred organizations in the United States.

The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, under the auspices of which the present Congress is convened, held its first meeting in Washington, May 18, 1905. The operations of this society and of other similar societies are independent of Government control.

The National Government has prescribed rules to prevent the spread of the disease among its employees, and has also established governmental sanatoriums. In accordance with executive order of April 1, 1899, the United States Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service established the marine-hospital sanatorium at Fort Stanton, New Mexico. This institution is situated on a Government reservation, the area of which is 45 square miles, and is a natural part of New Mexico, with an altitude of 6231 feet, and contains an average of 200 patients, who are seamen of the merchant

The Government maintains a sanatorium at Fort Bayard, New Mexico, and another at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, and a third at Fort Collins, Colorado.

The Government is in various ways contributing to our knowledge of tuberculosis, and is furnishing us with most valuable data.

The Government is also establishing a hospital in the District of Columbia.

of Columbia for the treatment of indigent persons suffering from tuberculosis. The Fifty-ninth Congress, during its first session, made provision for an investigation as to the prevalence of tuberculosis among the Indians and the desirability of establishing sanatoriums for the treatment of Indians afflicted with tuberculosis.

The legislatures of a number of the States have, within the past five years, provided for the creation of State commissions for the purpose of making investigations as to the extent of tuberculosis within the State, and the best means of prevention and treatment, especially with reference to the establishment of sanatoriums. These provisions have in a number of instances resulted in the establishment of State sanatoriums for the treatment of tuberculosis. In several notable instances men of large means and wide influence have lent their support to the movement. On the whole, it may be stated that the people of the United States are keenly interested, and a vast amount of work has already been accomplished, which, in extent and character, compares favorably with that of other countries.

Referring now to the movement at large, the International Congress on Tuberculosis held in Berlin in May, 1899, was the first one held with general international sanction, and was therefore of especial value because of its stimulating influence and the fact that it publicly represented the indorsement of governments of the work. This Berlin Congress and the Peace Conference at The Hague were the most notable events of that year. The former must be considered the most important of the two, inasmuch as its efforts were directed against an ever-present enemy of mankind, while war is only an unfortunate incident in the history of nations.

The menace of tuberculosis from a hygienic and economic standpoint is demonstrable in many ways. It is remarkable that yellow fever, notwithstanding the many panics it has produced, has not caused in the United States in the past one hundred and fifteen years as many deaths as occurred last year from tuberculosis. By figures given for the United States it is estimated that since the year 1793 there have been approximately 100,000 deaths from yellow fever, whereas tuberculosis is estimated to have caused 160,000 deaths last year alone. The mortality of tuberculosis is further emphasized when compared with the bubonic plague in India, which has not, since its first outbreak in 1896, caused as many deaths in that country in proportion to the population as were caused by tuberculosis in the United States during the same period.

Statistics show that tuberculosis in the last four years caused more than three times as many deaths in this country as occurred in action and from wounds received in action during the entire period of the civil war.

The above facts are of great significance, and have contributed to a better understanding of the need of preventive measures. These congresses have at the same time contributed to a saner attitude with respect to the victims of the disease, its contagiousness, and the method of dealing with it.

We can hardly overestimate the importance of such international medical congresses. This Congress in its several sessions has stimulated the crusade against tuberculosis in England, Germany, France, and Italy, in each of which countries it has been held, and from these countries its influence has been extended in greater or less degree to many others. In our own country the necessary preparations for this gathering have already had a most wholesome effect in awakening interest and enlisting support in every State of the Union. The creation of State committees for representation here has encouraged the organizations in each State, and the work already accomplished by the more active will prove an incentive and encouragement to those who, because of this meeting, for the first time are impressed with the necessity for affirmative and effective action.

But, as in all such international meetings, there is another aspect which is also important, and that is the good that results from bringing together from all parts of the world, for the interchange of views, the leaders in such a crusade. You meet upon common ground. You touch elbows in a common cause. If there are any small differences of opinion, they disappear in the broad discussion of themes that enlist a common sympathy and support.

In his letter to Dr. M'kik, accepting the presidency of this Congress, President Roosevelt emphasized this aspect of the conference in these words:

"The International Congress on Tuberculosis is in the interest of universal peace. By joining in such a warfare against a common foe the peoples of the world are brought closer together and made to better realize the brotherhood of man; for a united interest against a common foe fosters universal friendship. Our country, which is honored this year as the host of other nations in this great gathering of leaders and experts, and as the custodian of the magnificent exhibit which will be set up by the entire world, should manifest its appreciation by giving the Congress a setting worthy of the cause, of our guests, and of ourselves. We should endeavor to make it the greatest and the most fruitful Congress which has yet been held, and I assure you of my interest and services to that end."

A similar idea is thus expressed by a writer in one of our leading reviews which will be "A peace congress in so far as many different nations, with their separate boundaries, will join in the making of common sense because the greatest modern war, against the most numerous enemy of the people, is to be continued with the same violence. Were a war in the United States to take off we would be horrified beyond measure, and ask such things could exist. Yet this is the estimate of the tuberculosis."

The exhibit which has been assembled in this Congress is of the largest educational value, for here you give the most effective object-lessons, both as to the treatment and as to the prevention of the disease. Dr. Flick, in an able paper on "The Essentials in the Crusade Against Tuberculosis," makes this striking statement.

"The modern crusade against tuberculosis is the logical outgrowth of modern knowledge. Unlike crusades against disease in the past, it is based upon exact knowledge, and not upon empiricism."

May this exact knowledge, fortified by the continued researches of the student and supported by citizen and official alike, be drawn upon to the greatest possible advantage! May the results of this Congress mark a notable advance in the crusade against this dread menace to national and international welfare!

The Secretary of the Treasury then called upon Mr. HENRY B. F. MACFARLAND, President of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

MR. MACFARLAND said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The National Capital appreciates the honor and the significance of your coming. Many international conferences are held here, but none of this kind can exceed in importance that which begins to-day in this place. For yourselves and in your representative capacity, and for your cause, you are heartily welcome, and your deliberations will be followed with the keenest interest. In such a gathering as this the nations planning for the victories of peace make ties which they will find it hard to break to war on one another. The solidarity of the human family is strengthened by such a common effort for the general welfare. The executive government of the National Capital, which has been taking a modest part in this warfare on the dread enemy, has just completed the newest municipal tuberculosis hospital, has secured legislation for the registration of tuberculosis cases and the free examination of sputum, is endeavoring to improve the safeguards of the milk-supply, is eliminating the alley slums, and is cooperating with public-spirited citizens in the instruction of the people and home treatment of the sick. We expect to learn much from your instruction and to put in practice all that we learn. Your presence and your counsel will far outweigh the hospitality we offer, but not our desire to make you feel at home.

DR. FERMIN RODRIGUEZ, JR., speaking on behalf of Argentina, said:

Mr. Secretary of the Treasury, Honorable Delegates, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The high honor that the government of the Argentine Republic has conferred upon me, intrusting me with its representation before this learned assembly, realizes fully a double ambition of my life. It affords me the opportunity of seeing at close range and of appreciating duly the wonderful activities of the great American nation, the cradle of liberty, the point that radiates all initiatives that give origin to great undertakings and noble enterprises.

The representation with which I am invested enables me to see here, assembled in a harmonious union of ideals, the leaders of the scientific progress of the world, whose minds, illumined with the clear and pure light of intellect, and ennobled through long hours of meditation and study, are beacons of hope upon which are fixed the weeping eyes of suffering humanity.

Because, of all evils that afflict mankind, none is more intense, profound, or universal than tuberculosis, for which reason the honorable government that I represent hastened to take part in this gathering, it being convinced, besides, that tuberculosis is, rather than a disease, a most serious social problem, the solution of which pertains to the civilized nations, whose vitality is threatened by the scourge, and whose future is seriously jeopardized thereby—that future which is so dear to countries that strive to attain an honored place in the family of nations, as the Argentine, whose doors are wide open to progress, to all great initiatives, to all healthful breezes that give life to the moral atmosphere of our century, so that in her soil and with the full enjoyment of physical health—an indispensable condition for the realization of all human activities—all toilers of the land may fulfil their beneficial mission under the protection of the laws that insure for us, for our children, and for all those that may establish themselves therein, the blessings of freedom.

In accordance with that policy, and impelled by an earnest desire for peace, labor, and welfare, of which the United States has given us an excellent example, the Argentine participates, through my medium, in this Congress, great by the number of its adherents, by its scientific and social significance, and because it includes in its body illustrious men to such an extent that, to us who come from distant lands, it seems as if we were witnessing the apotheosis of the learned who—as Koch, the discoverer of the bacillus, and the representatives of the medical school of France, worthy continuers of the work of Villemin and Laënnec—determined definitely, with their labors, the direction of the struggle against the dreadful scourge.

I have mentioned France, and at this point I wish to pay ample tribute to the memory of one of her most eminent sons—Grancher, the illustrious professor whom death claimed recently—Grancher, who, by his explanation of the physical signs that lead to the early diagnosis of tuberculosis, placed in our hands one of the most efficient elements to save the lives of millions of beings and to convince us that it is an incontestable fact that “tuberculosis is the most curable of chronic diseases.”

Gentlemen of the Organization Committee: You have fulfilled the promise that you made when, in October, 1905, at the closing session of the Congress of Paris, you requested, through Dr. Flick, that the next meeting be held in Washington.

früher ungeahnten Weise gesteigert und einen raschen und regen Austausch der Fortschritte da und dort ermöglicht, so mag das 50jährige Jubiläum dieses grossartigen Menschenwerkes als ein besonders günstiges Omen für die Tagung unseres Kongresses betrachtet werden. Das Kabel, bisher den verschiedensten Beziehungen der Menschen dienlich, wird diesmal Erkenntnisse über die Erde zu verbreiten helfen, welche die Arbeiten dieses Kongresses im Kampfe gegen die Tuberkulose liefert und damit ein gewichtiges Hilfsmittel unseres Armentariums sein. Was wir heute erfahren oder beschliessen, erweckt schon am morgigen Tage die regste Teilnahme und das wärmste Interesse nicht nur der Fachleute, sondern auch schon der breiten Schichten der Bevölkerung in den entferntesten Ländern. Wenn, wie so häufig, Technik und Medizin einander ergänzend zum allgemeinen Volkswohle und zum Fortschritte der Menschheit zusammenarbeiten, so dürfte—wie ich glaube—das Kabel, indem es diesmal den Bestrebungen unserer Tagung und unseren Zielen dient, an dieser Stelle als ein Beispiel in dem ange deuteten Sinne genannt werden.

Die wissenschaftlichen Anschauungen und die daraus resultierenden prophylaktischen Massnahmen entfalten eine umso segensreichere Wirkung wenn sie durch das gesprochene Wort verbreitet und popularisiert werden und wenn in den Mitteilungen der Fachleute auch lokale Momente, die Verhältnisse und Bedürfnisse des Bodens zum Ausdrucke kommen, dem sie ihre Entstehung oder besondere Färbung verdanken. Dadurch bieten aber auch die internationalen Versammlungen die Gewähr dafür, dass wir hinsichtlich der prophylaktischen Massnahmen, die für jedes Land ausgearbeitet werden, nicht einseitig vorgehen, sondern die Erfahrungen anderer Länder und Städte verwerten können und uns an deren Fortschritten bilden, wo diese auch immer gemacht wurden. In dieser Richtung haben wir auch bei Ihnen in Amerika, und so vor allem an den mustergiltigen Institutionen Ihrer grossen Städte reichlich Gelegenheit gehabt, Neues zu lernen und demgemäss für das Empfangene dankbar zu sein. Was wir, meine hochverehrten Herren, bei Ihnen in der neuen Welt auf dem Gebiete der Tuberkulosebekämpfung gesehen haben, wird nicht ohne fruchtbringenden Einfluss auf die gleichgerichteten Bestrebungen auch bei uns an der Donau sein.

In the name of the Austrian Delegation, of the City of Vienna, from which I have a special authorization, and of our two most prominent private associations, full of sympathy for your interesting country, and our amiable coöperators in the United States of America, I may be allowed to repeat my wish that this Congress, in its endeavor to struggle against tuberculosis, may have the most pronounced success, and may keep our campaign in renewed and full activity

PROF. JOSEF DENYS spoke extemporaneously, in French, in behalf of Belgium.

MR. SYLVINO GURGEL DO AMARAL, speaking on behalf of Brazil, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I feel greatly honored in having this opportunity to express, as the representative of my country and of the ambassador of Brazil, who is unavoidably prevented from being present, a few words before this memorable gathering of the foremost and most highly respected scientists of the world. Allow me to say that for the first time in my life I regret in some way to be a diplomat. I wish I could have now, instead of some diplomatic knowledge, a good medical learning and experience, being thus enabled to appreciate thoroughly the merits of your high achievements. But although placed in such an unfavorable position, I rise to the situation when I see, as everybody does, that, from this present great meeting, incalculable benefits will flow to science, to the welfare of mankind, and to this high ideal of modern civilization that may be embodied in the following principle: the brotherhood of healthy men in the brotherhood of enlightened nations.

Brazil is now trying to destroy, or, at least, to curtail, tuberculosis at home, with the utmost determination of her scientists, according also to the best standard of means and methods, and with the same spirit of perseverance that has already succeeded in relegating to the history of past events the yellow fever of Rio de Janeiro, of Santos, of Sao Paulo, and of other Brazilian great centers of wealth and population, changed nowadays into healthy resorts for the display of men's activity and enjoyment of life. All I can say is that we are faithful to the record in the antituberculosis cause that has been so highly acknowledged by the International Congress on Hygiene of Berlin.

Interpreting the sentiments of the government of Brazil and of my countrymen, I hereby transmit their best wishes for the unqualified success of this International Congress, together with their hearty thankfulness to the United States Government and to the American people, for the unsurpassably courteous sheltering they are affording us in this universal cause of health against disease, of the human mind against nature's deficiencies.

DR. ARTHUR NEWSHOLME, speaking on behalf of the British Government, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In presenting the cordial greetings of the British Government to this great Congress I speak not only for England, but also for my colleagues,

Mr. MacDougall, C.B., of the Scotch, and Dr. Stafford, C.B., of the Irish Local Government Board. I am confident also that I speak for the many British delegates and representatives here present who, equally with the British Government, are heartily in sympathy with the great crusade against tuberculosis, and are wishful to help to the utmost in bringing it to a successful issue.

This Congress even more than its predecessors will aid us in this noble object. Each of the many countries here represented brings contributions which represent work achieved from a special standpoint; and by the focusing of these rays of light at our meeting here our future work will be illuminated to an extent which could not otherwise be secured.

Even in the case of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland we have an illustration of how the same problem may be approached from different standpoints. In all parts of the United Kingdom, but more particularly in England and in Scotland, immense advances have been made in the control of tuberculosis by indirect measures of social and sanitary improvement, which, although they have not been undertaken primarily with that object, have borne a large part in the success secured. Among these are to be included improved social conditions, implying better and more food for the masses of the people, better clothing, improved housing, and less overcrowding. These have been powerfully aided by one of the most striking social changes of recent times. During the last forty years institutional treatment has to a very great extent replaced domestic treatment of disease, not only in general and special hospitals, but still more in the workhouse infirmaries of England and Scotland. In Ireland, on the other hand, institutional treatment of sickness has declined; and we have associated with these important facts the differing course of the death-rate from tuberculosis in Great Britain and in Ireland. In the former, during forty years, institutional treatment of disease has been doubled and the death-rate from tuberculosis has been halved; while in Ireland reduction of institutional treatment has been associated with an increased death-rate from tuberculosis.

In direct measures against tuberculosis Scotland has led the way, and notification of cases—an indispensable preliminary to efficient action—has already been made compulsory for about 15 per cent. of its total population; while the dispensary system inaugurated many years ago by Dr. Philip in Edinburgh has in that city been a most valuable aid to preventive measures.

The Government of Ireland is at the present time promoting a bill to secure general compulsory notification of cases of pulmonary tuberculosis in that country; and we wish it God speed! In England such notification is enforced under local acts in three towns—Sheffield, Bolton, and Burnley; while a large number of districts have voluntary notification of cases.

I have the honor to announce on behalf of the Right Hon. John Burns, the President of the Local Government Board,—our Ministry of Public Health,—that an order will shortly be issued by him rendering obligatory the notification of all cases coming under the care of the poor-law medical officers, both when first seen and when admitted to an infirmary; and rendering obligatory the notification of all changes of address of such patients by the lay poor-law officials.

We British delegates expect to learn much from our visit to our kinsmen in this great country and to this Congress; both in respect to active administration and of freedom from the shackling influence of a too great regard for past precedent. We look to our meeting here to stimulate us to further and more successful efforts for what should be our highest ambition, the betterment of mankind.

Dr. FREDERICK MONTIZAMBERT, speaking on behalf of Canada, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have the honor to have been delegated by the Government of the Dominion of Canada to be the bearer of their cordial greetings to the officers and members of this Congress, and of the expression of their earnest and sincere hope for its complete, its entire, success.

Dr. MONTIZAMBERT spoke extemporaneously, and in French, as the official representative of this

Dr. SUNG M. M. JEW, speaking in behalf of China, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

As a representative for China, let me first express thanks for the honor granted to my country, to participate in this most important Congress. Regarding the high value of the Congress and wishing to contribute to the eradication of tuberculosis, my country sends its warmest greetings to this Congress.

Our system of medicine is an ancient one, dating back several thousand years. This system has been practised with great success for centuries. In the field of modern medicine, according to the standard of the West, our system is inadequate.

By combining the latest scientific knowledge, the most successful methods of diagnosis, prophylaxis, and treatment. These we shall carry back to our country, and I hope we shall improve our system of medicine. And I hope we shall contribute to the benefit of our country by contributing the best of our Chinese Tuberculosis has a strong hold upon the vast population of China, especially upon the inhabitants of the overcrowded cities. Ignorance of proper sanitation and cleanliness makes these centers the hotbeds of the germs. The common people are not educated to take precautions against infection, the sick are not careful against spreading the disease, and the government makes little or no provision for the prevention and cure of incipient cases. The foreign medical missionaries from America and Europe have, however, begun the fight in China against the tubercle bacilli, but I believe the main work must be accomplished by native medical men, men who have been trained along modern lines. The control of this scourge in the vast Chinese Empire, and especially in her large congested cities, is a crusade which must be prosecuted with all the vigor, science, and knowledge of the western medical world. Consequently, China needs the best, the very best, that western nations have to offer to perform this herculean task of controlling the "great white plague" in the far East. We have come here to learn. Your fine exhibits and careful demonstrations are exceedingly interesting and instructive, many of which, no doubt, will be utilized by China in the future.

In behalf of my country, I wish to express our profound appreciation of the task which you are undertaking for the benefit of humanity. I hope the day is not distant when China will be honored by the International Tuberculosis Congress at her capital, Peking. I thank you.

DR. JUAN J. ULLOA, speaking in behalf of Costa Rica, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is my pleasure to extend the most cordial greetings to the President and to the people of the United States of America, in the name of the President and of the people of the Republic of Costa Rica, whom I have the honor to represent at this most important meeting of learned benefactors of humanity in their endeavors to diminish the ravages of the greatest scourge of the civilized world.

As the present meeting is held in this great republic, whose well-applied forces, transmuted into marvelous progress, are the admiration of modern times, let us hope that the stimulus of North American energy will exert its powerful influence in the solution of the problems which the International Congress on Tuberculosis has to consider; so that after a thorough discussion of the teachings of the best authorities, and after the careful consideration of the lessons of experience, the most practical decisions will be arrived at.

Costa Rica, a small country where peace reigns, constantly working for its advancement, comes only to learn and to profit from your experience and from the light given out by the brilliant stars of the heaven of knowledge. She cherishes the most fervent hopes for the success of the Sixth International Congress on Tuberculosis.

Just as the eighteenth was the century of steam, and the nineteenth that of electricity, the twentieth must be the century of the victory of advanced sanitation, in its holy war on disease, for the good of mankind, and for the glory of science.

DR. JOAQUIN L. JACOBSEN, speaking on behalf of Cuba, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The Republic of Cuba, in its desire to respond to the generous invitation of the American government, has sent five representatives to this Congress, and in the name of my country and my colleagues I have the honor to greet the government of the United States, the delegates to this Congress, and all the members congregated here.

This gathering is of marked interest to Cuba. In our country, as in all others, tuberculosis occupies an important place in the mortality statistics, in spite of the labors of the Department of Health, and those of the League against Tuberculosis, the representation of which at this International Congress I also bear. And it is well that this Congress should have the name of International, not only because all the nations take part in it, but—and in this lies its singular importance—because its studies and deliberations belong to us all equally.

This solemnity has, therefore, a universal character, and for its celebration your country has been selected properly, having devoted such particular attention to the study of tuberculosis. I may speak thus because I know its work on tuberculosis, and have visited several of its numerous sanatoriums and dispensaries, and some of its benevolent institutions, among them the Committee of the New York Charity Organization Society and the Phipps Institute. I know, also, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, where palpitates a feeling, essentially humanitarian, which sustains the work, pushes it, and explains the success thus far obtained. A great movement appears to be directed by a brilliant group of men in science and the love of their country. This great people, in its desire to eradicate tuberculosis, employs a procedure which is truly unique. Besides the well-organized official services, private initiative sometimes substitutes the action of the government by a spontaneous, and general movement, indicating true social progress, and the high standard of culture and progress of the people. This movement has yielded important results, and the work accomplished will mark an advance in the study of tuberculosis, for the progress of science and for the benefit of humanity.

DR. BERNARD BANG, speaking on behalf of Denmark, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

As one of the representatives for Denmark, I have the honor to express our best wishes for the success of this great Congress.

My country is a very small one, but I am happy to say that we have done not so little for combating tuberculosis in man as well as in cattle, the Danish government and the Danish people being deeply interested in the fight against this scourge of mankind.

We come to you to see and learn, and the few days of our sojourn in your country have already shown us that also in this field you are in the front rank. I am fully convinced that you, the most energetic among the nations, will continue successfully and will be able to accomplish this noble task.

Thanking you cordially for the very kind manner in which you received us, we beg you to accept our best wishes for the happy results of your labors.

DR. C. W. RICHARDSON, speaking in behalf of Ecuador, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The Republic of Ecuador, through me, its representative before the Sixth International Congress on Tuberculosis, wishes to express thanks for the kind words of welcome spoken by the distinguished representative of the President of the United States. It wishes also to express its great pleasure in being represented among such a distinguished body of international representatives, congregated for the purpose of scientifically advancing the study of the great problems before this body. It felicitates the organization on its auspicious opening. Ecuador, through its geographical position, by nature being endowed as a great sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis, has always taken an intense interest in the study of this disease. The distinguished French physician, Charcot, was accustomed, in addressing his classes, to refer to the advantages in altitude, climatic and physical conditions, offered by Ecuador to those infected with tuberculosis.

The government of Ecuador and the profession are keenly alive to the advancement along all lines and phases of this great problem, and are working in unison to accomplish the purposes for which we are called together.

It pleases me to state, in closing, that one of the most scientifically equipped and administered sanatoriums in South America is now in the course of construction in Quito.

DR. J. B. PIOT (BEY), speaking for Egypt, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

En m'appelant à prendre la parole à titre de représentant officiel pour l'Égypte, M. le Président me fait un grand honneur, mais c'est un honneur immérité.

Je n'ai reçu, en effet, aucune délégation officielle du Gouvernement égyptien, et j'ai le regret de me trouver le seul adhérent venu des bords du Nil participer au Congrès, et ce, à titre purement personnel.

C'est donc seulement à ce titre que je forme les vœux les plus sincères pour le succès du 2ème Congrès International de la Tuberculose.

PROF. DR. LOUIS LANDOUZY, speaking in behalf of France, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Avec le cordial salut du Président de la République Française à la plus grande Amérique, la Délégation française a l'honneur d'apporter les vœux formés par M. Fallières pour le succès de vos nobles entreprises.

Des sociétés savantes, particulièrement de l'Académie de Médecine de Paris; des Universités; des Instituts; des Praticiens; des Hôpitaux; des Ecoles Vétérinaires; des Oeuvres et des Ligues antituberculeuses; de l'Association centrale contre la tuberculose de France, j'ai l'honneur d'apporter l'ardent concours à cette réunion internationale scientifique et humanitaire, où, dans sa glorieuse capitale, nous convie l'Union Américaine.

Quel heureux présage pour le succès de cet autre congrès de la Paix (paix armée aussi, contre un ennemi commun) qui réunit savants et philanthropes de cinq parties du monde; quel heureux présage que de nous trouver groupés à l'appelle de son Excellence le Président Roosevelt, dont la foi dans le progrès, proclame qu'une part de notre idéal humanitaire se réalisera ici, grâce aux hommes d'énergie, qui, de deux hémisphères, viennent chercher la Verité.

Avec entrain, sous le haut patronage de votre ardent optimiste, son Excellence le Président, nous venons travailler.

Nous pensons que, pour nous aussi, il y a sur la tuberculose, sur les misères humaines, comme sur la nature, de plus grands victoires encore à gagner, que celles remportées par Jackson supprimant la douleur opératoire; par Pasteur découvrant la nature animée des maladies, et, à la source même du mal puisant les vaccinations libératrices . . . tout comme jadis Benjamin Franklin vous délivrait de la foudre!

Quels qu'ils soient des quatre points du globe, nous ne doutons pas, que, par nos croisades antituberculeuses, il n'y ait en réserve de triomphes plus splendides encore que ces déjà remportés sur la phtisie, par les Laënnec, par les Villemin, et par les Robert Koch!

Nous ne doutons pas, que le siècle de Pasteur, qui, dès son aurore, a su réduire la Rage, la Diphthérie, la Malaria, le Tétanos et les Morsures de Serpents; qui vous voit armer victorieusement contre la fièvre jaune; n'assiste enfin à la mort de la tuberculose!

C'est avec leurs vœux pour le plus grand succès du Second Congrès international de la tuberculose, vers qui, au travers des océans, volent tant espérances; c'est avec leurs vœux agissants, leur fraternelle collaboration, qu'apportent:

Aux Etats Unis d'Amérique; au Comité organisateur du Congrès de Washington;

À leurs collègues de l'Union . . . qui, dans les domaines de la phtisiologie, de l'hygiène, de la neurologie et de la chirurgie triomphante, portent haut la science Américaine . . . les Médecins, les Bactériologistes, les Hygienists, les Philantropes, vers vous envoyés par la République soeur, par la France.

DR. ROBERT KOCH, speaking in behalf of Germany, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

As a delegate of Germany, I have the honor to express the thanks of the Imperial German Government for the invitation to participate in this Congress, and it gives me the greatest pleasure to convey the good wishes for success in your work.

The tuberculosis situation in Germany has become distinctly favorable during the last three decades. Thus, for example, the rate of mortality due to tuberculosis in Prussia has been reduced to practically one-half. This is equivalent to a gain of about 30,000 lives per annum. In Germany we do not, however, rest content with this decrease, nor do we think that this reduction will continue at the same rate. We are active in trying not only to maintain but to enhance this diminution. For this purpose numerous sanatoriums have been established in which annually 40,000 tuberculosis patients are cared for during a period of three months.

Furthermore, there have been established in many of our large cities so-called "Fürsorgestellen" for tuberculosis patients, where most efficient preventive work is being done. The enactment of laws for the improvement of the housing of the masses is contemplated and is at present much discussed. For a more thorough study of tuberculosis in all its aspects, and in order to find new ways and means for effectually combating tuberculosis, the Robert Koch Stiftung has been created. The work of this institute will not be restricted to Germany, but all nations will be benefited thereby.

dans la campagne que la science médicale mène contre un des fléaux qui ont le plus dévasté l'existence humaine.

Il n'est aucunement plus de spectacle plus réconfortant que celui de ces grandes assemblées internationales où la science, qui ne connaît pas les barrières séparant les nations, s'étant fait le champion de cette noble idée de fraterni-té et de solidarité générales, convie toutes les races du monde, tous les Gouvernements et tous les municipalités à s'intéresser aux maux dont souffre l'humanité, à combiner leurs efforts en vue de diminuer les dangers qui menacent surtout les faibles et les indigents d'entre nous. L'ère des Congrès scientifiques a marqué l'ère des victoires de la science sur la souffrance de peuples. Heures de victoires où l'on ne compte pas le nombre des morts sur un champ de carnage, mais où l'on compte les existences que l'on a pu soustraire à la mort, douces victoires, dont la conclusion finale ne se trouve pas dans l'augmentation des tombes des cimetières, mais dans le nombre croissant des foyers où l'on a pu apporter la santé et le bonheur.
L'humanité qui combat la Tuberculose peut être fière de son oeuvre. De cette année, nous avons ici de glorieux généraux, de brillants officiers.
Laissez-moi leur exprimer les vœux les plus chaleureux de la Grèce pour le succès de leurs travaux, et laissez-moi leur souhaiter le succès sain dans l'admirable lutte qu'ils ont entreprise.

~~.....~~ MILAS, speaking on behalf of Guatemala, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Como Delegado Oficial del Gobierno de Guatemala, á este Congreso della Ciencia, bienhechora de la humanidad, os dirigo mi atento y cordial saludo, sintiendome poseido del mayor entusiasmo al hacerlo, por la significación que certámenos de la indole del presente, tienen para la marcha progresiva de la ciencia, y por los incalculables bienes que la especie humana habrá de cosechar, merced á vuestras sabias deliberaciones.

Cumplo asi mismo con el muy grato deber de felicitar al Supremo Gobierno de esta gran Republica, por el celo de que ha dado gallarda muestra al congregar en su hermosa Ciudad Capitolina un cuerpo tan disinguido de facultativos, de ilustres varones inspirados en los más altos y nobles finas, y cuya fama há traspasado las fronteras do sus propias Patrias.

Al hacer fervientes votos porque la fraternidad nos una, en estas filantropicas labores, destinadas á dar científica solución á los arduos problemas que cada se presentan en el ejercicio de la nobilissima profesión que practicamos, los hago tambien porque estos trabajos sean fructiferos para aquellos que nos digan en el camino espinoso recorreremos, dejandoles amplios derroteros para que quepuedan proseguir su marcha, aliviando asi los dolores de la humanidad que sufre.

Que vuestras labores sean eficaces y provechosas, y correspondan á los elevados propositos de los iniciadores de esta asamblea, son los vehementes deseos del Gobierno de Guatemala y los mios propios.

PROF. N. PH. TENDELOO, speaking on behalf of Holland, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have the honor to greet you in the name of my gracious sovereign, the Queen of Holland.

Between the United States of America and Holland there are many cordial relations—some of historic importance, all of them interesting and uninterrupted. While America, on one hand, appreciates Dutch art and Dutch science, Holland admires the gigantic development of this, one of the greatest nations of the world; gigantic not only in works of stone and iron, but gigantic also in progress, social, economic, and scientific. I express the hope that this Congress may have complete success, both social and scientific, such success as may be expected from America.

DR. LAISLAW DETRE, speaking for Hungary, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The Hungarian National Committee of the Congress on Tuberculosis, composed of representatives of all corporations interested in tuberculosis, sent me as a delegate to this international gathering. My country is among those nations which are making the greatest efforts in fighting tuberculosis as a disease of the masses. We hope this Congress will fulfil our desires toward the restriction and later the extinction of this terrible plague, which makes greater ravages among our population in a few years than all wars have done during two hundred years. I am happy that this assembly meets here in Washington, the capital of the glorious United States, so much admired by Hungarians, and I heartily greet you in the name of Hungary.

DR. ANTONIO STELLA, speaking on behalf of Italy, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In the name of His Excellency, the Italian ambassador, I have the honor to deliver to the International Congress on Tuberculosis the greetings and the good wishes of the Italian Government. I am especially charged to convey the greetings of the Minister of the Interior and the Italian Department of Public Health, which I have the honor to represent; of the Commissioner General of Immigration, represented by Mr. Ernesto G. Fabbri; of the Navy and Army Department, represented by Captain Ernesto Mensa; and of the Minister of Public Instruction, represented by Professor Nicola De Dominicis, of the University of Naples.

The interest that Italy takes in this International conference is not perfunctory or formal, but owing to the great tide of immigration that sends to the United States an average of 200,000 Italians yearly, and considering the great Italian communities which have sprung up in this vast continent,—some of them larger than the largest city in our own kingdom,—the Government and the people of Italy are watching with the keenest interest and most profound sympathy the results of this conference.

Such interest is further enhanced by the fact that while we send you the pick and flower of our working people,—not the riff-raff, as some would have you believe,—and 84 per cent. of them are between the ages of fifteen and forty-five, carefully selected at the ports of embarkation and debarkation, many of these people return to Italy, after a few years of residence in the United States, broken down and infected with the seed of tuberculosis, which they carry to their small towns, where the disease was previously unknown.

Shall we lay the blame of this deterioration at the door of this glorious and hospitable republic. Not by any means. The fault is all with the immigrants themselves, who, through lack of knowledge and guidance, fall back with mechanical gravitation to the cities, and these they congest to the point of suffocation.

The problem is therefore preëminently and emphatically one of distribution of the immigrants; a problem of social therapy, which concerns more the legislative and executive power than the field of medicine proper, and for that very reason it is a most appropriate subject for an International Congress of this kind, where the representatives of all nations here assembled can point out the way by which a mutual understanding can be reached between the governments, both of the country where the immigrants come from and the one where they go to.

I have now the pleasant task of inviting the representatives of the United States, the members of this Congress, and all those here present, to attend the next International Tuberculosis Congress in Rome, in 1911. I hope the Central Committee will accept this request, and will at the proper time place it before this assembly for approval. Rome is to celebrate in 1911 her fiftieth anniversary as capital city of Italy, and will have a great exposition and special festivities for the occasion. I have no doubt you will have pleasure in coming to the country which has been for centuries the seat of arts and science, the country which gave the world of medicine the pioneer of morbid anatomy, the great Morgagni, who had the intuition of the infectious nature of tuberculosis long before the discovery of the great savant here present; the country which in centuries past had enacted special legislation in Naples and Tuscany condemning to the purifying flames the effects of all persons dying from consumption, of which the present disinfecting methods are nothing but a copy with some modifications.

I extend you therefore a hearty invitation to Rome in 1911—Rome, "Caput Mundi," the intellectual capital of the world.

DR. EDUARDO LICEAGA, speaking on behalf of Mexico, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I avail myself of this happy opportunity to express, in the name of my country, the satisfaction of meeting you here assembled for the noble, the holy, purpose of combining your efforts in the struggle against one of the calamities which are undermining the very existence of civilized nations, a consequence of human congestion in the great cities, and of the necessary and reciprocal contact of sick persons with healthy ones in the unavoidable agglomeration of dwellings, in the close contact of the members of the family, in the indispensable contiguity of shops, factories, schools, and churches.

To know this common enemy, to detect it beforehand, to avoid it upon knowing it, to attack it if it has already invaded one of our fellow-beings, for this purpose you have come here; but before carrying out your purpose, you propose to carefully examine the weapons you are going to fight with, and submit them to the consideration of your fellow-workers.

I congratulate you, gentlemen, on the excellent exhibition of the weapons with which you propose to fight.

There has never been presented a better or greater example of combined action for the accomplishment of a single purpose. What a wealth of information! What a great number of surprises these statistics have given us! What a variety of ways of solving one and the same sanitary problem! What a uniformity of purpose in condensing in concise, clear, and simple rules all that should be done to protect ourselves against the much-feared tuberculosis, and all that should not be done for fear of contracting it.

Gentlemen: This exposition is the most comprehensive, the most complete, and best organized of those which have heretofore been made, and for this reason I heartily congratulate its organizers.

Gentlemen: What a beautiful and inspiring spectacle this Congress affords us! There was a time when the Organizing Committee said: "Let every one who takes a deep interest in completely eliminating tuberculosis from all mankind come here."

Here they came, and here the workers from all cities, both of the new and the old world, are assembled, each bringing his share to exchange it for that of other men in this great exposition of learning, where ideas are exchanged instead of merchandise; where one's own experience is exchanged for that of another; where we learn that which those most advanced in science come to communicate to us, those least advanced in the knowledge of said science profiting thereby.

Blessed be the confraternity for the common good! All praise to the authors of this noble idea!

Gentlemen: In the name of Mexico, I thank this city which has imposed upon itself the task of giving hospitality to all the men who have assembled here for the purpose of working in behalf of peace, science, and humanity.

Gentlemen: The working material is waiting for us, therefore let us work.

DR. F. HARBITZ, speaking on behalf of Norway, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

As a delegate from Norway, I bring to you the compliments of my country and its government.

Norway, though situated far in the north, and offering, in certain parts of the country, very difficult natural conditions, takes eagerly a part in the crusade against tuberculosis. Norway has passed a special law concerning tuberculosis and can report good results. When the invitation came to us to participate in this Congress, Norway at once seized the opportunity of sharing in this meeting, which surely will give rich results.

Norway sends its most sincere thanks and greetings to the government of the United States and to the presidency of this Congress.

DR. MARTIN J. ECHEVERRÍA spoke extemporaneously as the official representative of the Republic of Panama.

MR. SYLVINO GURGEL DO AMARAL, speaking on behalf of Portugal, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I believe that no one in this assembly has the privilege I am now enjoying of rising twice to address myself to you as the representative of two governments, notwithstanding the fact that both Brazil and Portugal have never before intrusted such important mission to such an inadequate, although convinced, exponent of their respective high endeavors toward the betterment of science.

It is indeed a great honor for me to speak now as the representative of Brazil's mother-country,—Portugal,—and to speak to you as the representative also of a Portuguese scientific institution, the "Assistencia Nacional Portuguesa Contra a Tuberculose," of Lisbon, whose achievements have risen to the summit of human perfection, in the actual state of science, through the incomparable devotion of a queen, through the abnegation and boundless charity of that most unfortunate, and yet most glorious and admirable of the women of our times, Queen Amelia of Portugal.

The political agitations or misfortunes of her adopted country have never halted her efforts to soothe the suffering of people of all countries, when the sufferers were found within her own kingdom.

From the splendors of her palace to the death chambers of her hospitals she has stepped numberless times. Knowing how to be a queen, she has never forgotten how to be a woman. And now, when the last ghastly echoes of the Portuguese tragedy of February are dying away, that great royal nurse is again, on the one hand, training in her palace a new king for a most glorious nation, and, on the other, prolonging life or soothing the last hours of the cherished sufferers of her hospitals.

The great honor of voicing, now, to this distinguished assembly, the personal, hearty greetings of Queen Amelia and of the Portuguese government and nation falls to me. They desire me to convey through you, Mr. President, their best wishes for the complete success of this International Congress, expressing at the same time to the United States Government and to the American nation their keen sense of gratification for the splendid hospitality afforded to men of all countries in this city of Washington—this city of glorious memories, the promising center of great universal activities.

DR. S. IRIMESCU, speaking on behalf of Roumania, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Nous sommes venus dans votre pays où le progrès tient du miracle pour affirmer dans un labeur commun la part que chacun de nous prend à la lutte antituberculeuse. Dans cette lutte comme partout ailleurs vous avez su vous montrer comme les pionniers que rien n'arrête, et avec le même élan et cet essor merveilleux, qui est la caractéristique de votre peuple, vous avez su prendre les devants et donner, comme sur des nombreux points dans d'autres domaines, des exemples dignes d'être retenus par tous ceux qui s'intéressent à la lutte antituberculeuse. De tous les côtés vous avez su trouver aide et collaboration. Nous voulons nous inspirer de votre grand exemple et nous tâcherons d'emporter dans nos pays l'enthousiasme intrepide et la volonté tenace que vous font avancer à pas de géants dans la lutte antituberculeuse.

Au nom du Gouvernement roumain je souhaite de tout mon cœur le succès le plus complet au congrès de la tuberculose. Ces grandes assises internationales de la science doivent donner l'exemple de ce que peuvent faire les efforts réunis des hommes contre les deux grandes obstacles qui s'opposent au bonheur humaine: la misère et la maladie.

DR. A. WLADIMIROFF, speaking on behalf of Russia, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Angesichts dieser glänzenden Versammlung, beim Anblick dieses geschmückten Saales, wo die Fahnen aller Nationen der Welt prangen unter dem gastlichen Sternenbanner der Vereinigten Staaten von Nordamerika, könnte der Uneingeweihte vermeinen, dass wir zusammengetreten sind zu jubelndem Völkerfest. Aber hoch über allem Flaggenschmuck ragt hehr und ernst das rote Doppelkreuz, das Wahrzeichen einer der heiligsten Aufgaben der Menschheit, des Kampfes gegen die Tuberkulose.

Alle Nationen haben ihre Vertreter hierher entsandt zu gemeinsamer Arbeit, um ihre Erfahrungen auszutauschen, um zu geben und zu empfangen. So auch Russland. Wir sind uns jedoch bewusst, dass wir dieses Mal mehr zu empfangen als zu bieten haben; denn unsere Heimat, durch Ungemach aller Art schwer geprüft, war in den jüngstverflossenen Jahren gehemmt in der Betätigung seines Interesses für den Kreuzzug gegen den gemeinsamen Feind. Dass jedoch dieses Interesse bei uns nicht erlahmt ist, bezeugt schon die grosse Zahl russischer Aerzte und Aerztinnen, welche sich gegenwärtig in unserer Mitte befinden.

Indem ich den Kongress begrüße im Namen der Regierung, welche mich hierher entsandt hat, sowie im Namen der hier anwesenden und der in der Heimat verbliebenen Tuberkulosekämpfer Russlands, tue ich es in der Gewissheit, dass die Arbeit des Kongresses von Erfolg gekrönt sein wird, und in der Zuversicht, dass der Same, den wir von hier mitnehmen, uns daheim in reicher Ernte aufgehen wird.

DR. PAUL G. WOOLLEY, speaking on behalf of Siam, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have the honor to bring greetings to this Congress from His Majesty King Chulalongkorn and the people of Siam.

Siam would learn of you. Her advance along the lines of hygienic reform has not yet reached tuberculosis, but she realizes that in the near future she must turn her attention to this plague which is the cause of more deaths, within her boundaries, than the bubonic plague and cholera combined. She is already interested enough to send a representative to this Congress.

Heretofore, in all her medical advance, Siam has followed the example of foreign nations, and she will follow your example in dealing with tuberculosis.

It is a long way from Bangkok to Washington, but not so long that the cry for humanity cannot be heard, and not so long that it will not be heeded. The examples you give will be seen; the advice you formulate will be studied, the results you attain will be appreciated, and the methods you see will ere long lead to improvement of the conditions of the people of the crowded market-places in the far-off cities of the "Land of the White Elephant," the "Lotus Land of Indo-China," "The Kingdom of the Yellow Robe."

DR. CAMILO CALLEJA, speaking on behalf of Spain, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

By the courtesy of the Government of these United States, of the foreign representatives, and of all who coöperate in this Congress or honor us with their presence, and after saluting this people, the greatest among cosmopolitan nations, a salutation which consequently extends to all the world,—for all have contributed to form this powerful country,—I present to the consideration of my respected colleagues a new concept of the disease called "tuberculosis," a concept which involves the acceptance of an optimistic eclecticism, since, in my opinion, the majority of tuberculous affections are substitutive processes which act favorably on asthenic states, thus freeing us from more coquectic diseases, such as progressive anemias and leukemias. The cases in which the tubercle bacilli exercise a noxious action in the human body, as in those cases of tuberculosis produced by inoculation, in non-asthenic people, are exceedingly rare.

My optimistic view regarding tubercle bacilli, which I have had occasion to verify in the clinic during a period of thirty-five years, and which is in full conformity with the autopsies, is also in accordance with Jaime Ferran's discovery of the evolution of the all-pervading tubercle bacilli.

Hence, in order to avoid tuberculosis we must prevent the causes of asthenic diseases. This problem is a transcendent one, not only medical, but also of the highest social interest, since the precursory asthenic diseases are principally due to the antihygienic life led in cities, owing to the insufficient aëration, to indulgence in the worst vices, and to the lack of charity we show in not doing our best to remedy the misery about us. So we may state that the number of deaths from consumption is the sure index which graduates the want of true progress in cities, especially in those not situated in elevated localities. For this reason, to reduce the mortality from phthisis must be the first aim of our statesmen.

Lastly, I wish to state that Spain, besides establishing sanatoriums and dispensaries, has taken great interest in this antituberculosis campaign, holding now in Zaragoza a National Congress on Tuberculosis; and that it offers to pretuberculous people the most favorable winter and summer climates to be found anywhere. These natural conditions are highly advantageous, especially for those who speak the language of the country.

I beg all those present to accept the expression of my profound gratitude for the attention shown in listening to my words.

HON. CONRAD W. CEDERCRANTZ, speaking on behalf of Sweden, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

On behalf of the delegates of Sweden I beg to express our thanks for the kind words of welcome which have been addressed to us. The Swedish government is fully alive to the great importance of these congresses, and, therefore, it has been anxious to accept the invitation to meet here to-day issued by the government of this country. And, indeed, the importance of these meetings cannot be overestimated. In the war which, in our days, the civilized world has waged against tuberculosis, they form the great councils of war where the allies meet to exchange experiences from past campaigns and to discuss schemes and devise plans for carrying the struggle to a successful issue. And, the council closed, the fight is to be taken up again with renewed strength and renewed hope of victory. There is nothing that more strongly binds men together than community of interests, and the struggle against tuberculosis involves the common interest of the nations of the earth to annihilate that great scourge of mankind. In this case the common interest is a very powerful one, and, therefore, these congresses will, no doubt, contribute to the establishment of closer and more friendly relations between the nations, and thus further the realization of the great principle of the brotherhood of man, so long dreamed of. It must not be forgotten that the said principle was first proclaimed by the great nation which has summoned us to meet here to-day—the very fact of this meeting being held in this land is a favorable omen of its success. We, delegates of Sweden, join in the best wishes that this Congress may be a great success and prove a great blessing to humanity.

PROF. FRITZ EGGER, speaking on behalf of Switzerland, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In the name of the Swiss Confederation I have the honor of greeting the American nation with the president at its head, American science and its illustrious representatives, and the organizers of this grand Congress.

We have crossed the ocean to learn what steps great America is taking toward the solution of the tuberculosis problem. For this reason I refrain from mentioning what our little Switzerland has accomplished in this same campaign.

A French writer recently observed: "Le génie américain quand il réalise un progrès, le réalise complètement, grandement, définitivement."

We, too, are here to-day, wishing and hoping that America may solve the tuberculosis problem completely, grandly, and definitely.

We bring the best wishes of our countrymen for the success of the International Congress in Washington. It will form a landmark in the efforts of all civilized nations to vanquish one of the mightiest enemies of mankind.

HIS EXCELLENCY, LUIS MELIAN LAFINUR, the Minister for Uruguay, said that his attendance on this occasion was prompted by his own interest in the campaign against tuberculosis, an interest which is wide-spread and active in his country. His presence was unofficial. He said he had no instructions to speak for his country, nor any information which might explain the fact that he was the only citizen of the Republic of Uruguay attending the Congress. Dr. Lafinur described the activities of his country against tuberculosis in both men and animals. He alluded to the work of the voluntary associations, and to the participation of Uruguay in earlier International Congresses on Tuberculosis, and concluded by regretting again that a country so interested as Uruguay should on any account have failed to be officially connected with the Sixth International Congress on Tuberculosis.

DR. EDWARD L. TRUDEAU, Honorary President of the Congress, was introduced by the Chairman.

DR. TRUDEAU said:

“Mr. Chairman, your Excellencies, Fellow-members of the International Congress on Tuberculosis, Ladies and Gentlemen:

As a pioneer and veteran in the struggle against tuberculosis in this country, I welcome the International Congress to our shores. For thirty-five years I have lived in the midst of a perpetual epidemic, struggling with tuberculosis both within and without the walls, and no one can appreciate better than I do the great meaning of such a meeting. I have lived through many of the long, dark years of ignorance, hopelessness, and apathy, when tuberculosis levied its pitiless toll on human life, unheeded and unhindered; when, as Jaccoud has tersely put it, the treatment of tuberculosis was but a meditation on death! But I have lived to see the dawn of a new knowledge, to see the fall of the death-rate of tuberculosis, to see hundreds who have been rescued, to see whole communities growing up of men and women whose lives have been saved, and who are engaged in saving the lives of others. I have lived to see the spread of a new light from nation to nation until it has encircled the globe and finds expression to-day in the gathering of the International Congress on Tuberculosis, with all that it means to science, philanthropy, and the brotherhood of man. But the end is not yet, and I bid the Congress godspeed in the great task that is before it.

Second General Meeting.

CLOSING CEREMONY.

Held in the Assembly Hall of the New National Museum, Washington,
October 3, 1908.

The closing session of the Sixth International Congress on Tuberculosis was held in the Assembly Hall of the New National Museum on Saturday morning, October 3, 1908.

The hall was filled to overflowing.

The Secretary of the Treasury, followed by the ministers and ambassadors, the foreign delegates, and the officers of the Congress, went to the platform at 11 o'clock.

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY, MR. GEORGE BRUCE CORTELYOU, after calling the meeting to order, asked for reports of committees.

DR. LIVINGSTON FARRAND, Secretary of the Committee on Resolutions, reported the following resolutions, which were adopted:

Resolved: That the attention of state and central governments be called to the importance of proper laws for the obligatory notification, by medical attendants, to the proper health authorities, of all cases of tuberculosis coming to their notice, and for the registration of such cases, in order to enable the health authorities to put in operation adequate measures for the prevention of the disease.

Resolved: That the utmost efforts should be continued in the struggle against tuberculosis to prevent the conveyance of tuberculous infection from man to man as the most important source of the disease.

Resolved: That preventive measures be continued against bovine tuberculosis, and that the possibility of the propagation of this to man be recognized.

Resolved: That we urge upon the public and upon all governments (a) the establishment of hospitals for the treatment of advanced cases of tuberculosis, (b) the establishment of sanatoriums for curable cases of tuberculosis, (c) the establishment of dispensaries, day camps, and night camps for ambulant cases of tuberculosis which cannot enter hospitals or sanatoriums.

Resolved: That this Congress indorses such well-considered legislation for the regulation of factories and workshops, the abolition of premature and injurious labor of women and children, and the securing of sanitary dwellings, as will increase the resisting power of the community to tuberculosis and other disease.

Resolved: That this Congress indorses and recommends the establishment of playgrounds as an important means of preventing tuberculosis through their influence upon health and resistance to disease.

Resolved: That instruction in personal and school hygiene should be given in all schools for the professional training of teachers.

Resolved: That whenever possible such instruction in elementary hygiene should be intrusted to properly qualified medical instructors.

Resolved: That colleges and universities should be urged to establish courses in hygiene and sanitation, and also to include these subjects among their entrance requirements, in order to stimulate useful elementary instruction in the lower schools.

Dr. Farrand announced the report of the committee on the next place of meeting, recommending the acceptance of the invitation presented by His Excellency, Baron Mayor Des Planches, the Italian ambassador, inviting the International Congress on Tuberculosis to meet at Rome in 1911.

On motion of Dr. Jacobi, the recommendation of the committee was unanimously adopted. The chairman, in declaring the motion carried, repeated its purport, that the invitation of the government of Italy is accepted, and the next International Congress on Tuberculosis will meet at Rome in 1911.

The roll of participating countries was then called in alphabetic order, in English, and the delegates responded as follows:

DR. HERMAN VON SCHRÖTTER, speaking in behalf of Austria-Hungary, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In my speech which I had the honor to make at the opening session I have already taken the opportunity to express in the name of the Austrian delegation and the city of Vienna, our particular admiration of the many remarkable hygienic institutions which we have seen in your great cities, and of the energetic efforts of your fight against tuberculosis. I cannot mention the names of all the men whom we have met, who are active in your service, but I cannot pass over the Boards of Health, particularly of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, with their very many model institutions. We have had the opportunity to learn valuable and practical lessons, to the advantage, we hope, of our country.

To-day I allow myself only to return to you, most honored friends, our hearty thanks for your very kind reception, to express to you our great indebtedness, and to the representatives of this government and of this beautiful city our gratitude for all that they have done to make our visit so profitable and pleasant.

The Tuberculosis Congress in Washington, its most cordial and ever-ready secretaries, Dr. Fulton and Dr. Beyer, will always retain our most grateful and highest appreciation.

PROF. JOSEF DENYS, on behalf of Belgium, spoke extemporaneously in French.

DR. T. J. STAFFORD, speaking on behalf of the British Government, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Owing to the unavoidable absence of Dr. Arthur Newsholme, the senior representative of Britain, it devolves upon me as representing Ireland to convey to you, upon the part of Britain, the warm thanks of the British delegates for your kindness and boundless hospitality during the meeting of the Congress at Washington.

Like other countries, England, Scotland, and Ireland may at home have domestic difficulties and disagreements to contend with, and you may possibly have heard that Ireland and England frequently do not pull together amicably. But whatever our homes differences may be, there is one matter upon which I can assure you that England, Scotland, and Ireland are in absolute agreement upon, and that is, their admiration and affection for the people of the United States of America.

Ireland has a very close and special bond of union with America, inasmuch as she has sent within the last sixty or seventy years nearly 4,000,000 of her people as emigrants to your shores. They have found employment and a happy home in this great country, and we, in a very particular manner, owe you a debt of gratitude for your kindness to our Irish emigrants.

With regard to the special work of the Congress it is perhaps too soon to form any very definite idea of its value. The papers and discussions at the various sections have yet to be collected, tabulated, and read; but, judging from the work of some of the sections in which I was most interested,

I would say that the particular value of the Congress at Washington will be found in its devotion to matters connected with the administrative control of tuberculosis. The sections dealing with the practical control of the disease were full of interest, and we who attended them learned much from the experience of other countries, and particularly from those in America, where so much excellent work is being accomplished.

We shall all, I assure you, Mr. President, look back with pleasure to our most instructive and pleasant Congress at Washington, for which again, on behalf of the British delegates, I beg to thank you.

DR. FREDERICK MONTIZAMBERT, speaking in behalf of Canada, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

As the senior official delegate of the Government of the Dominion of Canada, I have great pleasure in having this opportunity of expressing for the other official delegates, for the other Canadian members of the Congress, and for myself our grateful appreciation of all the kindnesses and courtesies which we have received since we reached this beautiful city. I am glad also to join, in the name of all the Canadians present, in congratulations to the officials of the Congress upon the results of this great international meeting, which owes its pronounced success so largely to their well-directed and untiring efforts.

Canada, whilst perhaps not leading in the van, like some of the other countries, holds herself at least second to none in her recognition of the awful toll exacted by tuberculosis in human life, human health, and human happiness, and of the necessity for straining every effort to control or limit the ravages of that dread disease.

Even the very atmosphere of a Congress such as this is inspiring. We Canadians, like others, have gained much by it. We will all, I am sure, return home stimulated to renewed effort.

We from the Dominion are well accustomed to come south of the line to join and work with our "cousins" of this great country in conferences and meetings, medical, surgical, and in connection with public health, and to receive your ever bountiful hospitality. South of the line, I have said. It has been said many, many times, but can never be said too often, that, although that line may divide us in commercial and fiscal matters, it in no wise divides us in our social relations, in our scientific research, and in our common efforts against the conditions and causes that lead to disease and death. So accustomed are we to this communion of work, that—absolutely correct as the expression doubtless is, and high as is the honor of being grouped with so many eminent and distinguished men—I must confess to a slight feeling of something akin to surprise when I first found that the representatives of Canada were included amongst the foreign delegates.

Allow me, in saying farewell for the Canadians, to again express our gratitude for the many kindnesses, official and personal, which have been extended to us; and to add to the word "farewell" the expression of that underlying hope which is contained in that other parting salutation, au revoir!

DR. SHIN-FWE P. M. JEE, speaking on behalf of China, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I wish to express my sincere gratitude for the privilege which you have extended to my country of being a member of this International Tuberculosis Congress.

During the past six days we have studied your most excellent exhibits, listened to the able and learned addresses, and have associated with men, both Americans and foreigners, whose highest thoughts and works are for the welfare of humanity, and whose good deeds shall live to all future generations. We have noticed the interest shown by the municipal and national government in promoting this great cause by exerting their power and influence for the success of this Congress. Again we marveled at the intelligence which your general public displayed in grasping the importance of this Congress, thus assisting materially the medical profession in this anti-tuberculosis movement. And, finally, we have caught a glimpse and have felt the throbbing of the great American spirit, energy, and enthusiasm in the conduct of this gigantic crusade. For all these things we are grateful—grateful because the results of this Congress shall be a revelation and a lesson to China.

In concluding I wish to express the appreciation of my colleague and myself for the generous hospitality and the many kindnesses shown us during our sojourn here at this Congress. I thank you.

DR. JUAN J. ULLOA, speaking on behalf of Costa Rica, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

After a most profitable and enjoyable stay at the beautiful capital of this wonderful republic, the sad moment arrives when we must say au revoir.

All of us who have been able to judge, from the excellent exhibits shown, the great progress made in the United States in the humanitarian campaign against tuberculosis, join in one voice to congratulate you heartily for the magnificent work done in benefit of mankind.

Many lessons have been given to us, of the good accomplished so far, amply demonstrated by the results of experience, corroborated with well-compiled statistical data, and perfectly well illustrated by the exhibition of maps, placards, and models of apparatus, houses, hospitals, sanatoriums, etc., and we take pleasure in acknowledging that we have profited a good deal from them.

As a representative of the government and of the people of Costa Rica, at the meeting of the International Congress on Tuberculosis which comes to a close to-day, I have the honor to thank in their name the President, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, the President of the Board of Commissioners of this city, the officers of the Congress, and the ladies and gentlemen who have distinguished us with their attentions and with their exquisite courtesies.

In parting, we are sorry to go, because you know too well how to make us feel at home here, and our affections have rooted deeply in your friendly soil. But as we must go, we shake hands with Uncle Sam and his large family, hoping to see you all soon again.

DR. DIEGO TAMAYO, speaking on behalf of Cuba, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Nosotros que venimos de uno de los países mas pequeños de la America debemos manifestar nuestra admiración por estas fiestas que representan la más alta intelectualidad humana, por eso, nosotros mas que ninguno, sentimos profundo agradecimiento hácia los médicos Americanos que han organizado este congreso y hacia los medicos extranjeros que le galante cortesia con que nos ha tratado el gobierno de los Estados Unidos.

En nombre de uno de los países más pequeños de America, pero de los más grandes por su amor a la ciencia, damos á todos las más expresivas gracias.

DR. BERNARD BANG, speaking on behalf of Denmark, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Only a few words of thanks for all that we have seen and learned of you, and for all the kindness and friendship shown to us. We shall never forget it.

DR. J. B. PIOT (BEY), speaking for Egypt, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Si l'Egypte n'a apporté qu'un bien faible concours à la grande oeuvre que vient d'accomplir le Congrès de Washington, son unique représentant proud to welcome to the Eternal City so many eminent scientists from all over the world, and our great masters,—whom we here represent by proxy, so to speak,—Bacelli, Maragliano, Cardarelli, Celli, Marchiafava, will have an opportunity of showing you what Italy has done in the field of preventive medicine, and particularly in the fight against tuberculosis.

Apart from the especial reasons which the Central Committee has discussed and approved, the choice of Rome as the seat of the next International Tuberculosis Congress seems to me an ideal one, and ought to be acceptable to everybody.

The history of Rome is the history of the world, and all of you will find there some achievements of your past and present civilization as the emanation of the Latin genius.

Shelly and Keats rest there in the shade of the Pyramid of Cestius; the echo of Goethe's and Plato's song is still filling the air around the Forum; Hugo speaks the solemn language of Fate, while Emerson and Longfellow seem to have just departed from that atmosphere pregnant of inspiration.

Rome exercises a powerful magnetism over men of culture, and the voice of the past seems to call back, from behind her great monuments, to the highest ideals.

But do not think of visiting Italy only for the sake of her art treasures, like a museum of antiquities. United Italy to-day is not undeserving of the traditions of her great past, and you will find there a people alert and active, saturated with the modern spirit of energy and ambition,—under the leadership of a progressive and enlightened king,—moving onward and upward in the ascent of human progress.

While we are practically two thousand years old, we shall be fifty years young in 1911.

We want you to come there and sit with us at the banquet of nations, to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of our heroic rebirth among the great powers of the world, and the new birth of Rome, our common alma mater, as the heart and synthesis of the emancipation of man from dogmatism.

The history of Italy is truly "the progress of the consciousness of freedom." Twenty centuries of successive invasions did not crush her indomitable spirit, nor did they destroy her personality, and we have had many a Renaissance (in the etymological meaning of the word) besides the one of the sixteenth century.

But we want now an American invasion. We want as many of your strenuous men and your wonderful women as possible to come to Rome in 1911. In Europe we call you "the Romans of the twentieth century," and you may be sure of receiving a warm reception at the hands of your ancient cousins.

We want especially to welcome the invasion of this peaceful army of soldiers of humanity, as the distinguished Secretary of State was pleased to call you, hoping—and also endeavoring—that as this beautiful city of Washington has witnessed the most memorable fight against the scourge of mankind at the hands of its most valiant warriors, Rome, the heart of civilization, the center of all conquests, may witness and celebrate its victory and its triumph.

DR. G. SUTO, speaking on behalf of Japan, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Allow me to speak briefly in behalf of the Japanese members here present. We deem it a great honor to us that we can attend such an important meeting as this. We find ourselves especially interested in and instructed by the exhibition opened in connection with the Congress. Such a Congress as this is very important, not only for the benefit of the medical profession, but also for the welfare of the whole world. If, in future, there will be an occasion to hold the Congress in our country, we are very much pleased to say that Japan will do her best.

Finally, we beg to express our profound and heartfelt appreciation of the kind hospitality extended to us by the American members of the Congress, and we wish for the great success of the next International Congress on Tuberculosis.

DR. EDUARDO LICEAGA, speaking on behalf of Mexico, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

How gratifying it is for me to congratulate you on the immense amount of labor you have accomplished in only five days! What an interesting and beautiful scene is that which you now present to the entire world!

Thirty-three nations have been represented here, but I would say that not thirty-three nations, but the whole world, has participated in this Congress; some have come from Europe, emporium of civilization and knowledge; others represent legendary Egypt, that is to say, the African Continent; others come from China, the one hundred times secular empire; others from Japan and the innumerable islands disseminated throughout both oceans, and others, still, from the nations of the American Continent. In other words, we are the representatives of the entire world.

And after exchanging, not only our ideas, but also our sentiments of scientific fraternity, we have brought together the countries that sent us here, and we shall carry back to them the fruits gathered in the Universal Congress on Tuberculosis held in this country, so vast in its extent, so wonderful in its progress, and so situated that it stretches out one of its arms to the old world and reaches with the other the older one, the far East.

We have met in this beautiful and hospitable city, of which every one of us will have pleasant recollections, and about which we can say, when we return to our countries: "We have witnessed the consolidation of all nationalities in the city to which Washington gave his immortal name."

Gentlemen: The friendship is established. In the name of Mexico I come to tell you: Let us not say "Good-by," but a rivederci á Roma.

DR. LICEAGA'S cordial speech was given in Spanish, as follows:

¡Cuán grato es para mí venir á felicitaros por la inmensa suma de labor que habéis llevado á cabo en cinco dias solamente!

¡Que interesante y bello espectáculo es el que ofrecéis en este momento, al mundo entero!

Treinta y tres naciones han estado representadas aquí. ¡Qué digo, 33 naciones: vosotros sois representantes del mundo entero:

Unos habéis venido de Europa, emporio de la civilización y del saber; otros representáis el legendario Egipto, es decir, el Continente Africano; otros vienen de la China, el Imperio cien veces secular; otros del Japón y de las innumerables islas diseminadas en los dos Océanos; otros aún, de los pueblos del Continente Americano. Es decir, sois los representantes del mundo entero!

Y despues de haber cambiado no solamente vuestras ideas, sino también vuestros sentimientos de fraternidad científica, habéis aproximado á los pueblos que os envian y vais á llevarles el fruto recogido en este Concurso universal de Tuberculosis, verificado en este país, enorme por su extensión, prodigioso por su excepcional y rápido progreso, y situado de tal manera, que extiende uno de sus brazos al Viejo Mundo y alcanza con el otro al más antiguo todavía que se llama el Lejano Oriente.

Nos reunimos en esta bella y hospitalaria ciudad, de la que cada uno de nosotros lleva grato recuerdo y de la que podremos decir, cuando volvamos á nuestro país: Acabamos de asistir á la fusión de todas las nacionalidades en la ciudad á la que Washington dió su nombre!

Señores.

La amistad está hecha. En nombre de México vengo á deciros:

No nos digamos adios, sino.

A rivederci á Roma!

DR. F. HARBITZ, speaking on behalf of Norway, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In the name of Norway, I have to return thanks for what this Congress has accomplished, for the rich results of its scientific work and progress, and no less as concerns information about practical measures in the struggle against tuberculosis. The great advantages in this crusade which America, and especially some of the largest towns here, have gained during recent years, can, in some respects, serve as models, and in the rapid development which this crusade here evidently has experienced, we should find a stimulus for other countries, to work with the same energy, along similar lines, and, as it is to be hoped, with the same good results.

Leaving this Congress and soon, also, America, I offer the most cordial thanks to the Government of the United States and to the president of the Congress for kind reception and hospitality and for the rich results this Congress has given.

DR. S. IRIMESCU, speaking on behalf of Roumania, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Nous partons d'ici en gardant le souvenir ému de l'accueil que nous avons partout reçu en dehors de cette cordialité amenée et spontanée qui est la meilleure marque de l'amitié et que nous n'oublierons jamais. Nous avons appris chez vous ce qu'on peut obtenir par une activité ardente soutenue par ces belles qualités d'énergie que vous avez su si bien employées.

Votre grande démocratie agissante a compris que le premier devoir d'un gouvernement et celui de la santé publique. De là cette libéralité vraiment grandiose que vous a permis de faire oeuvre de géants dans un si court espace de temps, puissions-nous, messieurs, remplis par l'enthousiasme du moment, redoubler d'énergie et de propagande active pour faire aboutir chacun dans nos pays la grande oeuvre de combat de la plus meurtrière des maladies. Nous avons pris ici une leçon des choses qui est la meilleure de toutes, et nous devons remercier les organisateurs du congrès de tout notre coeur et avec notre entière reconnaissance.

DR. A. WLADIMIROFF, speaking on behalf of Russia, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Son Excellence Mr. le Secrétaire d'Etat dans les paroles éloquentes qu'il nous a adressées a exprimé l'espoir que les Membres du Congrès de Washington, en quittant les Etats-Unis en emporteraient un bon souvenir et y appelleraient leur bénédiction.

Messieurs, je vous affirme que les jours passés parmi vous sont devenus une partie intégrante de nous mêmes, ils forment maintenant notre vie, et nous ne saurions jamais en arracher le souvenir de notre coeur sans y faire un vide.

D'autre part tout ce que nous avons vu et entendu aux Etats-Unis, nous a surabondamment prouvé que ce pays est riche non seulement au sens ordinaire de ce mot, mais riche aussi dans le domaine intellectuel. Que de talents scientifiques! Que d'intelligences sachant réaliser d'une façon rationnelle ce qu'elles ont conçu! Ces impressions nous resteront aussi inoubliables que l'hospitalité américaine sans rivale dans le monde.

Nous partons, pleins de gratitude et nous garderons certainement un souvenir inoüissable de ce pays béni.

DR. CAMILO CALLEJA, speaking on behalf of Spain, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

To express my feelings better, I ought to address you in Spanish, but, in order to be understood by more, I have to hurt your ears with my broken English. The proverbial chivalry with which we, of old Castile, are endowed, impels me to thank you in terms so high that they are beyond my reach in English. Yet, were I not to attempt it, I should be consumed by vexation, without being infected by tubercle bacilli.

The sacrifice I have made in coming here, though very great, has been largely compensated by your generous multiplied attention, and, besides, by the very instructive contents of this copious exhibition, and of the scientific literature which you have presented.

There yet remains a good deal to be done, especially in preventing the primordial causes, that is, those diseases which predispose to tuberculosis.

In Spanish we say: "a Roma par todo"; let us go to Rome to see whether this problem can be fully resolved.

I beg, in the name of the Spanish government, of which I am the official delegate, to offer you, citizens of Washington, and to the guests here assembled, the expression of my deepest gratitude.

HON. CONRAD W. CEDERCRANTZ, speaking on behalf of Sweden, said:

Mr. Secretary, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen:

On behalf of the Swedish delegates to this Congress I am anxious to express the feelings of admiration and gratitude with which our stay here has inspired us. We have witnessed the great interest throughout this country in the important cause of humanity, for the furthering of which this Congress has assembled, and we have been struck by the exhibits illustrating the admirable work done by the different States of the Union in the interest of this same cause. We have been happy to state that the

MR. ROOSEVELT said:

Mr. Chairman, Members and Delegates of the International Congress on Tuberculosis, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I could not deny myself the privilege of saying a word of greeting to this noteworthy gathering. It is difficult for us to realize the extraordinary changes, the extraordinary progress, in certain lines of social endeavor during the last two or three generations; and in no other manifestation of human activity have the changes been quite so far reaching as in the ability to grapple with disease. It is not so very long, measuring time by history, since the attitude of man toward a disease such as that of consumption was one of helpless acquiescence in what he considered to be the mandates of a supernatural power. It is but a short time since even the most gifted members of the medical profession knew as little as any layman of the real causes of a disease like this, and therefore necessarily of the remedies to be invoked to overcome them. It is an affair of decades, I am almost tempted to say an affair of years, when we go back to cover the period in which the real progress has been made. Take, for instance, the work that the United States government is now doing in Panama. When the first railroad was built across Panama, it was said, with some foundation of truth, with but slight exaggeration, that "every sleeper laid cost the life of a man." Now the work on the canal, in that identical place, is being prosecuted, on an infinitely larger scale, of course, than the mere building of a railroad, under conditions which make the locality stand above the ordinary locality in the United States in point of health. The Isthmus of Panama, which was a by-word for fatal disease, has become well-nigh a sanatorium; and it has become so because of the investigations of certain medical men which enabled them to find out the real causes of certain diseases, especially yellow fever and malarial fever, and to take measures to overcome them. The older doctors here, when they were medical students, would have treated the suggestion of regarding mosquitos as the prime source of diseases like that as a subject for mirth. Is not that literally true? These utterly unexpected results have followed patient, laborious, dangerous, and extraordinarily skilful work that has enabled the cause of the diseases to be found and the diseases themselves to be combated with extraordinary success. I said dangerous work. That success had its martyrs; doctors laid down their lives to secure the results of which I have spoken, showing exactly as much heroism as ever was shown by the soldier on the field of battle.

At this moment, in the middle of the great continent of Africa, there is a peculiarly fatal and terrible disease—the sleeping sickness; a disease which, if it had been known to our ancestors in the middle ages, would have been spoken of as the black death was spoken of in the middle ages—as a scourge sent of God, possibly as something connected with a comet, or some similar explanation would have been advanced. We now know that it is due to the carrying of a small and deadly blood parasite by a species of biting fly, there being this very curious genus of biting flies in Africa, one form of which, although harmless to wild animals and man, conveys by its bite a fatal infection to all domestic animals, and even to the closest allies of the wild animals, to which its bite is fatal; while the other form, which does not seem to be fatal to domestic or wild animals, is responsible for the spread of this terrible disease, the sleeping sickness, which in one region killed two hundred thousand out of three hundred thousand inhabitants—a rate of slaughter, of course, infinitely surpassing that of any modern war. And the chance to control that disease lies in the work of just such men as, and, indeed, of some of the men who, are assembled here. You who have come here, however, have come to combat not a scourge confined to the tropics, but what is, on the whole, the most terrible scourge of the people throughout the world. But a few years ago hardly an intelligent effort was made or could be made to war against this peculiarly deadly enemy of the human race. The chance successfully to conduct that war arose when the greatest experts in the medical world turned their trained intelligence to the task. It remains for them to find out just what can be done. The task then will be for the representatives of the governments to give all possible effect to this conclusion of the scientific men.

The change in the status of the man of science during the last century has been immeasurable. A hundred years ago he was treated as an interesting virtuoso, a man who was capable of giving amusement, but with whom no practical man dealt with any idea of standing on a footing of equality. Now more and more the wisest men of affairs realize that the great chance for the advancement of the human race in material things lies in the close interrelationship of the man of practical affairs and the man of science, so that the man of practical affairs can give all possible effect to the discoveries of the most unforeseen and unexpected character now made by the man of science.

I feel that no gathering could take place fraught with greater hope for the welfare of the people at large than this. I thank you all, men and women of this country, and you, our guests, for what you have done and are doing. On behalf of the nation I greet you, and I hope you will understand how much we have appreciated your coming here.

HENRY B. F. MACFARLAND, President of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, said:

We speed the parting guests because we must. We cannot do it joyously as we welcomed them. We say "to the return" in all languages. You have been making history here this week. We can hope with you that you have been making progress—not always the same. We are sure that there is no lasting progress except that which establishes the highest interests of mankind, in accord with the highest moral standards. At Secretary Root's dinner we were all impressed with his eloquent expression of the truth that service is the true test of character and measure of greatness in nations and individuals. Your distinction is based upon that truth. We have been honoring material success so long that we need to return to the better traditions which set spiritual success above all other kinds. Men who, like Agassiz, are too busy in humanity's cause to make money, whether in civic service or in the fields of science, deserve the highest honors. They are the leaders in that great struggle, side by side with the struggle for existence, which seeks to prolong existence, and make it sweeter and nobler while it lasts. Out of your deliberations and all their wholesome differences of opinion, without which no progress is possible, will come, sifted to practical helpfulness, instruction for all of us in the great purpose of preventing disease, preserving the health of the people, and making the future efficiency of the nations secure.

THE CHAIRMAN read the following cablegram:

Le Président du congrès international, 1905, adresse au président congrès, Washington, salut cordial et vœux pour succès de la grande manifestation antituberculeuse.
HÉRARD.

DR. LAWRENCE F. FLICK, being called on by Mr. Cortelyou, said:

Before closing the Congress it may be proper for me, as Chairman of the Committee which has had charge of the preparations for the Congress, to say a word in my own name and in the name of my associates. We have had immeasurable success, which is most gratifying to us, and we are indebted for this success to the coöperation of our friends, both here and abroad. The harmonious coöperation of members of the medical profession, philanthropists, and people from every walk of life has been mainly responsible for the success which we have had. Every one has contributed his share without stint and with such heartiness that failure was impossible. We owe much to the United States government for its cordial support of our enterprise. The President, the Cabinet officers, Congress, The Smithsonian Institute, in short, every department of the government, have extended us valuable assistance. We have had help from the State governments, from boards of health, and from organizations interested in preventive medicine and in sociology. We owe much to our friends from abroad, because only through their sympathy and support have we been able to give this Congress its international character and make it do for our country what it apparently has done. This gathering has created a bond of union between the workers in the crusade against tuberculosis from all parts of the world which will greatly strengthen our forces and which will make every unit more efficient in the particular field of labor in which it is engaged. I thank the Congress in the name of our Committee for the cordial support which has been given us, and I personally thank each member of the Committee for his loyalty and earnest support of my individual efforts.

After DR. ROBERT KOCH and MR. HENRY PHIPPS had spoken a few words to the meeting, the Chairman, MR. GEORGE B. CORTELYOU, Secretary of the Treasury, said:

I would not attempt to add anything to what the President has said, were it not that there remain a few words to be spoken which I shall speak in his behalf and at his request.

In the remarks which I was privileged to make at the opening of the Convention, on Monday, I took occasion to point out that in addition to the subjects which you studied, and which your knowledge and your wisdom clarified and illumined, there was another aspect of these great international congresses which it seemed to me was of great value, and that was the bringing together of men and women from the nations of the earth, where they become better acquainted, and where, by the interchange of views, small and even large differences of opinion disappear in the splendid sympathy and unity of action which come from devotion to a common cause. You have spent many busy hours here in the discussion of various phases of the question with which you are dealing. At times there has been pronounced divergence of views, but, just as in the great world of politics, public discussion is a healthful sign of public interest, so in this great world of medical science and medical research, debatable propositions have disclosed the interest taken in them and in the important subjects to which they relate.

Along with your work we have tried to provide some relaxation. Many a question of State has been settled at the banquet table, many a burden lightened where a few were gathered together in friendly companionship. So I believe such an occasion as the dinner on Thursday evening to be something more than merely a pleasant time with good cheer and good company.

You are engaged in a great work for humanity's sake. You are carrying light into the dark places of the earth. You are enlisted in a crusade as holy and unselfish as any the world ever saw. Upon your banner is emblazoned "Hope," and your devoted leaders of medical thought and progress are already proclaiming victory—a victory the extent of which, as we firmly hope and believe, will grow with every passing year. America will do her share. What you have contributed to our knowledge is most gratefully appreciated, and we in turn offer our investigations and our experiences that they may be of service in the common cause. May the largest success crown our joint efforts. In behalf of our people and our government, I wish you God speed.

I now declare the International Congress on Tuberculosis adjourned, to meet in accordance with the decision reached at the beginning of this session, in 1911, at Rome, in Italy.

Report of the Secretary-General.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE STUDY AND PREVENTION OF TUBERCULOSIS, at its meeting in May, 1905, instructed its delegates to the International Congress on Tuberculosis, meeting in Paris, to invite the Congress to meet in Washington in 1908. This invitation was conveyed by Drs. Lawrence F. Flick, Wm. Osler, S. A. Knopf, Henry Barton Jacobs, Henry G. Beyer, and Stephen J. Maher. The invitation was seconded by Theodore Roosevelt, then President of the United States, who instructed Mr. McCormick, the American ambassador to France, to attend the Congress and to secure, if possible, the acceptance of the invitation. The aid of Mr. Roosevelt was obtained through Dr. Wm. H. Welch, who, in response to a telegram from the American delegates, interviewed both the President and the Secretary of State on the subject. The invitation was accepted.

At the annual meeting of the National Convention in May, 1906, a plan of organization, recommended by the directors, was adopted, whereby Dr. Lawrence F. Flick was made chairman of a committee on the International Congress on Tuberculosis, with power to choose and appoint other members of the committee to the number of 100. This committee was charged with all the responsibility for organizing the forthcoming Congress along lines broadly outlined by Dr. Flick in his original proposition to the directors of the National Association.

Before the first of January, 1907, this committee (afterward known as the Central Committee) had organized and elected a Secretary-General. The Central Committee at this time included six persons—Dr. Lawrence Flick, Dr. Vincent Y. Bowditch, Dr. Joseph Walsh, Dr. Lawrence Litchfield, Dr. Alfred Meyer, and Dr. Charles J. Hatfield.

The next step was taken on January 26, 1907, when the chairman and the Secretary-General went with General Sternberg, General Wyman, Dr. George M. Kober, and Mr. Wm. H. Baldwin to call on the Secretary of State in Washington. After an interview with Mr. Robert Bacon, Assistant Secretary of State, the Committee met in the New Willard Hotel, where the Secretary-General prepared a letter to the Secretary of State requesting that inquiry be made of the several Federal departments whether they did not wish to participate in the forthcoming Congress and in the exhibition. In this letter certain bureaus and divisions of departments were specified as having definite relations with the tuberculosis problem. This letter, signed by all those who were present at the time, was transmitted to the Department of State on the same afternoon. The inquiry suggested was very promptly undertaken, by the Department of State, and favorable replies were soon received from seven of the nine Federal departments.

The Secretary of State, Mr. Elihu Root, prepared a memorial to Congress asking for the authority and the means to enable the Federal departments to participate in the International Congress on Tuberculosis and in the exhibition. This memorial (Senate Document 343) was transmitted by the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Leslie M. Shaw, and reached Congress on February 25th, three days before adjournment, and too late for consideration.

Early in the sixtieth Congress this memorial was revived. The appropriation asked for in this memorial ($25,000) became item No. 32 in the estimate of the Department of State for foreign relations, the bill generally known as the Diplomatic and Consular Bill. Senate Document No. 343 (of the fifty-ninth Congress) became an appendix to this bill, which passed late in the session.

Anticipating that this measure would go through Congress rather slowly, a resolution was prepared authorizing the Department of State to invite foreign governments, through their ministries, to participate in the International Congress on Tuberculosis and in the exhibition. This Senate Concurrent Resolution, No. 5, was introduced by Mr. Gallinger, of New Hampshire, and passed the Senate on December 19th. The resolution reached the House on the following day. Mr. Barchfeld, of Pennsylvania, asked unanimous consent to move the concurrence of the House, without reference to the Committee on Foreign Relations. Mr. Sereno Payne, of New York, objected, and the resolution was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, where the pressure of other business delayed it until January 31st, when it was favorably reported. On February 28th the House concurred in this resolution. The Secretary of State, under date of March 16th, addressed notes to all the American ministers in foreign countries, instructing them to convey the invitation to the respective foreign governments in such a manner as to secure, if possible, the acceptance of the invitation. Three months, therefore, elapsed between the introduction of this resolution and the issue of the invitations which it authorized. The delay, perhaps, explains the failure of some countries to participate in the Congress, and throws an interesting light on the remarks of His Excellency, Luis Melian Lafinur, the minister of Uruguay, who said at the opening of the Congress, on September 28th, that he was present on account of his personal interest in the Congress, and because his country was actively engaged in a campaign against tuberculosis, but that his attendance on the occasion of the opening of the Congress had no official sanction, since, so far as he was informed, the government of Uruguay had not been invited to participate in the International Congress on Tuberculosis.

NATIONAL COMMITTEES.

The Central Committee asked three persons in each country to serve as the organizing nuclei of committees for their respective countries. On the recommendations of these three, in each country, the National Committees were enlarged to a total of 700 members in 44 countries. (See page 647.)

HOUSING THE CONGRESS.

The problem of housing the Congress was intrusted to the Secretary-General and the Committee on Local Affairs. The building desired for this purpose was the office building of the House of Representatives, nearly completed and beginning to be occupied by the Representatives. This project was made known to all the State committees, and local influences were speedily brought to bear on the Congressmen to grant to their constituents the use of so much space as their States required on account of the Congress and the exhibition. At the same time the local committee called on the Speaker of the House, Mr. James R. Mann, chairman of the Committee on the Distribution of House Office Rooms, and Mr. Elliott Woods, Superintendent of the Capitol Buildings and Grounds, and made a formal request for the use of the House Office Building for all the purposes of the Congress and exhibition. Since the date of the International Congress fell in the vacation of the Federal Congress, it was believed that this building would meet our requirements, at the least possible expense and inconvenience to the government. Mr. Cannon led us to believe that, if the will of the House were favorable, he would not object to granting our request. Mr. Woods objected on the ground that, if the International Congress were housed in the office building, it would be impossible to complete the decorating and furnishing before Congress assembled in December. Mr. Mann objected to the proposition on the grounds urged by Mr. Woods, and on grounds of precedent and of expediency. Mr. Mann and Mr. Cannon suggested that the Capitol would be more appropriate. On April 3d Mr. Mann introduced a concurrent resolution (No. 36) directing the superintendent to place at the disposal of the International Congress the Hall of the House of Representatives, the Senate Chamber, with the lobbies and corridors adjoining and connecting. The will of the House was clearly expressed in the correspondence of the members with their constituents, as reported to the Secretary-General. The majority of the members were in favor of the use of the House Office Building. The local committee expressed itself as satisfied with either the Capitol or the House office building. The House Committee gave us a hearing on the housing question. Dr. Flick, chairman of the Central Committee, was spokesman, and asked for the use of both the Capitol and the House office building.

On May 16th Mr. Mann introduced a joint resolution (No. 135) requesting the President to place at the disposal of the International Congress on Tuberculosis the unoccupied space in the New National Museum, the new Municipal Building, and the Agricultural Buildings. This resolution passed the House and went to the Senate on the following day. The Commissioners of the District of Columbia were able to secure in the Senate the exemption of the Municipal Building. The new buildings of the Department of Agriculture offered no useful space. In this situation the conferees of the House and Senate, on motion of Mr. Mann, amended the resolution so as to grant the use of the New National Museum, and added an item to the General Deficiency Bill appropriating $40,000 to pay for such temporary work as might be needed to prepare the New National Museum for the uses of the International Congress and the exhibition. The Director of the Smithsonian Institution and the supervising architect, Mr. Bernard Green, acting under the instructions of the President, carried out the intent of this act of Congress to the complete satisfaction of the Central Committee, so that both the Congress and the exhibition were appropriately housed under one roof.

PARTICIPATION OF THE STATES.

Carrying out the purpose to give this project a sure footing both in national and State politics, the Secretary-General wrote, in March, 1907, to the governor of each State asking him to take such official action as would insure the coöperation of all the agencies in each State, under well-defined leadership, in preparation for the Congress. The governors were asked to address their departments of State government, the mayors of cities, and other interested agencies, either directly or through some appropriate governmental office, in such a way as to secure the participation of each State as a unit. Many of the governors of States clearly grasped the intention of the Central Committee, and took action of the kind desired. Eventually a great majority of the States became organized in preparation for the Congress. The Central Committee created organizing committees in each State, and these local organizing nuclei added to their own numbers until there were at length some 1600 persons listed as members of local committees. Several weeks before the date of the Congress the entire roster of the States was included in the membership of the Congress. Local antituberculosis associations and boards of health in many places became very active in preparations for both the Congress and the exhibition, and a few new local associations came into existence in the course of their preparations. The Central Committee gave support to the local efforts by publishing a bulletin for the information and use of State committees. (See page 682.)

DIVISIONS OF THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Committee on Local Affairs was organized under the chairmanship of Surgeon-General George M. Sternberg, as an advisory committee to the Secretary-General. (See page 17.)

TRANSPORTATION.

A Committee on Transportation was organized under the chairmanship of Dr. Henry M. Bracken, of Minnesota, to make arrangements, in the interests of the Congress, for the transportation of Congressists to, from, and within the United States. (See page 17.)

TRANSLATION AND INTERPRETATION.

This special committee was organized under the chairmanship of Dr. Joseph Walsh, of Philadelphia. This committee translated the abstracts of some 291 papers contributed to the Congress program, printed them in the four official languages, assembled them in chronologic order, by sections, and distributed them to incoming Congressists on the day of opening, September 28th. This committee also organized and managed during the Congress a corps of interpreters, who were on duty in the several sections, during the week, September 28th to October 3d. (See page 17.)

PRINTING AND PUBLICATION.

This special committee was organized under the chairmanship of Dr. Livingston Farrand, of New York, and had charge of the preliminary publications and of the printing of the Transactions. (See page 16.)

ENTERTAINMENT.

This committee was organized under the chairmanship of Dr. Lawrence Litchfield, of Pittsburg. In cooperation with various local committees, Dr. Litchfield's Committee arranged and announced excursions and entertainments given in Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, New York, Baltimore, and elsewhere. (See page 17.)

SPECIAL LECTURES.

The Central Committee believed that the influence of the International Congress on Tuberculosis could be strengthened if some of the distinguished visitors could be induced to give public lectures in Washington and elsewhere. For this purpose a special committee was appointed under the chairmanship of Dr. George M. Kober, of Washington. (See page 17.) This Committee arranged public lectures as follows:

- Social Life and Tuberculosis*, by Prof. Gotthold Pannwitz, of Berlin; delivered in Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, September 23d.
- The Evolution of the Treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis*, by Dr. C. Theodore Williams, of London; delivered at Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, September 24th.
- The New Methods of Early Diagnosis of Tuberculosis*, by Professor A. Calmette, of Lille, France; delivered at Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, September 26th.
- The Biology of the Tubercle Bacillus*, by Dr. A. A. Wladimiroff, of St. Petersburg; delivered in the New National Museum, Washington, September 28th.
- The Causes of the Past Decline of Tuberculosis, and the Light Thrown by History on Preventive Measures for the Immediate Future*, by Dr. Arthur Newsholme, of London; delivered at the New National Museum, Washington, September 29th.
- A Hundred Years of Phthisiology: A Study of Tuberculosis from 1808 to the Congress in Washington, 1908*, by Professor Louis Landouzy, of Paris; delivered in the New National Museum, Washington, September 30th.
- Collateral Tuberculous Inflammation*, by Professor N. Ph. Tendeloo, of Leyden; delivered at the New National Museum, Washington, October 2d.
- Studies in Tuberculosis in Domestic Animals, and What we may Learn Regarding Human Tuberculosis*, by Professor Bernard Bang, of Copenhagen; delivered in the New National Museum, Washington, October 3d.
- The Campaign Against Tuberculosis in Large Cities by Scientific Methods in the Construction of Habitations*, by Dr. Maurice Letulle and M. Augustin Rey, both of Paris; delivered at McCoy Hall, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, October 5th.
- The Antituberculosis Program, Coördination of Preventive Measures*, by Dr. R. W. Philip, of Edinburgh; delivered at Jordan Hall, Boston, October 7th.

Two other lectures were arranged for, but the authors were unable to appear; Dr. Andres Martinez-Vargas, of Barcelona, whose lecture was entitled Tuberculosis of the Heart, Blood- and Lymph-vessels; Dr. Shibasaburo Kitasato, of Tokyo, whose lecture was entitled Tuberculosis in Japan.

All of these lectures are assembled in a special volume, supplementary to this series.

Dr. Emilio Coni, of Buenos Aires, was also asked to deliver one of these lectures, and consented to do so. His plans were thwarted by the serious illness of his mother.

THE EXHIBITION.

The Special Committee on Exhibition was organized in October, 1907, under the Chairmanship of Dr. Henry G. Beyer. (See page 16.)

The Exhibition was planned with two main purposes in view: first, as a useful adjunct to the Congress itself; second, as a means of instructing the general public, particularly in the District of Columbia. The Exhibition was formally opened on the evening of September 21st, in the presence of a large audience, in the Assembly Hall. The Chairman was Mr. H. B. F. MacFarland, President of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. Addresses were made by Surgeon-General George M. Sternberg, U. S. Army, Mr. James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, Dr. Lawrence F. Flick, of Philadelphia, Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, Commissioner of Health of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Henry G. Beyer, U. S. N., Director of the Exhibition. Throughout the three weeks following September 21st the Assembly Hall was opened every evening for a public lecture. The officers of the Exhibition provided guides and demonstrators, and carried on an extensive program of popular lectures to large and small audiences. There was a comfortable lantern room, having seats for about seventy-five persons, and here there were several lectures daily. Several of the exhibits were in themselves complete objective presentations of the antituberculosis campaign, and kept demonstrators on duty from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M. Arrangements were made to receive visitors in large groups, and to give them personal conduct through the Exhibition. In this way all the teachers in the public schools, and the pupils above the sixth primary grade, were enabled to see the Exhibition under very favorable conditions.

During the week of the Congress several scientific men were especially engaged as demonstrators; among them, Dr. Theodore Shennan, of Edinburgh; Dr. Bertil Buhre, of Stockholm; Dr. Clemens von Pirquet, of Vienna; Dr. Hamel, of Berlin; Dr. Julius Bartel, of Vienna; Dr. James Miller, of London; Dr. O. Amrein, of Arosa, Switzerland. It would be difficult to give a complete account of the useful activities of these three weeks. The number of visitors to the Exhibition was 150,000.

Complete lists of the individual exhibitors of the United States and of other countries, a list of the collective exhibitors of the United States, and lists of the foreign and United States exhibits are given in the following pages, taken from Dr. Beyer's catalogue, and including his title-page, preface, and diagrams of the exhibition space in the New National Museum.

The Exhibition Illustrating the World's Work in the Struggle Against Tuberculosis, COLLECTED AND ARRANGED IN CONNECTION WITH THE Sixth International Congress on Tuberculosis,

IN THE

NEW NATIONAL MUSEUM, WASHINGTON, U. S. A.,

SEPTEMBER 21 TO OCTOBER 12, 1908.

PREFACE.

When it was first proposed to have an exposition in connection with the Sixth International Congress on Tuberculosis in Washington, to which the whole civilized world should be invited to contribute; when it was, furthermore, determined that this exposition should represent, as nearly as could be, the progress and achievements of the whole scientific world in its struggle against tuberculosis, since the discovery of the tubercle bacillus, by R. Koch in 1882, which meant an exposition planned on a larger scale than any of its predecessors—the task seemed indeed enormous, and scarcely to be realized.

This catalogue, like the exposition itself, represents the sum total of the contributions from all the exhibitors, individual as well as collective. Of the 438 contributors to the exposition, 312 reside within the limits of the United States; 126 without. Two hundred and twenty-two of the above number are collective contributions, that is, from associations, societies, and other corporate bodies, and 216 from individual members of the Congress. Of the 222 collective contributors, those from the United States number 170; those from Europe or from other parts of America, 52. Of the 216 individual exhibits we are indebted to the United States for 142, to European and American countries outside of the United States, for 74.

To all those whose names will be found recorded on the list of contributors to this important work and who have thus aided in making this exposition the success which it represents, this Congress and the whole world are under the greatest obligations, now and for all time. The humanitarian sentiments and motives prompting such services as these, in the interest of all mankind, make an exposition such as the present one truly representative of the universal brotherhood of man.

The most sincere and heartfelt thanks are due and herewith extended by the Chairman of the Committee on Exhibition to the secretaries and other members of the State committees for the ever-ready and generous assistance which they have so freely given him in the work of organizing the Exhibition and of compiling the catalogue. His special thanks for assistance in getting the manuscript through the press—a most arduous task on account of the limited time—are due to Miss Gertrude B. Knipp.

Inventaire des objets exposés par Monsieur le Professeur Heymans de Gand:

- Un trocart.
- Un scalpel.
- Une tondeuse.
- 25 agrafes.
- Un tube en verre.
- Ceinture et boîte en fer blanc.
- Six tirés-a-part (Archives).
- Deux lattes avec pinces.
- 22 photographies.
- Quatre photographies en couleur.
- Un cadre (facades de l'Institut).
- Un plan de l'Institut.
- Deux flacons segments de roseau.
- Deux flacons tubes de roseau.
- Six flacons tubes de roseau montés.
- Six flacons vaccins en capsule de gélatine.
- Deux flacons vaccins achevés.
- 155 petits flacons contenant pièces anatomiques.
- Une enveloppe inventaires.
- Un fascicule bulletins d'autopsie.
- 231 photographies.
- 18 petits tubes contenant sacs retirés.
- Six petits ballons avec culture dans sac de roseau.
- Deux boîtes pour stérilisation.
- Instruments de vaccination.
- Tubes et sacs de roseau avec bleu de méthylène.
- Sacs vides pour vaccins.
- Echantillons divers: Vaccins, tuberculine brute, tuberculin dialysée, etc.
- Trois toiles peintes.
- Charts.

FROM THE PATHOLOGICAL MUSEUM, MCGILL UNIVERSITY, MONTREAL, CANADA.

Note.—Method of Preservation: The colors of most of these specimens have been preserved by the method of Kayserling; a few kept only in formalin have been added on account of their pathological interest.

The skilful mounting displayed is the work of Mr. E. L. Judah, the College Preparator.

SERIES I.

Tuberculous Pericarditis.

(Mounted in Upright Jars.)

1. Subacute Tuberculous Pericarditis, Apparently Primary, with Hemorrhagic Exudate (colors preserved). The parietal pericardium is laid open to show a hypertrophied heart lying in a much enlarged pericardial sac, the walls of which are deeply blood-stained, thickened, and lined with young granulation tissue and with shreds of recent fibrin. From a woman, aged twenty-one, ten ounces of blood-stained fluid were removed from the pericardium by aspiration one week before death.
2. Tuberculous Pericarditis with Purulent Exudate. The heart and lungs of an infant. The pericardial sac is laid open to show an enlarged cavity. Its walls are much thickened and are lined with purulent débris. The pericardium, both pleuræ, and the peritoneum contained abundant rich pus.

3. Chronic Tuberculous Pericarditis (colors preserved). Adult heart. Posteriorly the pericardial layers are firmly adherent. Anteriorly the visceral pericardium is enormously thickened by the formation of a layer of granulation tissue, which bears patches of shreddy fibrine pus.

Tuberculosis of the Larynx.

4. Tuberculous Ulceration of the Larynx. The epiglottis, true and false vocal cords, and aryteno-epiglottidean folds are especially involved. Tuberculous perichondritis with deep ulceration of posterior wall.
5. Early Tuberculous Ulceration of Larynx in Infant. Two small follicular erosions of the opposed surfaces of the true vocal cords. From an infant, aged ten days, dying with tuberculosis of intestines (see Spec. No. 28).
6. Tuberculosis of the Trachea. Superficial ulceration of serpiginous character.
7. Tuberculosis of the Trachea. Deep ulceration and perichondritis, with destruction of cartilaginous rings.
8. Hypertrophic Form of Laryngeal Tuberculosis.
9. Hypertrophic Form of Laryngeal Tuberculosis with Extensive Involvement of Under Surface of Epiglottis. From a man, aged twenty-three, dying of chronic ulcerative pulmonary tuberculosis with terminal involvement of larynx and tongue (see Spec. No. 27).

Tuberculosis of the Lung and Pleura.

10. Acute Miliary Tuberculosis of Lung (colors preserved). Section of adult lung riddled with masses of tubercles forming small, discrete, yellowish foci of consolidation, showing beginning caseation. Intervening lung tissue emphysematous.
11. Acute Miliary Tuberculosis of Lung. Caseous Tuberculosis of Mediastinal Glands (colors preserved). Thoracic organs of infant. The voluminous lungs are uniformly riddled with discrete masses of caseating tubercles, varying from a pinhead to a barley-corn in size. There are masses of greatly enlarged lymph-glands about the trachea, one of which is laid open to show caseation and central breaking down. F., aged three. Symptoms of acute miliary tuberculosis set in one month before death, after whooping-cough. Extensive tuberculous involvement of lungs, liver, spleen (see Spec. No. 77), kidneys, pleura, peritoneum, intestines, Fallopian tubes, heart, diaphragm (see Spec. No. 25), and all lymph-glands.
12. Acute Pulmonary Tuberculosis (colors preserved). Coronal section of left lung congested and greatly swollen, especially the upper lobe, which is diffusely infiltrated with caseous tuberculous areas becoming confluent. In lower lobe spread of process by miliary tubercles is seen.
13. Acute Pneumonic Phthisis. Chronic Pleurisy (colors preserved). Section of right lung showing complete caseation (gelatinous pneumonia) of middle lobe and caseous bronchopneumonia of lobular areas

- throughout upper and lower lobes. Lymph-glands at hilus anthracosed and caseous. Pleura thickened with signs of recent inflammation. From a boy, aged eleven. There was also a caseous bronchopneumonia of the left lung (see Spec. No. 73), generalized acute miliary tuberculosis, and tuberculous meningitis.
 15. Acute Pneumonic Phthisis—Ulcerative Type (colors preserved). Left lung laid open to show extensive lobular foci of caseous bronchopneumonia, with central breaking down of larger areas. Intervening lung tissue congested and emphysematous. From a woman, aged thirty-five, who was subjected to a quack starvation treatment on account of a nodule in the left breast (suspected to be cancer, but shown at autopsy to be a fibroid). She lost 45 pounds in two months and acute pulmonary tuberculosis set in, which ran a rapid course. The process in the lungs was severe and wide-spread. The peribronchial glands were caseous.
 16. Acute Pneumonic Phthisis (colors preserved). Apex of right lung from same case as No. 15, laid open to show a large area of consolidation, with caseation and central breaking down.
 18. Chronic Ulcerative Pulmonary Tuberculosis (colors preserved). Half of an enlarged and swollen left lung. Nearly the whole of its upper lobe is occupied by a cavity the size of a large orange which has a blood-stained lining and a gaping vessel projecting from its outer wall, and is bounded below by a thick wall formed of fibrosed lung tissue. The lower lobe shows everywhere recent invasion by caseous tuberculous nodules, and its intervening tissue is extremely emphysematous; many alveoli having coalesced to form large vesicles. The visceral pleura is thickened and the seat of old adhesions. Death from hemoptysis from eroded vessel in large cavity.
 19. Chronic Pulmonary Tuberculosis with Cavitation. Acute Caseous Pneumonia. Sagittal section of right lung. A large cavity occupies half of its upper lobe. The remaining half of this lobe shows diffuse cheesy consolidation and the lower lobe is riddled with multiple lobular foci of bronchopneumonia. A few minute areas in the middle lobe show the onset of the process here also. The pleural layers are thickened and adherent.
 20. Chronic Pulmonary Tuberculosis with Cavitation (colors preserved). Small section of lung showing two cavities lined by dirty grayish débris, one the size of an acorn, the other slightly larger, and traversed

- by trabeculæ. The spread of the tuberculous process in the adjacent lung tissue by multiple miliary nodules is well seen. Chronic pleurisy.
21. Chronic Ulcerative Pulmonary Tuberculosis (colors preserved). Section of lung showing various stages in caseation and cavitation of tuberculous areas. From a woman, aged twenty-nine, dying with extensive tuberculosis of lungs and of the skin over the greater part of the trunk. History of "eczema" of the skin for twenty-seven years.
 22. Chronic Pulmonary Tuberculosis of the Type Known as Fibroid Phthisis. Cirrhosis of the Lung, "Healed" Tuberculosis (colors preserved). A section of lung the seat of extensive fibrosis and anthracosis. There are a few recent tuberculous areas at the apex, which lies to the bottom of the jar. Chronic pleurisy. Anthracotic gland at hilus of lung.
 23. Chronic Pulmonary Tuberculosis. Fibroid Phthisis (colors preserved). Left lung laid open to show whole upper lobe much shrunken and completely fibrosed, consisting of a mass of anthracotic tissue traversed by numerous thick-walled bronchi and gaping vessels. The lower lobe is voluminous, and is somewhat pigmented, but is otherwise normal.
 24. Pseudo-tubercles of Pleura. Section of lung showing the visceral pleura dotted with numerous small, round, opaque, white areas of chronic thickening, each surmounted by an anthracotic zone. (These nodules are not tuberculous and are to be distinguished from this process).
 25. Tuberculous Pleurisy (colors preserved). The diaphragm from same case as Nos. 11 and 17. The pleural surface is studded with large tubercles varying from a pea to a pin-head in size, and irregularly covered with fibrinous exudate.
 26. Bovine Tuberculosis of Pleura (colors preserved). Two large masses taken from the pleural cavity of a cow, in which they lay free just above the diaphragm. They consist of multiple grape-like nodules adherent by inflammatory tissue to form large tumors. The cut surface shows central caseation of individual tumors.

Tuberculosis of the Digestive System.

27. Tuberculous Ulcers of the Tongue. From same case as Spec. No. 9. From a man, aged twenty-three, dying of chronic pulmonary tuberculosis with secondary disease of the larynx.
28. Early Tuberculous Ulcers of Small Intestine in Infant (colors preserved). The Peyer's patches present a superficial invasion resembling the lesions in typhoid fever. From same cases as Spec. No. 5. The illness began the third day after birth with intestinal symptoms. Death on the tenth day. Microscopical section of the ulcers showed definite tubercles and giant-cells.
29. Tuberculous Ulceration of Small Intestine (colors preserved). The ulcers show the transverse arrangement, tuberculated base, indolent edges, and involvement of the serous coat typical of this disease.
30. Tuberculous Ulceration of Small Intestine (colors preserved). Several deep ulcers, transverse in arrangement. One is annular, completely

- surrounding the lumen of the gut. Marked involvement of the serosa.
31. Tuberculous Ulceration of Small Intestine, of Follicular Type (colors preserved). From a youth, aged nineteen, with advanced chronic pulmonary tuberculosis with cavitation, generalized tuberculous ulceration of the intestines. Perforation. Peritonitis. Sudden death.
 32. Tuberculous Ulceration of Large Intestine, Showing Extreme Stages of the Disease. Purulent Peritonitis. (colors preserved).
 33. Chronic Proliferative Inflammation of Tuberculous Origin of Peritoneum Forming Capsule of Spleen (colors preserved). The great omentum is inflamed and is riddled with small tubercles. The inflammatory process is most intense along its free border, which is retracted, thickened, and deeply injected, almost gangrenous, in appearance. From a girl, aged eighteen, with tuberculosis of lungs and Fallopian tubes. Death from abscess of the liver and portal thrombosis, an independent affection.
 36. Tuberculous Peritonitis. Portion of parietal peritoneum showing great thickening of serosa, which is covered with organized exudate studded with miliary tubercles.
 37. Bovine Tuberculosis of Peritoneum. Great omentum of cow covered with projecting, grape-like masses.

Tuberculosis of Ductless Glands.

38. Tuberculosis of Lymph-glands. Larynx and trachea showing great hyperplasia of peritracheal glands with central caseation. From a man, aged nineteen, dying of generalized miliary tuberculosis. Acute process set in three months before death.
39. Tuberculosis of Peribronchial Lymph-glands (colors preserved). Two enlarged glands the size of butternuts lie at the bifurcation of the trachea. Their cut surface shows their fibrocaceous structure. A portion of lung presents a large caseous area of chronic tuberculosis, which is surrounded by a fibrosed lung tissue. From a youth, aged eighteen, dying of tuberculosis of lungs, spleen, and liver, and generalized tuberculosis of the peritoneum resembling the bovine type.
40. Primary Tuberculosis of Peritracheal and Mediastinal Lymph-glands. Miliary tuberculosis of lung. Thoracic organs show masses of greatly enlarged glands surrounding the trachea, and with the thymus press down upon the heart and root of lungs. Two of these are laid open from behind and show fibrous hyperplasia and beginning caseation. Generalized miliary tuberculosis of lungs, liver and spleen, kidney, and mesenteric glands.
41. Tuberculosis of Peritracheal Glands, Caseation and Anthracosis, but Little Hyperplasia.
42. Tuberculosis of Peritracheal Glands Showing Congestion and Multiple Caseous Foci, but Little Enlargement (colors preserved).
43. Caseous Tuberculosis of Mesenteric Glands. Portion of mesentery, between the layers of which numerous enlarged glands of varying size project prominently forward. From same case as Spec. No. 38.

44. Caseous Tuberculosis of Mesenteric Glands. A number of enlarged glands firmly united by old inflammatory tissue to form large tumors. The cut surface shows extensive caseation of the individual glands, the free (peritoneal) surface numerous miliary tubercles.
45. Bovine Tuberculosis of Retroperitoneal Glands (colors preserved). A mass of enlarged glands from the abdomen of a cow. It is the size of a goose's egg, and its cut surface shows extensive calcification.
46. Miliary Tuberculosis of Spleen (colors preserved). Section of organ of about normal size, riddled throughout with fine pin-point, whitish nodules.
47. Tuberculosis of Spleen (colors preserved). A small organ the seat of passive congestion, riddled with caseous areas from pin-point to hempseed in size. The nodules project a little above the capsule, and there is slight peripleuritis.
48. Miliary Tuberculosis of Spleen (colors preserved). Section of dark-colored organ, slightly reduced in size, dotted with discrete caseous nodules, the largest the size of a pea. Capsule thickened and inflamed. From a patient, aged thirty-one, dying of tuberculous pleuritis and meningitis, miliary tuberculosis of lungs, spleen, kidney, caseous tuberculosis of retroperitoneal and pelvic lymph-glands.
49. Tuberculosis of Adrenal and of Kidney in Addison's Disease (colors preserved). In the upper part of the jar is a slice through the enlarged and caseous adrenal. It is simply a caseous mass with fibrous hyaline capsule. Below are two transverse sections from the upper part of the kidney showing large tuberculous abscesses involving the whole pyramids and extending to the cortex, filled with breaking-down caseous débris.
50. Tuberculosis of Adrenal in Addison's Disease (colors preserved). The organ is laid open longitudinally and shows multiple caseous foci throughout its substance.

Tuberculosis of Urogenital System.

Nos. 51 to 58 are a series of specimens of primary and secondary tuberculosis in kidneys removed by nephrectomy on a diagnosis based upon an investigation of the functional value of the organs by separation and comparison of the two urines obtained by ureteral catheterization. Investigator, Dr. R. P. Campbell, Montreal.

1. Primary Tuberculosis of Right Kidney (colors preserved). Enlarged organ laid open. The cortex is the seat of numerous tuberculous areas formed of masses of miliary tubercles surrounded by a hemorrhagic zone. The pelvis is dilated and shows early tuberculous invasion. The urine from the right (diseased) kidney had sp. gr. 1015, alkaline reaction, urea 1.2 per cent., freezing-point -1.03°C . and contained albumin, sugar, pus, and bacteria; that from the left (healthy) kidney had sp. gr. 1022, alkaline reaction, urea 1.5 per cent., freezing-point -1.65°C ., a little sugar, no albumin, no pus.
52. Acute Tuberculosis of Right Kidney (colors preserved). There is a localized area of disease about 1 inch square in the cortex, consisting of small tubercles raised above the surface and surrounded by a large zone of congestion. Other tuberculous areas at the lower pole were removed at the nephrectomy. From a woman, aged thirty-five. History of renal colic for three months, loss of weight, and pyuria. Definite edema about right ureteral meatus. Urine from right (diseased) kidney showed sp. gr. 1007, urea 1.2 per cent., albumin, and pus; that from the left, sp. gr. 1008, urea 1.3 per cent., no pus nor albumin.

57. Primary Tuberculosis of Left Kidney (colors preserved). The organ is greatly enlarged and is laid open to show a very advanced stage of the disease, its whole substance except a small area at its lower pole being transformed into a system of tuberculous abscesses filled with caseous debris and separated by zones of fibrous tissue. From a woman, aged twenty-four, pain in left side for one year, pyuria, and gradual loss of weight and strength. The left ureteral orifice was ulcerated. The urine from the left (diseased) kidney showed acid reaction, sp. gr. 1007, urea 0.5 per cent., albumin in large quan-

- tity, pus, blood, and tubercle bacilli; from right, acid reaction, sp. gr. 1022, urea 0.2 per cent., trace of albumin, no pus.
59. Secondary Tuberculosis of Kidney (colors preserved). Cortex riddled with multiple caseous areas varying from a pea to a pin-head in size, which project beneath the capsule. Primary disease in lungs.
60. Acute Miliary Tuberculosis of Kidney in Child (colors preserved). Organ is slightly swollen, the cortex springing forward above the medulla, and the seat of stellate injected vessels. Small yellow tubercles are seen on close inspection beneath the capsule. From a case of tuberculous peritonitis and miliary tuberculosis of all organs. Old healed focus in apex of lung.
61. Chronic Tuberculosis of Kidney. "Excretion Tuberculosis." The medulla is the seat of a series of tuberculous abscesses occupying all the pyramids.
62. Chronic Tuberculosis of Kidney, Ureter, and Epididymis. The kidney is reduced to a mere sac, consisting of four or five communicating chambers, its walls lined with caseous debris which contained putty-like, yellowish-white contents at the autopsy. The entire epididymis is caseous. From a man, aged fifty-two. Death from lobar pneumonia.
63. Chronic Tuberculosis of Kidneys. Left organ is enlarged and presents several tuberculous abscess cavities occupying the situation of the pyramids at either pole. Right kidney is atrophied to a small fibrous body, with two small cysts at its lower pole, presenting a healed process.
64. Caseous Tuberculosis of Epididymis (colors preserved).
65. Chronic Tuberculosis of Testicle (colors preserved).

Tuberculosis of Female Genital Organs.

66. Tuberculous Endometritis. Pelvic organs of adult female with uterus laid open to show fungoid caseating mucosa lining its body throughout.
67. Tuberculous Salpingitis (colors preserved). Pelvic organs of female infant. Both tubes are swollen and distorted. The left is the larger, and is plainly seen to be distended with caseous contents, as shown by the yellow color. From the same case as Specs. Nos. 5 and 28.
68. Tuberculous Salpingitis and Peritonitis (colors preserved). Pelvic organs of adult female. Both tubes are swollen and distorted. The right is laid open and shows a thickened, caseous mucosa. The pelvic peritoneum lining the pouch of Douglas, and also that laterally from the uterus, is covered with thick, recent inflammatory exudate, in which lie many tubercles.

69. Double Chronic Pyosalpinx. Both Fallopian tubes removed at operation. Uterine end was distended with caseous material, the right forming a tumor the size of an acorn, the left the size of a walnut. The tubes beyond these tumors are only slightly enlarged at first, but become distended again toward the fimbriated end with similar caseous contents. From a woman, aged thirty-three. At the operation both ovaries and uterus were found to be healthy and were left behind. Recovery.
70. Double Tuberculous Pyosalpinx. Both tubes are enormously distended with caseous material, forming pear-shaped tumors which enlarge gradually toward the fimbriated end. The right is slightly larger than the left. Removed at operation from a married woman, aged twenty-six. Had had three attacks of pelvic pain in the previous six months and occasional fever. No other symptoms. Curetting of uterus showed healthy mucosa. Recovery.
71. Bovine Tuberculosis of Udder of Cow (colors preserved). Cross-section of udder and of tuberculous gland above it, showing tuberculous infiltration and extensive caseous degeneration.

Tuberculosis of Bone.

72. Kyphosis of Spine with Ankylosis of Dorsal Vertebrae. Extensive evidences of old inflammatory process and new bone formation involving all the articulations, probably tuberculous in origin.
73. Section of Foot Showing Tuberculosis of Astragalus.

Series II.

(Petri, Pasteur, and clock-glass specimens, colors preserved in all.)

74. Acute Pneumonic Phthisis. Caseous Bronchopneumonia. Section of lung showing multiple lobular foci of caseous bronchopneumonia.
75. Acute Pneumonic Phthisis. Lung of child laid open to show multiple lobular foci of caseous bronchopneumonia. Also one large area of cheesy consolidation at apex of lower lobe. Female infant, aged six months. Born in miserable tenement of unhealthy parents. Underfed with improper food, resulting in general wasting. Acute generalized miliary tuberculosis of all organs. Caseation of mesenteric, retroperitoneal, and bronchial glands. Tuberculous ulceration of intestine.
76. Tuberculosis of Liver. Section of organ showing ill-defined caseous nodules, one the size of a marrow-fat pea.
77. Acute Miliary Tuberculosis of Spleen of Infant. The organ is greatly enlarged and riddled with large caseous areas, many of which show beginning of breaking-down in center. They project above the surface of the organ and are surrounded by hemorrhagic zones. From same case as Specs. Nos. 11 and 25.
78. Bovine Tuberculosis of Spleen. Hyaloseritis. Section of spleen of cow showing extensive caseation of nearly the whole substance.

Capsule is covered with thick, laminated, inflammatory tissue which has undergone hyaline change.

79. Acute Miliary Tuberculosis of Kidney.
 80. Chronic Tuberculosis of Kidney. Advanced ulceration in pyramids of medulla and extensive caseation. Spread of process in cortex by miliary tubercles.
 81. Tuberculoma of Brain. Section of cerebrum showing circumscribed tumor, 3.5 cm. in diameter, of fibrous structure, with caseous débris in meshes.
 82. Tuberculosis of Iris. Section of eyeball mounted as a microscopical slide. Two well-marked tubercles are seen on the iris by a low-power lens.

GERMANY.

Die Deutsche Abteilung der Ausstellung ist im Rahmen eines Tuberkulose-Wandermuseums gehalten. Sie umfasst dementsprechend:

1. Die Ursachen der Tuberkulose.
2. Die Ausbreitung der Tuberkulose.
3. Die Verhütung der Tuberkulose.

4. Die Behandlung der Tuberkulose.
5. Die Belehrung über die Tuberkulose.

Die Vorbereitungen zur Beschickung der Ausstellung sind vom Deutschen Zentral-Komitee zur Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose (Generalsekretär Prof. Dr. Nietner, Berlin) durchgeführt worden. Der folgende Katalog ist im Auftrage dieses Komitees von Stabsarzt Dr. Klehmet, der das Kaiserliche Gesundheitsamt betreffende Abschnitt von Regierungsrat Dr. Hamel bearbeitet worden.

VERZEICHNIS DER AUSGESTELLTEN GEGENSTÄNDE, GEORDNET NACH AUSSTELLERN.

(A) DEUTSCHES ZENTRAL-KOMITEE ZUR BEKÄMPFUNG DER TUBERKULOSE, BERLIN.

Das unter dem Protektorat ihrer Majestät der Kaiserin und Königin stehende Deutsche Zentral-Komitee zur Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose verfolgt den Zweck, im Gebiete des Deutschen Reichs die für die Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose als Volkskrankheit geeigneten Massnahmen anzuregen und zu fördern, insbesondere auf die Errichtung von Heilstätten für unbemittelte und minderbemittelte Lungenkranke hinzuwirken und erforderlichenfalls die Errichtung solcher Heilstätten durch Gewährung von Zuschüssen zu den Kosten der Begründung zu unterstützen. Zu den Kosten der Unterhaltung der Heilstätten werden Zuschüsse in der Regel nicht gewährt, vielmehr verlangt das Zentral-Komitee, dass die Aufbringung der hierzu erforderlichen Kosten durch andere Faktoren, wie Lokalvereine, Vereine vom Roten Kreuz, Kommunalverbände, Versicherungsanstalten, Armenverbände, private Wohltätigkeit u. s. w. gesichert ist.

1896 unter dem Namen "Deutsches Zentral-Komitee zur Errichtung von Heilstätten für Lungenkranke" gegründet, hat es in allen Teilen des Reichs das Interesse für die Sache geweckt und belebt. Hiervon zeugt die grosse Zahl der dem speziellen Zweck der Fürsorge für Lungenkranke dienenden Vereine, deren Bestrebungen, soweit sie unbemittelten Kranken helfen wollen, an den Landes-Versicherungsanstalten eine lebhafte Stütze finden. Diese sichern durch die Überweisung ihrer versicherten Heilbedürftigen wesentlich die Unterhaltung der Heilstätten. Auf dieser Verbindung der Interessen der gemeinnützigen Vereinigungen mit denjenigen gesetzlicher Institutionen beruht in der Hauptsache die schnelle und günstige Entwicklung der Lungenheilstätten-Bewegung in Deutschland.

Im Laufe der Jahre erweiterten und vermehrten sich die Aufgaben des Zentral-Komitees. Schon frühzeitig wurde die Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose durch die Wohnungsfürsorge in Angriff genommen und allmählich wurden alle vorbeugenden Massnahmen in den Kreis der Arbeiten einbezogen. Weiterhin wurde die Heilstättenfürsorge ergänzt durch die Familienunterstützung und den Arbeitsnachweis für die aus den Heilstätten entlassenen Lungenkranke, deren sich vorzugsweise die Vereine annahmen. 1899 organisierte das Komitee den denkwürdigen ersten "Kongress zur Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose als Volkskrankheit" in Berlin, dem die weiteren internationalen Kongresse folgten. Für Aufklärung des Volkes wurde neben der von den Kongressen ausgehenden Belehrung durch Anregung von Vorträgen, durch Verbreitung populärer Schriften, Merkblätter und Plakate, und durch Einrichtung von Tuberkulose-Museen gesorgt.

Nachdem das Zentral-Komitee erstmalig 1901 einen Informationskursus für die Chefarzte der Heilstätten veranstaltet hatte, wurde diese Einrichtung seit 1903 zu Tuberkulose-Ärzteversammlungen erweitert, die seitdem jährlich stattfinden und zur Klärung und Erledigung der schwebenden Fragen wesentlich beitragen.

1902 gründete sich gelegentlich der vom 22.-26. Oktober in Berlin abgehaltenen I. internationalen Tuberkulose-Konferenz die "Internationale Vereinigung gegen die Tuberkulose" mit dem Sitz in Berlin.

Das Zentral-Komitee trat weiterhin für die Errichtung von Auskunfts- und Fürsorgestellen für Lungenkranke ein, die seit 1903 in zahlreichen Städten Deutschlands vorhanden sind und sich als ein Hauptglied in der Kette der Massnahmen zur Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose vorzüglich bewährt haben. Zur Versorgung der Schwindsüchtigen in vorgeschrittenem Stadium wurde durch Einrichtung von Invalidenheimen und Pflegestätten vorgegangen. In den letzten Jahren wurde eine grosse Reihe von Walderholungsstätten errichtet, die den aus den Heilstätten Entlassenen den Übergang in ihre Berufstätigkeit erleichtern sollen. Als neueste Errungenschaft auf dem Gebiete der Tuberkulose-Bekämpfung ist noch die Waldschule zu nennen. Weiterhin wurde für tuberkulöse und Tuberkulose-bedrohte Kinder durch Entsendung in Ferienkolonien, Seehospize und Solbäder Sorge getragen.

In allen Landesteilen hat das Zentral-Komitee Ausschüsse, die sich an der Arbeit beteiligen. Seit 1907 schliesslich hat sich das Komitee neben den bisherigen Gebieten auch der besonderen Bekämpfung des Lupus zugewandt.

An Tuberkulose-Anstalten sind in Deutschland zur Zeit 99 Volkshelstäten mit 10,539 Betten (6,500 für Männer und 4,539 für Frauen) sowie 36 Privatanstalten mit 2,175 Betten vorhanden, so dass jährlich rund 50,500 Personen behandelt werden können. Für tuberkulöse Kinder sorgen ausserdem 18 Anstalten mit 837 und für Tuberkulose-bedrohte, skrofulöse Kinder 73 Anstalten mit 6,843 Betten. 175 Auskunfts- und Fürsorgestellen für Lungenkranke sind in Betrieb, ausserdem 534 allein für das Grossherzogtum Baden. Ferner dienen 82 Walderholungsstätten, 3 Waldschulen, 2 ländliche Kolonien, 13 Invalidenheime und Pflegestätten, 13 Genesungsheime für Tuberkulose und 18 besondere Lupusstationen den Zwecken der Tuberkulose-Bekämpfung.

No. 1.—Drei schematische Abbildungen, darstellend das Eindringen von Tuberkelbazillen in ein Lungenbläschen.

- 1.—Normales Lungenbläschen mit erster Tuberkelbazillen-Ansiedelung. An der Innenwand des Lungenbläschens einige Rundzellen, Beginn der Entzündung, wenige rot gefärbte Tuberkelbazillen.
- 2.—Lungenbläschen mit Entzündung durch Tuberkelbazillen. Die ganze Innenwand des Lungenbläschens mit Rundzellen ausgekleidet, freie Eiterzellen, hochgradige Entzündung, zahlreiche Tuberkelbazillen.
- 3.—Käsige Zerstörung eines Lungenbläschens. Das Lungenbläschen mit Zerfallsprodukten ausgefüllt, in ihnen Eiterzellen und Tuberkelbazillen.

- 2.—Drei schematische Abbildungen, darstellend verschiedene Stadien der Lungentuberkulose.
- 1.—Geschlossene Tuberkulose der Lunge, keine Verbindung mit dem Luftwege. Im Lungengewebe zwei Tuberkel, ohne Verbindung mit dem Bronchus. In diesem Stadium keine Ansteckungsgefahr, da infektiöses Material nicht durch die Luftwege nach aussen befördert werden kann.
 - 2.—Offene Tuberkulose der Lunge, Verbindung mit dem Luftwege. Drei Tuberkel im Lungengewebe, einer in der Bronchialwand, ein anderer ein Lungenbläschen ganz ausfüllend. Die letzteren beiden bedingen eine Ansteckungsmöglichkeit, da von ihnen tuberkelbazillenhaltiges Material ausgehustet werden kann.
 - 3.—Miliar-Tuberkulose. Das ganze Lungengewebe mit hirsekorngrossen Tuberkeln durchsetzt. Schnell fortschreitende Form der Tuberkulose.
- 3.—Graphische Darstellungen, betreffend die Gesamtsterblichkeit und die Tuberkulose-Sterblichkeit in Preussen.
- 1.—Gesamt-Sterblichkeit in Preussen 1875 bis 1906. Dauernder, ununterbrochener Rückgang von 263,3 von je 10,000 Lebenden im Jahre 1875 bis auf 180,4 von je 10,000 Lebenden im Jahre 1906.
 - 2.—Tuberkulose-Sterblichkeit in Preussen 1875 bis 1906. Von je 10,000 Lebenden starben 31,90 im Jahre 1875 an Tuberkulose. Während sich diese Zahl die folgenden 10 Jahre hindurch annähernd auf gleicher Höhe hält—31,14 im Jahre 1886—macht sich von da ab infolge der an die 1882 erfolgte Entdeckung des Tuberkelbazillus sich anschliessenden Bekämpfungsmassregeln ein rapider Abfall der Sterblichkeit geltend, der seit dem Einsetzen der Heilstättenbewegung 1896 noch deutlicher wird. 1906 starben nur noch 17,26 von je 10,000 Lebenden an Tuberkulose.
 - 3.—Tuberkulose- und Gesamt-Sterblichkeit in Preussen in den Altersklassen von 10 bis 60 Jahren nach dem Durchschnitt der Jahre 1891 bis 1901. Die Gesamtsterblichkeit von je 10,000 Lebenden nimmt mit dem Alter ständig zu, von 34,3 in den Altersklassen 10—15 Jahre bis auf 228,6 in den Altersklassen 50—60 Jahre. Ebenso nimmt auch die Tuberkulose-Sterblichkeit mit dem Alter dauernd zu. Während aber die Todesfälle an Tuberkulose in den Altersklassen 10—15 Jahre nur etwa $\frac{1}{5}$, in den Altersklassen 40 bis 50 Jahre nur etwa $\frac{1}{3}$ und in den Altersklassen 50 bis 60 Jahre wiederum nur etwa $\frac{1}{3}$ aller Todesfälle ausmachen, betragen sie in den Altersklassen 15—40 Jahre fast die Hälfte aller Todesfälle, und zwar nähern sie sich dieser Zahl am meisten in den Altersklassen 20 bis 30 Jahre. Also gerade im jugendlich-erwerbsfähigen Alter fordert die Krankheit im Verhältnis zur Gesamtsterblichkeit die meisten Opfer;—eine auch in anderen Bundesstaaten des Deutschen Reiches beobachtete Tatsache. Der immer schärfer werdende und von der Menschheit immer grössere Anstrengungen fordernde allgemeine wirtschaftliche Kampf spannt die Körper- und Geisteskräfte der einzelnen Erwerbstätigen immer heftiger an, und dieser die tuberkulöse Infektion begünstigenden Erschöpfung der Kräfte erliegt das erwerbsfähige Alter gerade in jüngeren Jahren.

- 4.—Die Sterblichkeit an Tuberkulose in Preussen in den Jahren 1876—1906 nach Altersklassen und Geschlecht der Gestorbenen, berechnet auf je 10,000 Lebende. Während, wie auch Tabelle 3 zeigt, die Tuberkulose-Sterblichkeit an sich mit dem Alter zunimmt, so macht sich doch in dem 40jährigen Berichtszeitraum in allen Altersklassen ein ständiger Rückgang der Todesfälle an Tuberkulose bemerkbar, der seinerseits mit zunehmendem Lebensalter wächst. Während der Rückgang in den Altersklassen von 10—15 Jahren nur unbedeutend ist, ist er erheblicher im jugendlich-erwerbsfähigen Alter von 15—30 Jahren, besonders beim männlichen Geschlecht von 29,28 im Jahre 1876 bis auf 18,09 im Jahre 1906. In den Altersklassen von 30—60 Jahren sind die Todesfälle beim männlichen wie beim weiblichen Geschlecht auf die Hälfte reduziert, über 60 Jahre sogar auf ein Drittel.
- No. 4.—12 anatomisch-pathologische Präparate von menschlicher und tierischer Tuberkulose. Sie stellen die verschiedensten Grade der chronischen Lungentuberkulose dar: Peribronchiale Tuberkel, Miliartuberkulose, käsige und ulceröse Tuberkulose, Kavernenbildung; ferner Perlsucht des Rindes mit Auflagerungen bis Haselnussgrösse auf dem Pleuraüberzug der Lunge.
- No. 5.—12 Röntgenbilder von verschiedenen Stadien der Lungentuberkulose. Diapositive zur Betrachtung bei durchfallendem Licht in einem Gestell. Die Unterschriften unter den Bildern geben nähere Erläuterungen.
- No. 6.—18 Photographien von Lupuskranken. Ebenfalls Diapositive in einem Transparent-Gestell. Sie zeigen teilweise die Lupusfälle vor und nach der Behandlung. Näheres ergeben die Unterschriften unter den Bildern.
- No. 7.—2 Modelle der Brustorgane nach Prof. Benninghoven und Sommer. Sie sind zum Teil zerlegbar und lassen auf Querschnitten den Bau der Lungen und des Herzens erkennen.
- No. 8.—3 Modelle von gesunden und kariösen Zähnen nach Prof. Benninghoven und Sommer. Sie sind zerlegbar und zeigen den Bau der Schneide- und Backzähne, sowie das Vordringen der kariösen Zerstörung.
- No. 9.—3 Abbildungen, darstellend die sachgemässe Benutzung der Zahnbürste, wichtig für die Veranschaulichung der Mundpflege.
- 1.—Führung der Zahnbürste beim Putzen der Vorderzähne.
 - 2.—Führung der Zahnbürste beim Putzen der äusseren Mahlzahnflächen.
 - 3.—Richtige Art des Zahnputzens an den Innenflächen der Zähne.
- No. 10.—4 verschiedene Modelle von Spuckflaschen für Tuberkulöse.
- 1.—Grösseres und kleineres Format der Dettweiler'schen Taschenflasche, von Gebrüder Noelle-Lüdenscheid. Der durch Federdruck zu öffnende, mit Gummidichtung versehene Deckel verschliesst einen ins Innere der Flasche führenden konischen Trichter. Die aus blauem Glas gefertigte Flasche ist durch ein abschraubbares Verschlussstück an ihrem unteren Ende zu entleeren.

- 2.—Spuckflasche "Diskret" von C. Hülsmann, Freiburg i. B., mit ähnlicher Einrichtung, aber mit seitlicher Öffnung, aus vernickeltem Metall, flach, bequem in der Brusttasche zu tragen.
 - 3.—Universal-Taschenspuckflasche von Berger und List, Hannover. Gläserne Flasche mit Gummideckel in Blechhülse, deren Deckel beim Verschluss den Gummideckel auf die Glasflasche presst.
- No. 11.—4 verschiedene Spucknapfe und Speibeckenständer.
- 1.—Kreuz-Spucknapf. Verschluss mit Deckel, der durch Treten mit dem Fuss geöffnet wird. Im Gestell ein auswechselbarer Napf, der mit Flüssigkeit gefüllt und zur bequemen Entnahme mit Henkel versehen ist.
 - 2.—Spucknapf Charybdis von der Gesellschaft Industria in Köln. Beim Treten wird der Napf aus einer mit Flüssigkeit gefüllten weiteren Schale gehoben. Die Auswurfsballen fließen in diese durch die Schlitze des dachartig erhöhten Napfdeckels ab. Beim Senken des Napfes werden die Schlitze durch eine sich hebende, in der Flüssigkeit schwimmende Platte geschlossen, so dass der Auswurf unter dem Deckel festgehalten wird und unsichtbar bleibt.
 - 3.—Spucknapf mit hohem hölzernem Handgriff zum Verschliessen des Deckels, vom Kranken bequem im Stehen zu handhaben.
 - 4.—Gläsernes Speibecken mit abnehmbarem Deckel in hohem Ständer für liegende oder sitzende Kranke.
- No. 12.—Photographie von Robert Koch, dem Entdecker des Tuberkelbazillus, Wirklichem Geheimen Rat, Exzellenz.
- No. 13.—46 Photographien von Lungenheilanstalten, und zwar Heilstätten, Kinderheilstätten, Walderholungsstätten, Invalidenheimen, Kindererholungsheimen, Auskunfts- und Fürsorgestellen.
- No. 14.—Abbildungen und Pläne von Wohnhäusern für tuberkulöse Arbeiter von der Firma Basse und Selve zu Altena in Westfalen.

Diese Firma hat sich neben der Errichtung anderer Tuberkulose-Anstalten die Erbauung von Wohnhäusern für tuberkulöse Arbeiter und deren lungenkranke Angehörige angelegen sein lassen. Diese alleinstehenden, am Walde und in möglichst sonniger Lage belegenen Häuser sind entweder einstöckig und dann für eine Familie bestimmt, oder zweistöckig und enthalten dann Wohnungen für 6 Familien. Jede Wohnung umfasst ausser 2—3 für die gesunden Familienmitglieder bestimmten Wohnräumen und grosser Küche ein von diesen Räumen ganz getrenntes, besonders geräumiges, heizbares und gut ventiliertes Zimmer mit daran anschliessender Liegehalle und besonderem Abort für den Lungenkranke. So ist das Prinzip möglicher Isolierung des Tuberkulösen durchgeführt, ohne dass dieser ganz getrennt von seiner Familie zu leben gezwungen ist.

- 1.—3 Abbildungen von Wohnhäusern für lungenkranke Arbeiter.
- 2.—3 Grundrisse von Wohnhäusern für lungenkranke Arbeiter.
- 3.—Abhandlung über Wohnungen für lungenkranke Arbeiter, in deutscher und englischer Sprache, je 200 Exemplare zur Verteilung.

- No. 15.—Druckschriften des Zentral-Komitees, durchschnittlich je 30 Exemplare, zur Ansicht und Verteilung.
- 1.—Geschäftsberichte 1904—1908, letzterer in 250 Exemplaren.
 - 2.—Verhandlungen in den Generalversammlungen 1904—1907.
 - 3.—Verhandlungen in den Ausschusssitzungen 1905 bis 1907.
 - 4.—Verhandlungen in den Versammlungen der Tuberkulose-Ärzte 1904—1907.
 - 5.—Denkschrift von Prof. B. Fränkel, Berlin, 1905, über den Stand der Tuberkulose-Bekämpfung in Deutschland.
 - 6.—Belehrung von Prof. C. Fränkel, Halle a. S., über das Wesen und die Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose.
 - 7.—Vortrag von Prof. Neisser, Breslau, über die Bedeutung der Lupuskrankheit und die Notwendigkeit ihrer Bekämpfung.
 - 8.—Plakat: "Deutsche Mütter, schützt eure Kinder vor der Tuberkulose."
 - 9.—Belehrung von C. Röse, Dresden, über die Zahn- und Mundpflege.
 - 10.—Festgabe: "Die Tuberkulose, ihre Ausbreitung und Bekämpfung im Deutschen Reiche," dargeboten vom Kaiserlichen Gesundheitsamt und vom Zentral-Komitee zur Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose. Vgl. No. 20 des Katalogs.

(B) BEHÖRDEN.

(a) Kaiserliches Gesundheitsamt Berlin.

Das im April 1876 als eine Reichsbehörde errichtete Kaiserliche Gesundheitsamt hat auf dem Gebiete der Medizinal- und Veterinärpolizei den Reichskanzler in der Vorbereitung der Gesetzgebung und in der Ausübung des Aufsichtsrechts, insbesondere hinsichtlich der Ausführung der Gesetze, zu unterstützen. Ihm liegt ferner die Bearbeitung der Medizinal- und Veterinärstatistik Deutschlands ob, sowie die Nachprüfung und Ergänzung bedeutsamer wissenschaftlicher Forschungsergebnisse durch eigene experimentelle Arbeiten. Seine gutachtliche Tätigkeit wird nicht nur seitens des ihm unmittelbar übergeordneten Reichsamtes des Innern, sondern auch von den übrigen Reichsbehörden in Anspruch genommen. Innerhalb des Gesundheitsamts sind 4 unter je einem Direktor stehende Abteilungen gebildet, nämlich die hygienisch-chemische, die medizinische, die Veterinär- und die in einem besonderen Anstaltsgebäude untergebrachte bakteriologische Abteilung. Mit Ausnahme der medizinischen Abteilung, welcher die mehr als 60,000 Bände und 400 Zeitschriften umfassende Bibliothek angegliedert ist, verfügen die übrigen Abteilungen über zahlreiche Laboratorien, die bakteriologische Abteilung u. a. auch über ein solches für Protozoenforschung.

Mit dem Gesundheitsamte ist der Reichs-Gesundheitsrat verbunden, welcher gemäss §43 des Gesetzes, betr. die Bekämpfung gemeingefährlicher Krankheiten, vom 30. Juni 1900, das Gesundheitsamt bei der Erfüllung der ihm zugewiesenen Aufgaben zu unterstützen hat. Die zur Zeit 92 Mitglieder des Reichs-Gesundheitsrats, dessen Vorsitz der Präsident des Gesundheitsamts inne hat, werden vom Bundesrat auf je fünf Jahre gewählt; zu den Sitzungen treten in der Regel nicht sämtliche Mitglieder, sondern nur ein-zelne Ausschüsse des Reichs Gesundheitsrats zusammen, deren zur Zeit 9 bestehen.

Die Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose ist nicht reichsgesetzlich geregelt, vielmehr liegt nach Massgabe der staatsrechtlichen Gliederung des Deutschen Reichs die Anordnung der gegen sie zu ergreifenden Massnahmen an erster Stelle den einzelnen Bundesregierungen ob. Nichtsdestoweniger hat das Kaiserliche Gesundheitsamt des öfteren Gelegenheit genommen, bei den auf die Unterdrückung dieser verheerenden Volkskrankheit hinielenden Bestrebungen sich wirksam zu betätigen. So erfolgte u. a. im Jahre 1882 die Entdeckung des Tuberkelbazillus durch Robert Koch als damaligen Kaiserlichen Regierungsrat in den Laboratorien des Gesundheitsamts. Auf eine Anregung des Gesundheitsamts zurückzuführen ist ferner jene denkwürdige, unter dem Vorsitz des Reichskanzlers, Fürsten zu Hohenlohe-Schillingsfürst, am 21. November 1895 abgehaltene Beratung über die Durchführung einer planmässigen Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose, in welcher die Begründung des Deutschen Zentral-Komitees zur Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose in die Wege geleitet wurde. Zu Beginn des Jahres 1896 wurde eine im Gesundheitsamt bearbeitete Denkschrift, welche die gesundheitliche und soziale Bedeutung der Heilstättenfürsorge darlegte, den in Betracht kommenden Staats- und Verwaltungsbehörden sowie den Reichs- und Landtagsabgeordneten unterbreitet. Im gleichen Jahre wurden auf wissenschaftlicher Grundlage sich aufbauende statistische Erhebungen über die in den deutschen Lungenheilstätten erzielten Erfolge vom Gesundheitsamt eingeleitet. Hinsichtlich der Nachhaltigkeit der erzielten Erfolge sind diese zur Zeit noch nicht abgeschlossen, und werden zu dem Zwecke die zur Entlassung gekommenen Heilstättenpfleglinge fortlaufend in jährlichen Zwischenräumen ärztlichen Nachuntersuchungen unterzogen.

Des weiteren sind im Gesundheitsamte umfassende die Tuberkulose betreffende bakteriologische Untersuchungen ausgeführt worden; so wurde namentlich auch auf Anregung Robert Kochs eine Nachprüfung seiner auf dem Londoner Tuberkulosekongress im Jahre 1901 vertretenen Anschauungen über die Beziehungen der Tuberkulose des Menschen zu derjenigen des Rindes vorgenommen. Diese letzteren Untersuchungen, welche zur Zeit noch fort dauern, sind nach einem besonderen, vom Unterausschuss für Tuberkulose des Reichs-Gesundheitsrats aufgestellten Arbeitsplane durchgeführt worden. Ihre Ergebnisse, wie auch diejenigen der statistischen Erhebungen über die Heilstättenerfolge sind in den Tuberkulose-Arbeiten aus dem Kaiserlichen Gesundheitsamt, Heft 1 bis 9, niedergelegt worden.

Für eine weitgehende Volksaufklärung trug das Gesundheitsamt durch Ausgabe eines Tuberkulose-Merkblattes Sorge, welches bisher eine Verbreitung von mehr als zwei Millionen Exemplaren erlangt hat.

Insgesamt sind im Gesundheitsamt bisher die folgenden wissenschaftlichen Arbeiten über Tuberkulose angefertigt worden:

- Koch, R. Die Ätiologie der Tuberkulose. Mitteilungen aus dem Kaiserlichen Gesundheitsamt. Band II, S. 1—88.
- Würzburg, A. Über den Einfluss des Alters und des Geschlechts auf die Sterblichkeit an Lungenschwindsucht. Statistischer Beitrag zur Klarstellung der Entwicklungs- und Vorbereitungsbedingungen dieser Krankheit. Mitteilungen aus dem K. G. A. II, 89—125.

- 1.—Figur 1, 2 und 3. Drei Säulen, darstellend das Anwachsen der Bevölkerung im Gebiete des jetzigen Deutschen Reiches von 1816 bis 1905.

Die Einwohnerzahl im Gebiete des jetzigen Deutschen Reiches belief sich im Jahre 1816 (Fig. 1) auf 24 833 000. Im Jahre 1855 (Fig. 2) betrug sie bereits 36 114 000 und im Jahre 1905 (Fig. 3) 60 641 000. Innerhalb eines Zeitraums von 89 Jahren hat sich somit die Zahl der Einwohner im Reichsgebiete über das Doppelte (um 244%) vermehrt.

- 2.—Figuren 4, 5 und 6. Drei Zylinder, welche den braunen Sockeln der dahinter befindlichen Säulen entsprechen und die Zunahme der grossstädtischen Bevölkerung im Gebiete des jetzigen Deutschen Reiches von 1816 bis 1905 veranschaulichen.

Während im Jahre 1816 (Fig. 4) im Reichsgebiete nur 2 Grossstädte, d. h. Städte mit 100 000 und mehr Einwohnern, vorhanden waren, nämlich Berlin und Hamburg, bestanden deren 6 im Jahre 1855 (Fig. 5) und 41 im Jahre 1905 (Fig. 6). In der gleichen Zeit stieg die Zahl ihrer Einwohner von 307 000 auf 1 095 000 und 11 509 000, oder von 1,2% der Gesamtbevölkerung im Jahre 1816 auf 3% im Jahre 1855 und 19% im Jahre 1905.

- 3.—Figuren 7 und 8. Zwei kreisförmige Scheiben, deren farbige Sektoren die Altersgliederung der lebenden Bevölkerung des Deutschen Reiches nach den Ergebnissen der Volkszählung vom 1. Dezember 1905 und die Altersverhältnisse der im Jahre 1905 Gestorbenen erkennen lassen.

4.—Figuren 9 bis 16. Acht Zylinder mit verstärktem Sockel, darstellend die Häufigkeit der Todesfälle an Lungentuberkulose (Höhe des roten Sockels der Säulen) im Vergleich zur Gesamtsterblichkeit (ganze Höhe der Säulen) in den Altersklassen von 0—15, 15—30, 30—60 und 60—70 Jahren, getrennt nach Geschlechtern. Berechnet für 1905—1906.

Man erkennt, wie bei den Männern (Fig. 9, 10, 11, 12) die Tuberkulosesterblichkeit bis zum 70. Jahre mit jeder Altersklasse zunimmt.

Es starben an Lungentuberkulose von je 10 000 lebenden männlichen Personen

im Alter von 0—15 Jahren.....	5
“ “ “ 15—30 “.....	18
“ “ “ 30—60 “.....	29
“ “ “ 60—70 “.....	38

Bei den weiblichen Personen (Fig. 13, 14, 15, 16) ist der scharfe Anstieg der Tuberkulosesterblichkeit in der Altersklasse von 15—30 Jahren noch deutlicher ausgeprägt als bei den Männern; indessen erfährt hier in den beiden folgenden Altersklassen die Tuberkulosesterblichkeit keine wesentliche Änderung mehr.

Es starben von je 10 000 lebenden weiblichen Personen an Lungentuberkulose

Im Alter von 0—15 Jahren.....	7
“ “ “ 15—30 “.....	22
“ “ “ 30—60 “.....	21
“ “ “ 60—70 “.....	23

Ganz anders, als die Tuberkulosesterblichkeit, verhält sich die allgemeine Sterblichkeit. Diese ist bei Männern und Frauen am geringsten in der Altersklasse von 15—30 Jahren, hingegen in der jüngsten Altersklasse von 0—15 Jahren nächst der Altersklasse von 60—70 Jahren am grössten. Hierbei hat der Umstand, dass in der Altersklasse von 15—30 Jahren die niedrigste allgemeine Sterblichkeit und eine verhältnismässig hohe Tuberkulosesterblichkeit zusammentreffen, zur Folge, dass von allen in dieser Altersklasse vorkommenden Todesfällen erheblich mehr als ein Drittel—nämlich 39,3% bei den Männern und 46,5% bei den Frauen—auf Lungentuberkulose beruhen.

5.—Figuren 17, 18 und 19. Drei sechseckige Prismen, darstellend die Häufigkeit der Todesfälle an Lungentuberkulose in Grossstädten (Orten mit 100 000 und mehr Einwohnern), Mittelstädten (Orten mit 40 000 bis 100 000 Einwohnern) und kleineren Gemeinden (Orten bis zu 40 000 Einwohnern) im Jahre 1905.

Der untere rote Abschnitt der Prismen zeigt an, wie viele unter je 1000 Todesfällen jedesmal durch Lungentuberkulose verursacht waren.

Von je 1000 Todesfällen beruhten auf Lungentuberkulose

in den Grosstädten (Fig. 17)	109
in den Mittelstädten (Fig. 18)	101
in den kleineren Gemeinden (Fig. 19)	86

Es bestehen somit zwischen den Grosstädten, Mittelstädten und den kleineren Gemeinden in dem Anteil der Tuberkulose Todesfälle an der Gesamtzahl aller Sterbefälle nur verhältnismässig geringe Unterschiede. Am günstigsten gestellt erscheinen dabei die kleineren Gemeinden.

6.—Figuren 20 bis 23. Vier vierseitige Prismen, darstellend die Bedeutung der Lungentuberkulose und der sonstigen Krankheiten der Atmungsorgane als Invaliditätsursache in der Landwirtschaft und Industrie.

In der Landwirtschaft waren in der Altersklasse von 20—50 Jahren von je 100 Invalidisierungen bei den Männern 20, bei den Frauen 12 durch Lungentuberkulose bedingt. Durch Lungentuberkulose und sonstige Erkrankungen der Atmungsorgane wurden bei den Männern 34%, bei den Frauen 22% der Invalidisierungen verursacht.

In der Industrie dagegen waren in dieser Altersklasse von je 100 Invalidisierungen annähernd doppelt so viele, nämlich 36 bei den Männern und 32 bei den Frauen, auf Lungentuberkulose zurückzuführen. Durch Lungentuberkulose und sonstige Erkrankungen der Atmungsorgane waren hier bei den Männern 55%, bei den Frauen 42% der Invalidisierungen veranlasst.

7.—Figuren 24 bis 27. Vier Tafeln mit Säulen, darstellend die Bedeutung der Lungentuberkulose im Vergleich zu anderen wichtigen Todesursachen in den Altersklassen von 0—15, 15—30, 30—60, und 60—70 Jahren. Berechnet für 1905—1906.

Die roten Säulen bezeichnen jedesmal die Tuberkulosesterblichkeit, die blauen Säulen die Sterblichkeit an entzündlichen Erkrankungen der Atmungsorgane, während die durch Magendarmkatarrh, Diphtherie, Typhus, Neubildungen, Unglücksfälle und Altersschwäche bedingten Todesfälle durch die verschiedenen schwarzen Säulen kenntlich gemacht sind.

An Häufigkeit weiter an erster Stelle stehen die Tuberkulose Todesfälle in der Altersklasse von 15—30 und von 30—60 Jahren. Erst im höheren Alter von mehr als 60 Jahren werden sie an Zahl noch übertroffen von den durch entzündliche Erkrankungen der Atmungsorgane, durch Geschwulstbildungen und durch Altersschwäche verursachten Todesfällen, ausserdem in der Altersklasse unter 15 Jahren durch die Todesfälle an Magen- und Darmkatarrh. Der Diphtherie kommt die Tuberkulose im jugendlichen Alter an Gefährlichkeit ziemlich gleich, während der Typhus ihr gegenüber in allen Altersstufen kaum ins Gewicht fällt.

8.—Figuren 28 bis 39. Zwölf Zylinder, darstellend die Abnahme der Sterblichkeit an Lungentuberkulose im Deutschen Reiche von 1893 bis 1906 in den Altersklassen von 1—15 (vorderste Reihe), 15—60 (mittlere Reihe) und 60 und mehr Jahren (hinterste Reihe).

Die nach rechts abnehmende Höhe der Zylinder zeigt den Rückgang der Tuberkulosesterblichkeit in den Jahren 1893, 1897, 1901 und 1906 an. Man sieht, wie die Abnahme der Sterblichkeit an Lungentuberkulose am stärksten in der hiervon am meisten betroffenen Altersstufe von 60 und mehr Jahren zum Ausdruck kommt. Hier ging die Zahl der Todesfälle an Lungentuberkulose von 46 auf je 10 000 Lebende im Jahre 1893 auf 24 im Jahre 1906 zurück. Erheblich auch ist die Abnahme der Tuberkulosesterblichkeit in der Altersklasse von 15—60 Jahren, wo sie von 31 Todesfällen auf 22 herabging. Nur gering erscheint demgegenüber die Abnahme der Sterblichkeit an Lungentuberkulose in der Altersklasse von 1—15 Jahren, nämlich von 6,6 Todesfällen unter je 10 000 Lebenden auf 4,5. Doch sei nicht übersehen, dass die Tuberkulosesterblichkeit dieser Altersklasse, wie ja auch die geringe Höhe der vordersten Säulenreihe ohne weiteres zu erkennen gibt, an sich eine verhältnismässig niedrige ist.

No. 17.—Kartographische Darstellungen betreffend die Lungentuberkulose.

- 1.—Eine Wandkarte (Kurve), darstellend die Abnahme der Sterblichkeit an der Lungentuberkulose in den deutschen Orten mit 15 000 und mehr Einwohnern in den Jahren 1877—1904.

Die Kurve veranschaulicht die gleichmässig fortschreitende Abnahme der Lungentuberkulose in dem genannten Zeitraume. Es starben im Jahre 1877 in den deutschen Orten mit mindestens 15 000 Einwohnern von je 10 000 Lebenden 37 an Lungentuberkulose, im Jahre 1904 hingegen nur noch 19. Dies bedeutet, dass in Deutschland allein im Jahre 1904 im Vergleich zum Jahre 1877 rund 100 000 Personen weniger der Lungenschwindsucht zum Opfer fielen.

- 2.—Eine Wandkarte (Kurve), darstellend die Abnahme der allgemeinen Sterblichkeit in den deutschen Orten mit 15 000 und mehr Einwohnern in den Jahren 1877—1906.

Unter Berücksichtigung aller Todesursachen starben in den deutschen Orten mit mindestens 15 000 Einwohnern im Jahre 1877 von je 10 000 Lebenden jährlich insgesamt 270 Personen, im Jahre 1906 indes nur noch 175. Ein Vergleich dieser Kurve mit der vorbezeichneten Kurve (No. 1) zeigt, wie dieser erhebliche Rückgang der allgemeinen Sterblichkeit von der Abnahme der Tuberkulosesterblichkeit in dem betreffenden Zeitraume noch wesentlich übertroffen wird. Dementsprechend waren im Jahre 1877 13,8% aller Sterbefälle durch Lungentuberkulose bedingt, im Jahre 1904 dagegen nur noch 10,4%.

- 3 und 4.—Zwei Wandkarten, darstellend die Sterblichkeit an Lungentuberkulose im Deutschen Reiche in der Altersklasse von 15—60 Jahren, 1892—1893 und 1905—1906.

Als vergleichender Massstab für die Häufigkeit der Lungentuberkulose in den einzelnen Bezirken ist die Sterblichkeit an Lungentuberkulose in der Altersklasse von 15—60 Jahren gewählt, nicht allein, weil die Tuberkulose gerade in diesem kräftigsten Alter die schlimmsten Verheerungen anrichtet, sondern auch, weil hier ihre Diagnose am zuverlässigsten gestellt werden kann, wesentlich sicherer als bei Kindern und bei alten Leuten. Die Unterschiede in der Häufigkeit der Lungentuberkulose in den einzelnen Regierungsbezirken oder den diesen entsprechenden kleineren Staatsgebieten sind durch die verschiedenen Farbenabtönungen angezeigt. Die Karten lassen erkennen, wie der industrie- und städtereiche Westen erheblich mehr von der Tuberkulose heimgesucht ist, als der an Städten erheblich ärmere Osten des Reiches. Zugleich veranschaulicht ein Vergleich der beiden Karten, wie fast allenthalben im Deutschen Reiche die Tuberkulose wesentlich zurückgegangen ist, vor allem dort, wo ihre Ausbreitung vordem am grössten war. Während in den Jahren 1892-1893 noch in 8 Bezirken jährlich mehr als 40 von je 10 000 im Alter von 15-60 Jahren stehenden Personen und in 11 Bezirken 35-40 der Lungentuberkulose erlagen, war in den Jahren 1905-1906 eine Tuberkulosesterblichkeit von mehr als 40 nur noch in einem Bezirke vorhanden, während sie in allen übrigen Bezirken unter 35 betrug.

5.—Eine Wandkarte, darstellend die allgemeine Sterblichkeit im Deutschen Reiche in der Altersklasse von 15-60 Jahren, 1905-1906.

Die Karte zeigt, wie auch die allgemeine Sterblichkeit der Altersklasse von 15-60 Jahren in dem industriell sehr entwickelten und städtebesäten Westen grösser ist als in dem im Vergleich hierzu städtearmen Osten.

6.—Eine Wandkarte (Kurve), darstellend den Gang der Sterblichkeit an Lungentuberkulose in England, Schottland und Irland in den Jahren 1864 bis 1905.

Aus dieser Karte ersieht man, wie die Tuberkulosesterblichkeit zwar in England und Schottland gleichfalls in fortschreitender Abnahme begriffen ist, in Irland dagegen zur Zeit noch um ein wenig zunimmt.

Invalidenversicherung und Lungentuberkulose.

Die Invalidenversicherung des deutschen Reiches ist ein Teil der reichsgesetzlichen Arbeiterversicherung, welche sich zum Ziele setzt, die Arbeiterschaft gegen die unvermeidlichen Gefahren und Schäden ihres Berufslebens in ihrer wirtschaftlichen Existenz zu sichern. Die Arbeiterversicherung (Kranken-, Unfall- und Invalidenversicherung) beruht auf Gegenseitigkeit und Selbstverwaltung, umfasst kraft des Gesetzes ohne Unterschied der Nationalität Personen, welche in Deutschland ihre Arbeitskraft gegen Lohn verwerten, und gewährt bei Krankheit, Unfall, Invalidität oder Alter—im Gegensatze zur Armenpflege—jedem Versicherten einen Rechtsanspruch auf gesetzlich bestimmte Leistungen bei kostenfreiem Verfahren.

Die Invalidenversicherung im besonderen (seit 1891 bis 1906 14,1 Millionen Versicherte) umfasst die Arbeiterschaft sämtlicher Berufsrenten. Sie bezweckt die Gewährung von Invaliden- (Kranken-) und Altersrenten und übernimmt die Krankenfürsorge in Krankheitsfällen, welche Erwerbsunfähigkeit befürchten lassen.

Die Hälfte der für die Versicherten gezahlten Beiträge wird zurückerstattet: im Todesfalle, wenn noch keine Rente gezahlt war, an die Witwe oder Kinder unter 15 Jahren; im Falle der Erwerbsunfähigkeit infolge eines von der Unfallversicherung entschädigten Unfalls und bei der Verheiratung weiblicher Versicherter.

Von jeder Rente zahlt das Reich jährlich 50 M., der Rest wird aus den Beiträgen bestritten.

Die Arbeiter zahlen nach ihrem Lohne Beiträge von 7 bis 18 Pf. wöchentlich. Die Arbeitgeber zahlen gleich hohe Beiträge.

Die Invaliden-(Kranken-)Rente richtet sich nach Zahl und Höhe der Beiträge, sie schwankt bei einem Wochenbeitrage von 7 Pf. zwischen 116 und 200 M. und bei einem Wochenbeitrage von 18 Pf. zwischen 150 und 500 M. jährlich.

Siebzigjährige, aber noch erwerbsfähige Arbeiter erhalten Altersrenten von 110 bis 230 M. jährlich und vom Eintritte der Erwerbsunfähigkeit an die höheren Invalidenrenten.

Das Heilverfahren ist entweder ein vorbeugendes, um den Eintritt der Erwerbsunfähigkeit im gesetzlichen Sinne zu verhüten, oder ein nachträgliches, um Rentenempfängern die Erwerbsfähigkeit zurückzugeben. Die Versicherungsträger sind zur Übernahme eines Heilverfahrens nur befugt, nicht verpflichtet. Sie machen aber von dieser Befugnis im weitesten Umfange Gebrauch und erzielen damit im allgemeinen sehr befriedigende Ergebnisse. Durch diese weitschauende, vom Reichs-Versicherungsamt stets eifrig geförderte Stellungnahme der Versicherungsträger sind ihre—übrigens auch für die eigene Finanzlage nutzbringenden—Heilbestrebungen von grösster Bedeutung für die Volkswohlfahrt in Deutschland geworden. Unentbehrlich sind sie namentlich bei der Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose. Der seit Jahren bemerkbare beträchtliche Rückgang der Tuberkulosesterblichkeit in Deutschland wird wesentlich darauf zurückgeführt. Manigfaltig ist die Art der zu Heilzwecken gewährten Leistungen. Die Behandlung erfolgt entweder in der Häuslichkeit des Erkrankten oder in Krankenhäusern, Heilanstalten verschiedener Gattungen, Genesungsheimen und Rekonvaleszentenanstalten oder auch in Bädern und anderen Kurorten. Hiermit verbunden oder für sich allein werden ferner Arzneien und Stärkungsmittel, kleinere Heilmittel (Brillen, Bruchbänder, Gebisse, Krampfabbinden, Plattfusstiefel, Stützkorsetts und dergl. mehr), sowie künstliche Gliedmassen und ähnliche Vorrichtungen geliefert. Häufig werden ferner—mit Zustimmung der Versicherten—Operationen auf Kosten der Versicherungsträger ausgeführt. Auch die Zahnpflege lassen sich die letzteren vielfach angelegen sein.

An eigenen Heilanstalten, Krankenhäusern und Genesungsheimen (einschliesslich zwei im Bau befindlichen) besitzen die 31 Versicherungsanstalten und 10 zugelassenen Kasseneinrichtungen zur Zeit (1908) 56, von denen die meisten der Tuberkulosebekämpfung dienen. Hierzu kommt die Unterhaltung von Walderholungsstätten sowie von Auskunfts- und Fürsorgestellen für Lungenkranke. Soweit die Versicherungsträger nicht selbst derartige Einrichtungen besitzen, tragen sie vielfach durch Darleihung grösserer Mittel zu solchen bei. Dahin gehören in erster Reihe die Beleihungen von Heilstätten, Krankenhäusern u. s. w., weiter aber auch die Gewährung einzelner oder jährlicher Beiträge an mannigfache Wohlfahrtsvereine (z. B. Vereine für Walderholungsstätten, für Ausbildung von Krankenpflegern und -pflegerinnen, zur Bekämpfung der Tuberkulose, der Geschlechtskrankheiten, des Alkoholmissbrauchs, der Volkskrankheiten überhaupt, der Säuglingssterblichkeit u. s. w.).

Die Anlegung der aus den Beitragseingängen herrührenden Vermögensbestände wird von den Versicherungsträgern—mit Zustimmung und zum Teil auf Anregung des Reichs-Versicherungsamts—in weitem Umfange zur Förderung gemeinnütziger Zwecke benutzt. Die erste Stelle nimmt in dieser Beziehung die Fürsorge für die Beschaffung gesunder und preiswerter Arbeiterwohnungen ein. Ferner werden Gelder hergegeben zur Befriedigung des landwirtschaftlichen Kreditbedürfnisses (auf Hypotheken, für Kleinbahnen, Land- und Wegeverbesserungen, Hebung der Viehzucht, Linderung der Futternot u. s. w.), ferner für den Bau von Kranken- und Genesungshäusern, für Volkshelstätten, für Gemeindepflegestationen, Herbergen zur Heimat, Arbeiterkolonien, Volksbäder, Blindenheime, Kleinkinderschulen, Schlachthäuser, Wasserleitungs-, Kanalisations- u. s. w. Anlagen, für Spar- und Konsumvereine und andere ähnliche Wohlfahrtseinrichtungen. Die gesamten derartigen Aufwendungen betragen bis zum Schlusse des Jahres 1907 rund 624,8 Millionen Mark (nach Abzug der an die Versicherungsträger zurückgelangten etwa 68,8 Millionen Mark rund 556 Millionen Mark). Hiervon entfallen nahezu 46,6 Millionen Mark auf die eigenen Veranstaltungen (Lungenheilstätten, Krankenhäuser u. s. w.) der Versicherungsträger und mehr als 195,8 Millionen Mark auf die Wohnungsfürsorge.

Die ausgestellten statistischen Tafeln schildern den Kampf der Invalidenversicherung gegen die Lungentuberkulose und betreffen im einzelnen die Häufigkeit dieser Volksseuche unter den Invaliditätsursachen nach Geschlecht, Alter und Beruf; die aufgewendeten Heilbehandlungskosten für Lungentuberkulose und andere Krankheiten, berechnet auf eine behandelte Person; Kostenaufwand und Dauer der ständigen Heilbehandlung der Invalidenversicherungsanstalten für eine behandelte Person (Männer und Frauen) bei Lungentuberkulose und anderen Krankheiten; die Erfolge der Heilbehandlung von Lungentuberkulose und anderen Krankheiten, sowie die Vermögensanlagen insgesamt für Heilanstalten, Genesungs- und Erholungsheime und sonstige hygienische Einrichtungen und für gesunde Arbeiterwohnungen. Die beigegebenen Druckschriften erläutern diese statistischen Tafeln und geben gleichzeitig das neueste statistische Material, welches auf dem einschlägigen Gebiet vorliegt.

(a) Otto Gentsch in Magdeburg, Grosse Munzstr. 3.

No. 42.—Arzneiverdampfungs-Apparat nach Dr. M. Sänger, 12 Exemplare.

Der Apparat hat den Zweck, die Einatmung geeigneter Arzneimittel in gasförmigem Zustand zu ermöglichen. Während in zerstäubtem Zustand eingeatmete Medikamente in den oberen Luftwegen haften bleiben, dringen medikamentöse Stoffe in Gasform in die tieferen Teile der Atmungsorgane und erreichen daher besser den Zweck der Inhalation. Der aus vernickeltem Kupfer hergestellte Apparat besteht aus einem Dampfkessel, der sich nach oben in einen zylindrischen Aufsatz fortsetzt, einem in dem letzteren befindlichen, oben offenen Arzneibehälter und zwei teils aus dem Aufsatz, teils aus dem Arzneibehälter hervortretenden Bergson'schen Röhren. Der durch das eine Röhren entweichende und an der Mündung des anderen Röhrens vorbeistreichende Wasserdampf saugt den im Arzneibehälter sich bildenden Arzneydampf an und reisst ihn mit sich fort. Das zur Einatmung gelangende Gemisch von Arzneydampf und Wasserdampf wirkt wegen des Feuchtigkeitsgehalts auf die Schleimhäute reizmildernd. Die Arzneimittel können in festem oder zähflüssigem Zustand benutzt werden, ohne dass sie zuvor in einer Flüssigkeit gelöst zu werden brauchen. Der Apparat ist geeignet zur Behandlung von Bronchialkatarrhen und tuberkulösen Lungenkatarrhen. Kreosot und Guajakol können durch ihn ihre Wirkung gut entfalten.

(d) Adolph vom Rath-Stiftung zu Berlin.

Die Adolph vom Rath-Stiftung hat den Zweck, tuberkulösen Personen, die aus eigenen Mitteln in ihrem Haushalte nicht in der Lage sind, für eine angemessene Ernährung zu sorgen, unentgeltlich nach ärztlicher Anweisung gesunde und passende Nahrung zu gewähren. Die Stiftung wurde im Jahre 1907 von Frau Anna vom Rath, der Begründerin der Berliner Krankenküche, zur Erinnerung an ihren verstorbenen Ehegatten begründet und mit einem Kapital von 500 000 M. ausgestattet. Die Bereitung der Speisen erfolgt in der Krankenküche Berlin C., Brüderstr. 10, von wo täglich etwa 150 Portionen an ebenso viele Familien mittels Speise-Automobils ins Haus gesandt werden. Die Krankenkost wird nur an solche Kranke gewährt, die in ihrer Wohnung die Massnahmen der Tuberkulose-Prophylaxe mit Sorgfalt durchführen. Besonders werden solche Personen, die eine erfolgreiche Kur in einer Lungenheilstätte durchgemacht haben, berücksichtigt, um die Dauer des Heilerfolges bei ihnen zu befestigen.

Lungs of Children Showing Tubercular Processes:

58. Tubercular catarrhal pneumonia.

- 59.* Acute rapidly caseating tuberculosis.
 60.* Tubercular glands, hemorrhage, and catarrhal tubercular pneumonia.
 61.* Tubercular nodules in area drained by glands that have now become caseous (unstained).
 62.* Tubercular nodules in area drained by glands that have now become caseous (stained with alum-carmin).
 63. Extensive caseating tubercular patches (catarrhal pneumonic) in middle of lower lobe of lung.
 64. Small fibroid tubercle nodules in upper lobe. Tubercular catarrhal pneumonic consolidation at base, and caseous gland at root of lung.
 65.* Catarrhal pneumonic tubercle with rapid cavitation at apex and in upper lobe. Stained with alum-carmin.
 66. Extensive tubercular consolidation in middle of lobe of lung. Note tubercular patches in other portions of lung.
 67.* Tubercular consolidation of lung. Caseous glands. Extensive cavitation especially in upper part of lower lobe.
 68.* Fairly acute racemose tuberculosis throughout whole lung. Gland at root tubercular, caseous (unstained).
 69.* Fairly acute racemose tuberculosis throughout whole lung. Gland at root tubercular, caseous (stained with picrocarmin).

 80, 81. Culture of avian tubercle bacilli on agar.
 82. Culture of Leishman's acid-fast streptothrix.

From the Pathological Department, University of Manchester.

Tuberculosis in Children:

83. From boy aged twelve years. Tuberculous meningitis: shows thickening of membranes at base and fairly large tubercles on the side of the cerebral hemisphere. There was also ulceration of the intestine, peritonitis, and tuberculosis of the abdominal glands.
 84. From boy aged nine years. Large tuberculosis nodule in the right lobe of the cerebellum, which has given rise to hydrocephalus. The dura mater is adherent to the tumor and there is localized tuberculous meningitis. There was also chronic apical pulmonary tuberculosis. The illness began with symptoms of cerebellar tumor (ataxic gait, etc.), marked later by the development of hydrocephalus.

*In the specimens marked * the tubercular processes in the lung are associated with tuberculosis of the mediastinal, retroperitoneal, and mesenteric glands.

85. From boy aged three and one-quarter years. Ulceration of intestine; enlarged and caseous mesenteric glands, caseous bronchial glands, and miliary tuberculosis of lung. The cervical glands were also tuberculous.
86. From girl aged six years. Extensive ulceration of intestine; enlarged mesenteric glands; general adhesive peritonitis. Notice the serous cysts on the serous surface in relation to the ulcers. These are probably of inflammatory origin. There were also pulmonary tuberculosis, and tubercles were present in spleen and kidneys.
87. From a girl aged six years. Pulmonary tuberculosis; cavitation at apex. Caseous bronchial glands; tuberculous pleurisy. There were a few small ulcers in the intestine and tuberculosis of the mesenteric glands.
88. From a girl aged twelve years. Lung: extensive tuberculosis with cavitation, fibroid change, and calcification. Bronchial glands affected.
89. From same case as No. 88. Liver: amyloid and fatty. Spleen: sago amyloid. There was also in this case very extensive ulceration of the intestine, beginning high up in the jejunum, and the kidneys also showed amyloid.
90. From same case as Nos. 88, 89. Ileocecal region of the intestine showing great thickening of the wall of the colon owing to fibroid and amyloid change. Small papillomatous growths are seen in the mucous membrane. There are a few caseous tubercles at the lower end of the ileum and a small ulcer.
91. From boy aged five years. Part of cerebrum showing minute hemorrhages in the white matter. From a case of general tuberculosis complicated by anemia of pernicious type. (Reds, 1,000,000; whites, 17,000; hemoglobin index, 1-3.)
92. From boy aged ten years. Tuberculous peritonitis with yellow, tumor-like deposits; enlarged mesenteric glands. Tuberculosis of the diaphragm. There was also pulmonary tuberculosis and tuberculous meningitis.
93. From boy aged three years. Caseous mediastinal glands. Left lung: pleurisy, consolidation, a very large phthisical cavity involving the lower and part of the upper lobe. A large blood-vessel with thickened walls is seen in the cavity. Ulceration of intestine; caseous mesenteric glands; tubercles in spleen.
94. From boy aged twelve years. Lung: acute miliary tuberculosis. Intestine: caseous nodules. Spleen; enlarged, tubercles on surface.
95. From a girl aged six years. Caseous bronchial glands: small area of tuberculous consolidation in the middle lobe of the right lung. Liver and diaphragm caseous tubercle. Spleen: very marked caseous nodules.

From the School of Medicine Museum, University of Leeds.

96. Lungs, with cervical and esophageal glands, spleen, and liver from

- child aged fourteen weeks, showing general tuberculosis, probably by tonsillar route. (6160.)
97. Lung, affected with both tubercle and carcinoma (6086.)
 98. Lung, with extreme anthracosis yet containing many tubercle bacilli. (6020.)
 99. Tuberculous mastitis. (GG 10.)
 100. Tuberculous pericarditis. (C 6a.)
 101. Tuberculous laryngitis, chiefly ventral. (D 26d., 2024.)
 102. Tuberculous deposit in pons of a child. (5699.)
 103. Rarefying osteitis without any tendency to sclerosis. Photo. All specimens from same case. (A 26 E. N. 104, N. 105.)
 104. Multiple tuberculomata of dura mater. Three masses (size of gooseberries) attached to under surface of falx cerebelli. (N. 15.)
 105. Multiple tuberculomata of frontal lobes. Coronal sections through frontal lobes revealing tuberculous masses, of some size, and tuberculous pachymeningitis. The disease was supposed to have invaded the brain from without inward (i. e., from the dura). (N. 104, 105; A. 26 E. All from same case.)
 106. Hyperplastic tuberculosis of small intestine causing multiple stenosis. Resection of a considerable loop of gut—recovery. In the lumen is incarcerated a plum stone. (371.)
 107. Tuberculous ectopii testis. The testis was situated on the dorsum of the penis near the symphysis and had only a little while before given rise to trouble. On resection found to be tuberculous. (F 91 D.)
 108. Coarse tubercle of spleen of horse. The masses are cherry-sized and discrete. (CC 54.)
 109. Healed tuberculous peritonitis. The peritoneum is studded with nodules rather less than pea-sized, or smaller; these have long, thread-like pedicles. Microscopically the nodules are found to be tuberculous. (5761.)
 110. Coarse tubercle of spleen. From child aged four. The tubercles are pea-sized. (5752.)
 111. Tuberculous axillary glands. Removed by operation. (5650.)
 112. Tuberculosis of cecum—from a child. There is chronic disease of the cecum and adjacent ileum and the glands in the adjacent mesentery are laid open, being much enlarged and caseous (color specimen). (5933.)
 113. Stenosing ulceration of small intestine (same case as 112). Two chronic ulcers beginning to contract and inclosing about six inches of slightly dilated intestine between them.
 114. Hyperplastic tuberculosis of appendix and cecum. There is disease throughout the length of the appendix.
 115. Tuberculosis of hernial sac. (EH 319.)
 116. Caseating tubercle of kidney. The color is good—a striking specimen. (5901.)
 117. Coarse miliary tuberculosis of kidneys (rabbit). (5827.)
 118. Miliary tuberculosis of omentum. From child of three months whose mother died, shortly after delivery, of tuberculosis. The disease in the infant is thought to have been congenital. (561.)

119. Miliary tuberculosis in a leukemic liver. Patient had ordinary splenomyelogenous leukemia and the liver nodules were thought to be of this nature until a routine microscopical examination showed they were undoubtedly tuberculous. (EE 11.)
120. Healed tuberculous peritonitis. (5904.)
121. Tuberculous prostate and vesiculæ seminales. The prostate has been converted into an abscess cavity. The bladder is little affected. (F 65.)
122. Tuberculous epididymis. There is also miliary deposit in the testis. (6008.)
123. Tuberculous epididymis and spermatic cord. (5075.)
124. Tuberculosis of kidney. There is only one breaking-down focus, but there is coarse miliary deposit scattered throughout the organ. (5805.)
125. Caseous bronchopneumonia. From an infant. The lung is riddled with quite small cavities from the breaking-down caseous areas.
126. Miliary tuberculosis with apical cavity. Infant aged eight months. Early miliary tubercle with relatively considerable cavity at apex. (5944.)
127. Miliary tuberculosis—uniformly caseous. Infant fourteen months. Apart from a single considerable cavity at apex, the tubercles are coarse and caseous, without any cavitation. (5700.)
128. Miliary tuberculosis, bronchopneumonia. Tubercles are small, scarcely caseous, and aggregated into distinct bronchopneumonic areas. Child aged seven.

Specimens from University College Museum, Bristol.

129. Good aneurism in lung (tuberculosis).
130. Tuberculosis of one testis, one vesiculus seminalis, one kidney, and two suprarenals.
131. Lung, liver, kidney, heart, spleen, marrow. All showing miliary tubercles.
132. Slice of lung between two sheets of glass (tuberculosis).

RUSSIA.

I. TUBERCULINUM PURUM (ENDOTIN).

Does not produce any general reaction. Based on Koch's "old" tuberculin. Prepared by a process of chemical extraction (with alcohol, chloroform, xylol, etc.) from "old tuberculin." Can be used in much larger doses than the old remedy, and has given good results, especially in early and moderately advanced cases, with lesions localized in one lung.

Prepared by the St. Petersburg Tuberculin Society. Agents and licensees in the United States, The Saxe Laboratory, 72 West 45th Street, New York.

Exhibit of the preparation and the manner of dosage in graduated scale of solutions contained in sealed bulbs ready for use.

II. SPERMINUM-POEHL AND LACTALEXIN-POEHL.

Reprints of the literature in form of short sheets and tables containing scientific publications concerning Sperminum-Poehl, 100 bottles.

EXHIBIT OF THE EXPERIMENT STATION.

One group of seven (7) specimens, as follows:

1. Organs of a guinea-pig showing tuberculous lesions caused by the subcutaneous inoculation of feces from a tuberculous cow.
2. Same as above.
3. Organs of a guinea-pig showing tuberculous lesions caused by the inoculation of normal milk from a healthy cow soiled with small masses of feces from a tuberculous cow.
4. Same as 3.
5. Organs of a guinea-pig showing tuberculous lesions caused by the inoculation of butter made from normal milk from a healthy cow soiled with small masses of feces from a tuberculous cow.
6. Same as 5.
7. Healthy organs of a guinea-pig, comparison of which with the above specimens will show more clearly the changes caused by the tuberculous disease.

One group of six (6) specimens, as follows:

1. Normal organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with normal butter.
2. Tuberculous organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with ordinary salted butter in which tubercle bacilli had remained alive and virulent thirty days.
3. Tuberculous intestine, omentum, and mesenteric glands of a guinea-pig inoculated with ordinary salted butter in which tubercle bacilli had remained alive and virulent one hundred days.
4. Tuberculous organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with ordinary salted butter in which tubercle bacilli had remained alive and virulent one hundred and thirteen days.
5. Tuberculous organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with ordinary salted butter in which tubercle bacilli had remained alive and virulent one hundred and thirty-three days.
6. Tuberculous organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with ordinary salted butter in which tubercle bacilli had remained alive and virulent one hundred and sixty days.

One group of twelve (12) specimens, as follows:

1. Tuberculosis of the prescapular, mediastinal, and gastrohepatic lymph-glands of a hog caused by eating the feces of tuberculous cows.
2. Tuberculosis of the submaxillary and cervical lymph-glands of a hog caused by eating the feces of tuberculous cows.
3. Tuberculosis of the submaxillary lymph-glands of a hog caused by eating the feces of tuberculous cows.
4. Tuberculosis of the spleen of a hog caused by eating the feces of tuberculous cows.
5. Tuberculosis of the costal pleura of a hog caused by eating the feces of tuberculous cows.
6. Tuberculosis of the diaphragm of a hog caused by eating the feces of tuberculous cows.
7. Tuberculosis of the lung and liver of a hog caused by eating the feces of tuberculous cows.

8-12. Normal lymph-glands, spleen, liver, lungs, diaphragm, and costal pleura of a hog to show by comparison the changes due to tuberculous disease.

Two specimens to show the persistence of tubercle bacilli of the human type, of a virulence too low to cause tuberculosis in cattle, in the udder of a cow, into which they were injected without trauma through the teat.

1. Tuberculous organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with material from the udder of the above-described cow six years and four and a half months after the bacilli were introduced into the udder.
2. Same as above.

Two specimens to show the character of lesions caused by inoculation of milk from cows affected with tuberculosis of the udder.

1. Tuberculous organs of rabbit.
2. Tuberculous organs of guinea-pig.

One group of nine (9) specimens to show the action of light on tubercle bacilli in tuberculous pus, as follows:

1. Healthy organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with tuberculous pus exposed thirty minutes in a thin layer on glass to direct sunlight.
2. Tuberculous organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with tuberculous pus exposed on glass in thick clumps to direct sunlight for two hours.
3. Healthy organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with tuberculous pus exposed on glass in thick clumps to direct sunlight for five hours.
4. Tuberculous organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with tuberculous pus exposed on glass in thin layers to electric light four hours. (The exposure was to a 16-candle power, carbon film lamp, lighted by a 110-volt alternating current. The distance from the lamp to the pus was 30 inches, and the temperature between lamp and pus was 72° F. (about 22° C.).)
5. Healthy organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with tuberculous pus exposed to electric light, as above, thirty-two hours.
6. Healthy organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with tuberculous pus exposed to electric light, as above, sixty-four hours.
7. Tuberculous organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with tuberculous pus exposed in thin layers on glass to ordinary room light for fifteen days.
8. Tuberculous organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with tuberculous pus kept in thin layers on glass in a dark room for twenty days.
9. Tuberculous organs of a guinea-pig inoculated with tuberculous pus kept in thin layers on glass in a dark room thirty-two days.

THE CENSUS OFFICE.

Complete set of all census publications on vital statistics, comprising the decennial reports of 1850, 1860, 1870, 1880, 1890, and 1900, and the annual reports of 1900 to 1906, both inclusive.

Cartograms showing mortality from tuberculosis in registration states, 1880, 1890, and 1900; 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904, 1905, and 1906.

Mounted tables from mortality statistics, 1906, showing form of presentation of data relating to tuberculosis.

Large wall map colored to show registration States, registration cities in non-registration States, with recent laws under trial; other non-registration States, indicating by flash of electric light that some one is dying from tuberculosis in the United States every two minutes and thirty-six seconds; 23 every hour, and 548 every day.

Diagrams.

International classification of causes of death.

Proportion of deaths from each specified cause in the registration area, 1906.

Proportion of deaths from specified causes in each registration State, 1906.

Proportion of deaths at each age period in 1000 at known age from various forms of tuberculosis in the registration area, 1900 to 1904.

Tuberculosis.—Number of deaths per 100,000 of population, 1900 to 1906, in the registration area, registration States, cities, and rural districts.

Tuberculosis.—Average number of deaths in each month in the registration area, 1900 to 1904.

Percentage of deaths from each specified cause by sex and age periods, 1906 (two sheets).

Consumption.—Number of deaths per 100,000 of population among persons ten years of age and upward in specified occupations, 1900.

Female wage-earners ten years of age and upward; death-rates from specified causes per 100,000 of population.

Number of deaths per 100,000 of population from specified causes in the principal occupation groups, 1900.

Consumption.—Number of deaths per 100,000 of population by birthplaces of white mothers in the registration area, 1900.

Consumption.—Number of deaths per 100,000 of population in cities and rural districts in the registration States, 1900 and 1890.

Consumption.—Number of deaths per 100,000 of population by color and sex, 1900 and 1890.

Male wage-earners ten years of age and upward; death-rates from specified causes per 100,000 of population.

Consumption.—Proportion of deaths at each age period per 1000 deaths at known ages, 1860 to 1900.

Consumption.—Number of deaths at each period per 1000 at known ages in the registration area, 1890, 1900, to 1906.

Consumption.—Number of deaths per 100,000 of population by conjugal condition and age periods in the registration area, 1900.

Consumption.—Number of deaths per 100,000 of population by age, color, and birthplaces of white mothers, in the registration area, 1900.

Number of deaths per 100,000 of population for cities and rural districts in the registration States, 1900 to 1906.

Number of years of tuberculosis (all forms) and death-rates per 100,000 of population, and proportional deaths from tuberculosis per 1000, and deaths from all causes; comparison for United States, Massachusetts, and England and Wales; growth of the registration area in the United States.

GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE.

Apparatus in illustration of a method of disposing of expectoration in crowded manufactories and workshops, consisting of the disinfection and the removal of sputa of employees without the operator coming in contact with the cuspidors and their contents. The sputa are carried directly into the sewers.

No device or method in connection with this exhibit is patented, and all or any part of it if desired may be freely copied by manufacturers and other persons interested in stamping out tuberculosis and kindred diseases prevalent among wage-earners.

The method of operating this apparatus is demonstrated on the spot, and the full description of its working, printed in three languages, will be found for distribution to the public in the place.

Immobilization of one-half the thorax by traction plasters. Center table model illustrating the following purposes:

1. To give rest, when that is indicated, to the affected lung in tuberculosis:
 - (a) To arrest pulmonary hemorrhages.
 - (b) To contract lung cavities.
 - (c) To control pleurisy.
 - (d) In actively progressive disease.
2. To adjust and treat rib fractures.
3. To control movement in pneumonia and pleurisy.

The Inhaler and Exhaler. An adjustable air-pressure pocket device, on the principle of causing exhalation against resistance, designed as an aid in the arrest of pulmonary tuberculosis, i. e.,

- (a) To increase the intrapulmonary air pressure during exhalation (the only time when the pressure can be controlled), and thus oppose passive congestion and disease.
- (b) To furnish a passive form of pulmonary exercise at will, to be used vigorously two to five minutes every hour or two, and repeatedly, for results in limiting fibrosis and the shrinking tendency of chronic lung disease.
- (c) To promote normal circulation not only of the blood and air in the lungs, but incidentally of blood in the general system.
- (d) To furnish means of carrying the disinfectant, germicidal, or soothing effects of vaporizable or volatile oils to the throat, bronchial tubes, and air-cells.

TENT COLONY FOR CONSUMPTIVES.

ILLINOIS GENERAL HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE, PEORIA, ILL.

The colony consists of fourteen lesser tents, accommodating two patients each, two dormitory tents accommodating ten persons each, two wall tents used as clothes-rooms and dressing-rooms, two sun-parlors with ruby lights, where, in addition to solar heat, the principles of phototherapy are being tested, an office for nurses, a mess tent, a diet-kitchen, and bath- and toilet-rooms.

The colony was established in 1905, and many of its occupants who originally entered it in an advanced stage of tuberculosis are still alive with marked improvement. Many incipient cases were restored to the cottages after a short residence, apparently cured.

The colony is in charge of an assistant physician, who is instructed to employ every medical, hygienic, physical, dietetic, and chemical agency in the treatment of the disease, the opsonic index being the guide where serum therapy is indicated. It shelters forty-eight women, and is an all-the-year-round home, the patients passing through the rigors of the last three winters with little inconvenience. Nine nurses, in relays of three for each eight hours, conduct it admirably, and although patients from every cottage are received in the colony, there has never been a successful escape. It was erected complete at a cost of only sixty dollars per patient, and, in an improved form, has been duplicated for the men, thus giving one hundred patients, or 5 per cent. of our population, the benefit of continuous open-air treatment. An approved diet, based on caloric units, is always at hand, and there has been an instance where a man gained thirty-two pounds in ten weeks, tuberculosis having been demonstrated by the microscope.

The segregation of the consumptives is but one feature of the classification of the patients in this institution, and while it is apparently expensive, the additional expense is lost in the general economy of the institution, which is conducted at a net per capita cost per patient of $136 per annum.

 MAINE.

The exhibit is contributed by the State Board of Health, the Maine Sanatorium, at Hebron, and the Maine Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The State Board of Health contributes: Charts and photographs illustrative and explanatory of the work in the State of Maine for the prevention and cure of tuberculosis, and a statistical exhibit of what has been accomplished since 1892. An exhibit is also made of the circulars, bulletins, and other publications of the Board relating to tuberculosis which have been issued and distributed since 1889.

- The Maine Sanatorium* shows charts and photographs illustrative of sanatorium work and of the work on the sanatorium farm and in the sanatorium dairy. A model of one of the sanatorium buildings is shown, and also the sterilizer, dish-washer, and other things in use in the sanatorium; and there is an exhibit of some administrative details.
- The Maine Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis* exhibits a model of an "Egyptian shack," which has been erected for the use of patients in Portland, and a collection of charts and photographs.

MASSACHUSETTS.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Factory Conditions in Massachusetts.—The following photographs show avoidable and unavoidable sanitary conditions associated with a few selected occupations, some of which are commonly regarded as being especially conducive to tuberculosis of the lungs.

The Cotton Industry.

Nos. 1-9. Nine large photographs show the main processes of manufacture of a high-grade cotton cloth under sanitarily ideal conditions as to light, heating, dust, humidity, gases, etc.

1. Opening Room. Cotton is taken from the bales by the armful and fed into these machines. The employees are men. As seen in the photograph, the feed-boxes are hooded, so that the men are exposed to but little dust from the freshly opened cotton as it is agitated in the hopper. On some machines these feed-boxes are not so hooded.
2. Picker Room. Heavy machinery mixes the cotton fiber, beats it, cleans it, and delivers it in even sheets or layers known as laps. The employees are men. In spite of the well-constructed modern picker machines, a considerable amount of fine dust escapes into the work-room—very slight, however, as compared with the amount which escapes from some of the older machines.
3. Carding Room. The carding machine further cleans the cotton, and disentangles, straightens, and parallelizes the fibers. The employees are men. The modern carding room is very large and high-studded (e. g., 15 feet), with good-sized window-glass and transoms which are easily opened. It is well lighted and is heated and ventilated by modern means. In some of the rooms are two or more large exhaust fans. The walls and ceilings are clean and white and the floor is kept reasonably clean during working hours. The practical questions to be met in the carding room are two, namely: (1) How to diminish substantially the amount of dust in the room; and (2) how to ventilate the room properly—both to be accomplished in old mills with "reasonable" expenditure.
4. Combing Room. Combing still further straightens the fiber and perfects the process of carding. The employees are men. The presence of much dust in the air of this room interferes with the work.
5. Drawing Room. Several strands of cotton are drawn into one smaller than any of the others and much more even. The employees are mostly young men.
6. Roving Room. The sliver of cotton has now become so small that it must be twisted in order to bear handling. Employees are men and women. Artificial humidity is well regulated in the best mills.
7. Ring-spinning Room. After the roving is reduced to the required size of yarn, it goes to the spinning machine. The roving is again elongated, and the fully twisted thread is wound upon bobbins or tubes by rotating on the rapidly revolving spindles. The employees are women, girls, and boys. Except for the continuous noise of the machinery, which is very great, but in an uninterrupted, unvarying tone, and for the loose cotton dust in the air of the room, the spinners in a modern, well-regulated, ring-spinning room work under favorable conditions. Such a room is well ventilated; properly heated; has large windows and transoms which open; clean walls and ceilings; and is lighted by incandescent bulbs. Unhealthy and objectionable systems for the introduction of artificial moisture may be found in some mills.

8. Mule Spinning Room. The filling for the cloth may be spun on frames called "mules." The employees are men and boys. Because of the high temperature in "mule" rooms the men remove their outside clothing and wear undershirts and overalls, while the boys wear short trousers. Generally the men and boys go about the room barefooted, although some wear sandals, slippers, or old shoes.
9. Weave Room. The employees are men and women. The hygienic essentials are: (1) Good light evenly distributed; (2) good ventilation; (3) proper regulation of heat and moisture. The conditions, at present unavoidable, which are unfavorable to the workers are: (1) the monotony of tending the machines day in and day out, and (2) the roar and buzz, and the sharp, jerky noise of the machinery, which is deafening, and, to those particularly sensitive, "nerve-racking."

The Boot and Shoe Industry.

Nos. 10-19. Two large and eight small photographs show the processes which are of especial sanitary importance in the boot and shoe industry.

Fine leather dust is irritating to the respiratory tract, and naphtha fumes cause various forms of intoxication, especially in women. One of the large photographs shows a machine for trimming the edges of the sole. This work requires good light, accurate eyesight, considerable skill, and close attention. The process gives rise to varying amounts of dust, the finest of which, in well-equipped factories, is sucked at once into the pipe. The other large photograph shows a portion of a stitching room where cement made of rubber and naphtha is used. In addition to the exposure to the fumes of naphtha, the women and girl employees are not uncommonly found to be working in crowded and inadequately ventilated rooms.

Horn and Celluloid.

No. 20. One large photograph shows a "rub room" where combs and hair-pins are rubbed on rapidly revolving carpet balls with a mixture of sifted coal-ashes and water. The cloudy effect in the picture is due to the dust. The employees are men. The other large photograph shows a "bending" room, where the combs are bent. This work is done by both sexes, but mainly by women and girls. It is bench-work of a not disagreeable kind, although the rooms become considerably heated and the air in winter weather toward night becomes especially dry and foul.

Nos. 21-28. Eight small photographs show the following processes:

1. Polking, which includes blanking and centering flat pieces of horn.
2. Rounding and pointing horn hair-pins.
3. Tumblers, which contain fine pumice stone and water.
4. Coloring the hair-pins.
5. Cutting machine for cutting out the teeth of the celluloid combs.
6. Bottoming saw, used to shape the bottom of the teeth of the combs.

Note the glass front to protect the employees' eyes against chips of celluloid.

7. Pointing the teeth by sand wheels or steel burrs.
8. Polishing the combs on rapidly revolving cotton balls with the use of rottenstone and lard oil.

8. Galvanizing iron. Note the lack of hood or air-shaft for escape of fumes.
9. Dipping castings in acid to clean them for plating.

Chair Making.

Nos. 53-55. One large photograph shows a metal cylinder covered with a composition of sand and glue, like sandpaper, which, revolving fast, gives rise to fine hardwood dust and fine sand, which gradually wears off. Note the absence of any dust-removing device for the protection of employees against dust.

One of the two small photographs shows a similar machine equipped with an exhaust suction pipe for the removal of dust. The other small photograph shows a sandy belt not equipped with apparatus for the removal of dust.

The Jewelry Industry.

Nos. 56-57. One large photograph shows the process of rag wheel buffing in a jewelry shop. Note the adequate protection of employees against dust.

A small photograph shows the process of "bobbing" silverware. The protection against dust is inadequate; note the cylinder at the left of the workman covered with fine dust.

The Lead Industry.

No. 58. A large photograph shows a workman wearing a respirator while working with red oxid of lead and litharge. Note a common form of respirator on exhibition.

Bone.

No. 59. A small photograph shows clouds of bone dust which rise from the pile of bones which two men are shoveling. The great amount of bone dust completely covers the workmen from view.

Brush Making.

No. 60. One large photograph shows a well-equipped exhaust pipe for the removal of fumes in the process of inserting bristles into brush handles.

Broom Making.

No. 61. One large photograph shows a "drum" with nails which combs out the small pieces of broom corn. This process gives rise to considerable irritating dust.

Manufacture of Derby and Felt Hats.

Nos. 62-64. A large photograph shows a revolving copper cone. Fine hairs are blown into the upper part of the inclosure and are deposited in a thin layer on the outside of the perforated cone. Considerable dust gets into the atmosphere in a hat factory in spite of all precautions.

Two small photographs show the processes of shrinking the felts by hand and "pouncing"—the latter consists in smoothing off the rough hairs from the hat, and gives off a great deal of very fine dust.

Samples of Dust.

Nos. 65-85. Twenty-one samples of dust generated in some of the processes of manufacture above described may be found on exhibition, as follows:

- Very fine dust, which occurs in the process of steel grinding (1 sample).
- Siftings of sand-blast which have passed through a screen $\frac{1}{100}$ of an inch (see photograph of man wearing a helmet) (1 sample).
- Granite dust (1 sample).
- Pearl shell dust (1 sample).
- Lead dust (1 sample).
- Bone dust (1 sample).
- Iron dust—
 - Grinding on emery wheels (1 sample).
 - Tumbling castings (1 sample).
- Leather dust occurring in the shoe industry (4 samples).
- Horn and celluloid dust occurring in the hair-pin and comb industry (6 samples).
- Felt dust (2 samples).
- Wood dust (1 sample).

Microphotographs of Dust.

Nos. 86-94. Nine enlarged microphotographs of dust may be found on exhibition, as follows:

1. Human lung in health.
2. Steel grinder's lung, showing particles of steel embedded in the lung tissue.
3. Lead dust from a printing shop. Type casting.
4. Dust from a fur-brushing machine.
5. Mother-of-pearl.
6. Granite.
7. Iron.
8. Felt.
9. Jute.

The Bakery Industry.

Nos. 95-110. The photographs illustrating the bakery industry show a class of conditions which are not indispensable to the industry.

One large photograph shows an ideal bakery—the room is well lighted, adequately ventilated, neat and clean throughout. On the other hand, another large photograph shows distinctly bad sanitary conditions, all of which are avoidable.

In addition to the two large photographs mentioned, fourteen small ones show both objectionable conditions and conditions which are highly commendable.

- No. 257. Map showing geographical distribution of deaths from tuberculosis in Boston.
- No. 258. First tuberculosis survey.

Children's Exhibit.

- No. 259, 260. Two signs showing principles of hygiene.
- No. 261. One frieze showing summary of a year's work in hygiene with children four to seven years of age in paper cutting.
- No. 262-267. Six charts showing principles of hygiene, cleanliness, pure air, sunlight, exercise, and esthetics.
- Nos. 268-273. Six cards explanatory of charts showing principles of hygiene, cleanliness, pure air, sunlight, etc.
- Nos. 274-279. Six written lessons on same by children eleven years old.

- Nos. 280-282. Three exhibits of work done.
 Nos. 283, 284. Two photographs of children's games.
 Nos. 285-295. Eleven exhibits of work performed in furnishing model rooms, utensils used in construction, model of window tents, etc.
 Nos. 296, 297. Books and lessons in candy making by children.

BOSTON DISPENSARY.

- Nos. 298-302. Five charts showing types of work and results.

SUBURBAN TUBERCULOSIS CLASSES OF THE MASSACHUSETTS GENERAL HOSPITAL, BOSTON.

THE DENTAL HYGIENE COUNCIL, BOSTON.

Exhibit consisting of photographs, charts, pathological specimens, statistics, etc., showing the relation between oral hygiene and tuberculosis.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY.

Exhibit illustrative of the various forms of tuberculosis in man and in certain of the lower animals, showing the various stages of the disease as it affects different organs and structures. The entire collection is mounted according to the gelatin method, as devised by this institution, preserving thereby the normal colors indefinitely.

Human Tuberculosis.Pulmonary:

1. Incipient form. Two small areas in apex.
2. Incipient form. Larger area of consolidation.
3. Early form. Consolidation in apex.
4. Slightly more advanced form, showing numerous miliary tubercles.
5. Miliary tubercles along lower border of lobe.
6. Aggregation of tubercles in and near apex.
7. Large areas of consolidation in the interior.
8. Numerous tubercles scattered irregularly throughout the upper lobe.
9. Large numbers of tubercles coalescent.
10. Extensive caseation.
11. Almost complete consolidation of upper lobe.
12. Beginning cavity formation.
13. Complete consolidation with cavity formation.
14. Tuberculous bronchopneumonia.
15. Tuberculous pneumonia. Complete consolidation.
16. Miliary tuberculosis with pleurisy.
17. Miliary tuberculosis.
18. Miliary tuberculosis. Thickened pleura.
19. Miliary tuberculosis.
20. Pulmonary abscess.
21. Normal lung.
22. Consolidation of upper lobe.
23. Consolidation of upper lobe. Early caseation.
24. Consolidation of upper, middle, and part of lower lobes. Caseation. Chronic pleuritis.
25. Early cavity formation in apex. Caseation.
26. Complete consolidation. Cavity formation. Many individual tubercles.

27. Cavities in apex and in lower lobe.
28. Large cavity in apex. Numerous smaller cavities. Chronic pleuritis.
29. Upper lobe practically entirely destroyed by caseation and cavity formation. Several smaller cavities. Much thickened pleura.
30. Complete destruction of upper lobe. Numerous tubercles undergoing caseation.
31. Complete consolidation. Small hemorrhages. Chronic pleuritis.
32. Fatal hemorrhage.
33. Complete consolidation. Extensive fibrosis.
34. Tuberculous lobular pneumonia.
35. Miliary tuberculosis involving upper and lower lobes.
36. Miliary tuberculosis also showing anthracosis.
37. Miliary tuberculosis.
38. Miliary tuberculosis.
39. Pulmonary abscess.
40. Ulceration of vocal cords and epiglottis.

Liver:

41. Miliary tuberculosis.
42. Amyloid liver due to tuberculosis.
43. Miliary tuberculosis.
44. Amyloid liver due to tuberculosis.

Spleen:

45. Multiple areas of infection.
46. Single area of caseation.
47. Three coalescent caseating areas.
48. Miliary tuberculosis.
49. Great enlargement of the spleen due to very extensive tuberculous foci.
50. Miliary tuberculosis showing perisplenitis.
51. Complete destruction of one end of the organ.
52. Splenic involvement in diffused tuberculosis.
53. Amyloid spleen due to tuberculosis.
54. Amyloid spleen due to tuberculosis.

Alimentary Tract:

55. Tuberculosis of intestine.
56. Tuberculous ulcer of intestine.
57. Tuberculous ulcer of intestine.
58. Tuberculosis of ileum showing numerous ulcers.

Kidney:

59. Two caseous areas in renal substance.
60. Tuberculosis involving both kidney and renal pelvis.
61. Extensive involvement of the entire kidney and renal pelvis.
62. Numerous foci of caseation with atrophic changes in the kidney.
63. Caseated area involving upper end of kidney. Small area near surface of other side. Specimen shows hemorrhagic area due to operative interference.
64. Extensive caseation of one end of the kidney with diseased areas elsewhere.
65. Complete destruction of renal substance. Very extensive caseation.

66. Involvement of kidney, renal pelvis, ureter, bladder, and prostate gland.

Fallopian Tubes:

67. Pyosalpingitis with miliary tubercles.

68. Pyosalpingitis. Numerous miliary tubercles upon peritoneal surface.

Ovary:

69. Several irregular areas of caseation visible in the much enlarged solid ovary.

Testicle:

70. Early caseating areas in epididymis.

71. The disease involves particularly the epididymis, which is completely destroyed. Tubercles are demonstrable in the testicular substance.

72. Testicle enlarged and showing irregular areas of caseation. Epididymis somewhat involved.

73. Epididymis and contiguous parts much enlarged, with considerable caseation.

74. Complete destruction of the testicle and epididymis by extensive caseation.

Skin:

75. Lupus involving the skin in the submammary region.

76. Lupus involving the skin of scrotum.

Lymphatic System:

77, 78. Group of lymph-nodes showing various stages of the disease.

79. Cervical lymph-nodes showing enlargement and caseation. Normal relations preserved.

80. Sections showing coalescent cervical lymph-nodes.

81. Extensive caseation of lymph-node.

82. Diseased lymph-nodes, showing in one instance the result of surgical interference.

Bones:

83. Tuberculosis of head of tibia.

84. Tuberculosis of patella.

85. Tuberculosis of lumbar vertebræ.

86. Tuberculosis of lower end of femur.

87. Tuberculosis of head of humerus.

88. Shaft of femur removed for extensive osteomyelitis.

Brain:

89. Tuberculous meningitis showing extensive purulent exudation and some few tubercles.

Bovine Tuberculosis.

Beef—Pulmonary:

90. Section of lung showing extensive areas of consolidation.

91. Section showing lungs and part of trachea of calf with adjoining lymph-nodes enlarged and diseased.

92. Large triangular area of consolidation and degeneration present in the pulmonary substance.

93. Surface of lung showing tuberculous masses protruding from beneath the pleura.

94. Massive tubercle formation as seen from the surface.

95. Same as above. Interior appearance.

Lymphatic System:

96. Extensive caseation of lymph-node.

97. Bronchial lymph-node greatly enlarged and degenerated.

98. Mesenteric lymph-node showing enlargement, degeneration, and caseation.

99. Group of tracheal glands showing various stages of disease.

100. Single cervical glands enlarged and caseous.

101. Group of mesenteric glands coalescing into a single elongated mass.

102. Tuberculosis of tracheal lymph-nodes, also showing pulmonary congestion.

103. Two much enlarged mediastinal glands showing different stages of disease.

Liver:

104. Tubercles as seen from the surface.

105. Tubercles as seen on section.

106. Section of liver showing five tuberculous areas in various stages of degeneration.

107. Two large fibrous areas merging gradually into the surrounding tissue.

Pleura:

108. Massive tuberculous deposits in the pleura.

Diaphragm:

109. Massive tuberculous deposits upon the diaphragm.

110. Tuberculous deposits upon the diaphragm.

Bone:

111. Tuberculosis of the knee-joint showing fibrosis, caseation, and calcification.

Hog—Pulmonary:

112. Section of lung showing numerous aggregations of tubercles interspersed with normal tissue.

113. Section showing disease of the bronchial lymph-nodes and apex of lung.

114. Specimen showing trachea, esophagus, and aorta surrounded by enlarged lymph-nodes and adjoining a section of lung with miliary tubercles.

115. Large numbers of tuberculous areas as seen from pleural surface.

116. Specimen showing row of tubercles along the border of the lung.

117. Section showing trachea, esophagus, aorta, enlarged lymph-nodes, and early pulmonary disease.

118. Consolidation of apex with slight cavity formation.

119. Consolidation of apex enlarged, and caseous lymph-nodes.

120. Section of trachea and diseased tracheal lymph-nodes.

Liver:

121. Cross-section. Solitary tubercle.

122. Numerous miliary tubercles as seen from the surface.

123. Cross-section of above liver.

124. Minute miliary tubercles in the lower border of the liver.

125. Accumulation of a number of tubercles along the lower border of the left lobe.
126. Miliary tuberculosis. Internal and external appearance.
- Spleen:*
127. Section of spleen showing numerous tubercles in various stages of development.
128. Surface of above spleen.
129. Spleen very greatly enlarged by large numbers of massive tuberculous areas.
130. Surface of spleen showing two small tubercles.
131. Interior of the above.
- Serous Membranes:*
132. Proliferating growth from pleura containing many minute tubercles.
133. Greatly thickened pleura due to tuberculosis.
134. Diaphragm with tuberculous masses.
135. Section of thoracic wall showing tuberculous pleuritis.
136. Diaphragm showing tuberculous deposits.
- Lymph-nodes:*
137. Mesenteric lymph-nodes, mesentery, and small intestine.
138. Diseased lymph-nodes from the vicinity of the liver.
- Guinea-pig—Liver:*
139. Few foci.
140. Numerous foci with caseation.
- Spleen:*
141. Few miliary tubercles.
- Rabbit:*
- 142-144. Specimens illustrative of the disease in various organs.
- Chimpanzee:*
- 145-148. Specimens illustrative of the disease in various organs.
- Cultures:*
149. Human tuberculosis upon glycerin-agar.
150. Human tuberculosis upon Dorset's egg-medium.
151. Bovine tuberculosis upon glycerin-agar.
152. Bovine tuberculosis upon Dorset's egg-medium.
- Corrosion Anatomy Specimens:*
153. Normal lung.
154. Incipient tuberculosis.
155. Advanced tuberculosis.
156. Cavity formation.
- Tissue Transparencies:*
157. Normal lung.
158. Incipient tuberculosis.
159. Advanced tuberculosis.
160. Cavity formation.

MICHIGAN.

EXHIBIT BY DR. ALDRED S. WARTHIN (OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN, ANN ARBOR, MICH.) ON THE PATHOLOGY OF THE PLACENTAL TRANSMISSION OF TUBERCULOSIS.

Pictures.

1. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Very early tuberculous lesion in the decidua. Area of karyorrhesis and beginning necrosis. In this area numerous tubercle bacilli were found. Mother had chronic tuberculosis of kidney with acute miliary tuberculosis in seventh month of pregnancy.
2. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Decidual tuberculosis. In the upper field area of early stage of karyorrhesis and necrosis due to the presence of tubercle bacilli. In the lower field edge of larger area of more advanced tuberculous necrosis.
3. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Decidual tuberculosis. Areas of necrosis, and thrombosis of decidual sinuses produced by tubercle bacilli. No epithelioid or giant-cells. Tuberculous necrosis without tubercle formation.
4. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of the decidua. Area showing various stages of tuberculous necrosis of the decidua. These areas contained pure growths of tubercle bacilli. Mother had chronic tuberculosis of kidneys and acute miliary tuberculosis in the seventh month of pregnancy.
5. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of chorion. In the middle of the section just below the fiber there is an interchorionic agglutination thrombus containing numerous leukocytes. In this thrombus numerous tubercle bacilli were found. It was attached in one place to a chorionic villus, the syncytium at point of attachment being necrosed.
6. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of chorion; beginning formation of an intervillous tubercle, agglutination thrombus attached to a villus. Into this thrombus some epithelioid cells have passed from the stroma of the villus. Mother had acute miliary tuberculosis in the seventh month of pregnancy.
7. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of chorion; intervillous agglutination thrombus, caused by tubercle bacilli, containing one characteristic giant-cell. Early stage of interchorionic tubercle.
8. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of the chorion. High-power magnification of intervillous agglutination thrombus caused by tubercle bacilli, showing one characteristic giant-cell with peripherally arranged nuclei. Outlines of the red blood-cells making up the mass of the thrombus may be seen. Contained many tubercle bacilli. Mother had acute miliary tuberculosis in seventh month of pregnancy.
9. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of chorion. In the right-hand portion of the photograph are two large intervillous agglutination thrombi caused by tubercle bacilli. In the lower one a characteristic giant-cell can be seen arising from the stroma of the villus, the syncytium of which is entirely lost. Acute miliary tuberculosis of mother in seventh month.

10. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of chorion. In the middle of the field a tuberculous agglutination thrombus is becoming converted into a tubercle through the replacement of the thrombus by epithelioid cells and giant-cells arising from the stroma of the villus, the syncytium of which is entirely gone. Shows very clearly the formation of the intervillous tubercle. Acute miliary tuberculosis of mother in seventh month.
11. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of the chorion. Just at the left of the center field an intervillous tubercle situated on a villous shows secondary caseous necrosis following the conversion of an intervillous agglutination thrombus into a tubercle.
12. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of chorion. Intrachorionic tubercle. In the center of the villus in center field there is a characteristic giant-cell with peripherally arranged nuclei and a small area of necrosis of the stroma. In the necrosed spot just below the giant-cell numerous tubercle bacilli were present. The villus showed no lesion of its syncytium and no thrombus upon the latter. Early stage of intrachorionic tubercle.
13. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of the chorion. In the right portion of the field is a large intrachorionic tubercle, showing a large characteristic giant-cell.
14. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of chorion. Large intrachorionic tubercle; the stroma of the villus being replaced by epithelioid and giant-cells, with secondary caseation.
15. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of chorion. The villus branching from the chorionic stem shows large central area of necrosis with surrounding zone of epithelioid cells. Late stage of intravillous tubercle.
16. Tuberculosis of the Placenta. Tuberculosis of chorion. Intravascular chorionic tuberculosis. In the vessel in the chorionic stem in the left center field there is a dense agglutination thrombus, which contained many tubercle bacilli, and was attached to the intima in one place, where the latter showed beginning necrosis. Early stage of tuberculosis in the fetal blood-stream.
17. Microphotographs by Dr. A. S. Warthin. Varieties of tuberculous lesions of the chorion.
18. Illustrations to Research by Dr. Warthin on the Pathology of the Placental Transmission of Tuberculosis.
19. Museum Specimen. Congenital Tuberculosis. Alcohol Preparation. Fetus, born dead in seventh month. Liver contained many virulent tubercle bacilli. Mother had chronic renal tuberculosis with acute miliary tuberculosis. Placenta showed all stages of tuberculous lesions.
20. Museum Preparation. Formalin. Tubal pregnancy, fourth month. Tuberculosis of tube, placenta, and cord. Tubercle bacilli in fetal liver.
21. Museum Preparation. Kayserling. Uterus from case of abortion in second month. Uterus wall and decidua show advanced tuberculosis on microscopical examination.
22. Museum Preparation. Formalin. Placenta full-term, from mother, showing well-advanced pulmonary tuberculosis. Microscopically placenta shows scattered early lesions of tuberculosis. Not visible to naked eye.

23. Photograph of Museum Preparation No. 19. Fetus, born dead in seventh month. Liver contained many virulent tubercle bacilli. Mother had chronic renal tuberculosis with acute miliary tuberculosis. Placenta showed all stages of tuberculous lesions.
24. Photograph of Museum Preparation No. 20. Tubal pregnancy, fourth month. Tuberculosis of tube, placenta, and cord. Tubercle bacilli in fetal liver.
25. Photograph of Museum Preparation No. 21. Uterus from case of abortion in second month. Uterus wall and decidua show advanced tuberculosis on microscopical examination.
26. Photograph of Museum Preparation No. 22. Placenta, full-term, from mother showing well-advanced pulmonary tuberculosis. Microscopically placenta shows scattered early lesions of tuberculosis. Not visible to naked eye.
27. Advanced Primary Tuberculosis of Endometrium. History of abortion. Placenta not secured.
28. History Primary Tuberculosis of Ovary. History of abortion. Placenta not secured.
29. Tuberculous Placenta. Mother died of advanced pulmonary tuberculosis one week after premature birth in eighth month. Infant lived but a few days. Areas of tuberculous necrosis in decidua on microscopical examination.

GRAND RAPIDS ANTITUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY.

The exhibit of the Grand Rapids Antituberculosis Society consists of the following:

Over twenty charts and photographs showing that during its existence of three and one-half years it has assisted in the passing of the Anti-spitting Ordinance in Grand Rapids; in securing free examination of sputum by the city bacteriologist; delivering lectures to between fifteen and twenty thousand people; in establishing The Michigan State Sanatorium at Howell and the Grand Rapids City Sanatorium, and the reporting of cases of tuberculosis to the Board of Health by the physicians of the city.

Several photographs show the tuberculosis dispensary, patients, doctors, nurses, etc.

One chart shows number of deaths from tuberculosis of lungs per 100,000 population in 15 cities of the United States.

One chart shows number of deaths from tuberculosis of lungs in a number of States for the year 1906.

One chart shows its prevalence.

One chart shows that tuberculosis is a curable disease.

One chart shows that in the three years preceding the formation of the Grand Rapids Antituberculosis Society there were 307 deaths from consumption, while in the three years since its formation the number of deaths diminished to 73, while in the State at large the number of deaths increased.

GRAND RAPIDS BOARD OF HEALTH.

Large water-color drawing, in frame, of contagious disease hospital grounds, showing location of tuberculosis shack (Eugene Goebel, artist).

Specimen charts (6) showing the style of charts used by the Board of Health, and the temperature curves of six patients.

Large bromid photographs of buildings on the grounds, showing beginning of the work and the growth from one patient in the tent, and the various styles and size of shacks up to the present new shacks established by the Board of Health for permanent use.

Picture of pathological specimens (large tubercles) taken from apparently healthy Jersey herd, to show the work of the Board of Health in tuberculous cattle.

Pictures of outdoor sleeping quarters showing patients in hammocks as well as large group of patients, etc.

Chronological table, showing the beginning and growth of the work in Grand Rapids, as done by the Board of Health.

ANTITUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY OF KALAMAZOO.

Photographs representing a colony two weeks old as follows:

- Shack accommodating four patients.
- Ottawa tents, accommodating two patients and nurse.
- Recreation tent.
- Kitchen and dining-tent.
- Cook and storage tent.

IONIA REFORMATORY.

A paper-bound book, containing photographs and description of the Tuberculosis Hospital, rules governing the sanitation of ward and patients; statistics regarding cases treated in this institution for a period of one year, ending May 1, 1908.

PYROFORMOL.

Pyroformol is a material for the production of formaldehyd gas for fumigation by chemical means, without application of external heat. It consists of a solution of formaldehyd to which is added a small amount of sulphate of aluminum. When this solution is poured on unslaked lime a rapid evolution of formaldehyd gas takes place. The sulphate of aluminum is added for the purpose of preventing the condensing action of lime on formaldehyd, which action leads to the formation of bodies of the sugar class with consequent loss of formaldehyd. (See "Journal of the American Chemical Society," vol. xxvii, No. 3, March, 1905; "Medical Record," October 20, 1906.)

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK STATE EXHIBITION.

New York State is made up of three sections: Sections A and C represent the efforts made in the crusade against tuberculosis in New York city. Section B represents the efforts made against tuberculosis in New York State in communities outside of New York city, together with some special interests in New York city.

The exhibits in Section A will be found directly in front of the visitor as he reaches the main exhibition floor in the New National Museum. The exhibits of Section B will be found immediately to the right of Section A, and those of Section C immediately to the right of Section B.

Autochromes.

The development of color photography has afforded an opportunity to perpetuate the colors contained in fresh pathological specimens. The color plates shown were made from specimens immediately after autopsy, and are, therefore, free from the bleachings and contractions which take place in preserved specimens. While the entire process may be considered more or less in its infancy, the results forecast that color photography will have an important place in pathological studies.

EXHIBIT OF THE WHITE HAVEN SANATORIUM.

1. Model of the sanatorium at White Haven, showing all of the buildings and other structures modeled to accurate scale ($\frac{1}{16}$ inch = 1 foot).
2. A key map to the above model, in colors, showing:
 - (A) The relative position and size of the buildings, with date and cost of construction, description and use of buildings, bed capacity, etc.
 - (B) Water-supply, with source of supply, distribution, etc.
 - (C) Illumination of buildings, method of distribution, etc.
 - (D) Heating of buildings, methods of distribution, etc.
 - (E) Disposal of sewage, methods employed, etc.
 - (F) Farm and poultry department.
3. Series of architect's plans used in the construction of the above buildings.
4. Model of shack used for housing patients, constructed to scale.
5. Map of the White Haven district, showing the influence of the public sanatorium for poor people upon the development of private sanatoriums, on a business basis, for the well-to-do, and the relative bed capacity of the latter.
6. A topographical map showing the relative position of the White Haven to other sanatoriums.
7. Series of charts showing medical management. In this series of charts the patient is followed from the time of his application up to the time he is discharged from the institution. These charts are as follows:
 - (A) Equipment showing number of beds, etc.

- (B) Medical staff.
 - (C) Rules for visiting physicians.
 - (D) Rules for resident physicians.
 - (E) Rules for examining physicians.
 - (F) Methods of admission of patients.
 - (G) Classification of patients on admission.
 - (H) Method of treatment.
 - (I) Diet of patients.
 - (J) Graduated work for patients.
 - (K) Method of recording cases (clinical); charts showing changes in the lungs, larynx, nervous system, treatment, etc.
 - (L) Results obtained.
 - (M) Method of discharge of patients with classification of results obtained.
8. Series of charts showing business administration.
- (A) Administration staff at White Haven.
 - (B) Administration staff at Philadelphia.
 - (C) Sources of income.
 - (D) Comparative financial statement of expenditures, etc.
9. The complete series of the ten annual reports.
10. A series of photographs of White Haven and the surrounding country.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND CHARITIES, PHILADELPHIA.

- 111. Chart, showing mortality as affected by density of population.
- 112. Chart, showing mortality rate per 100,000 of population and percentage to total death-rate for twenty-eight years.
- 113. Chart, showing mortality by occupations.
- 114. Series of photographs of the City Infirmity (used for advanced cases); the Glass House (used for cases in the earlier stages of the disease); the sanatorium; convalescents at work upon the farm; floor plans; general construction; exterior and interior views of corridors and wards.
- 115. A graphic history of a case of tuberculosis.
- 116. Registration of cases by months, for the years 1906 and 1907.
- 117. Record of disinfection by months, for the years 1906 and 1907.
- 118. Record of sputum examinations by months, for the years 1906 and 1907.
- 119. Cards, circulars, etc., used in the department.
- 120. Tuberculosis mortality as compared with the diseases.
- 121. Tuberculosis mortality by ages.
- 122. Amount expended by the department for the prevention of tuberculosis and for the care of patients, from January 1, 1903, to January 1, 1908.
- 123. Chart, showing the detailed cost in handling tuberculosis for the year 1907.
- 124. Display of instructions to nurses, diet, etc.

PENNSYLVANIA SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF TUBERCULOSIS.

I. General.

- Four framed cards, showing pictures of unsanitary housing conditions as investigated by the Octavia Hill Association of Philadelphia. Such conditions are gradually being improved by the effective work of the Octavia Hill Association.
- Card, outlining facts of housing investigations in Philadelphia, made by the Octavia Hill Association.
- Card, in answer to the frequent query: "How can I sleep out of doors while living in the city?"
- Card, giving list of hospitals in Pennsylvania treating tuberculosis.
- Card, giving list of free dispensaries in Pennsylvania treating tuberculosis.
- Card, giving list of sanatoriums in Pennsylvania treating tuberculosis.
- Card, stating prevalence of tuberculosis among school-children of Philadelphia. This card explains the necessity of instructing each child upon this subject.
- Card, outlining purpose and work of the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.
- Card, explaining the work of the Bureau of Information, conducted by the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.
- Card, summarizing the titles of leaflets of instruction issued by the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.
- Card, outlining work of the Employment Exchange, conducted by the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.
- Educational card, explaining that tuberculosis is a house disease.
- Educational card, explaining that alcohol and alcoholic medicines are not cures for consumption.
- Educational card, explaining that house dust is a common cause of tuberculosis.
- Educational card, explaining that the instructed and careful consumptive is not dangerous to those with whom he lives and works.
- Educational card, explaining facts regarding the registration of tuberculosis in the city of Philadelphia.
- Educational card, explaining facts regarding the disinfection of homes in the city of Philadelphia.
- Educational card, explaining facts regarding the examination of sputum in the city of Philadelphia.
- Card, outlining educational work of the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.
- Statistical card, showing by colored diagrams deaths from all causes — 1906 — Philadelphia, between the ages of twenty and thirty and thirty and forty years.

- Statistical card, showing by diagram deaths from pulmonary and other forms of tuberculosis in Philadelphia by months, 1906.
- Statistical card, showing deaths from all causes (1905), by ages.
- Statistical card, showing by diagram death-rate per 100,000 population from different causes (1905), registration area U. S., compared with Philadelphia.
- Set of publications, containing one each of books and pamphlets on the subject of tuberculosis written by Pennsylvanians.
- Two full-size contrasted rooms, one showing unsanitary conditions as frequently found by nurses on the first visit; the other, showing the same room put into sanitary condition.
- Two cards containing statements explanatory of the conditions in the two rooms above mentioned.
- Card, explaining facts relative to the treatment of five typical cases by the Visiting Nurse Society.
- Card, illustrative of the coöperation effected in Philadelphia between the Visiting Nurse Society and the Starr Center Association in fighting tuberculosis.
- Card, containing pictures illustrative of the work of the Visiting Nurse Society of Philadelphia.
- Six cards, illustrative of the work being done by Consumers' League of Philadelphia in combating tuberculosis among the sweat-shops of that city.
- Card, illustrating the work of the Polyclinic Hospital of Philadelphia in combating lupus.
- Six cards, illustrating the work being done by the Starr Center Association of Philadelphia (a social settlement) in combating tuberculosis.
- Four cards, illustrating the work of the Tuberculosis Dispensary, recently established at the Germantown Hospital, Germantown, Pennsylvania.
- Card, illustrating the work of the Widener Memorial Home, Philadelphia, in combating surgical tuberculosis.
- Six cards, illustrative of the campaign against tuberculosis being conducted by the Kensington Dispensary, Kensington District, Philadelphia.
- Four cards, illustrating the work of the Presbyterian Hospital Tuberculosis Club, Philadelphia.
- Twenty-two cards, illustrative of housing conditions in Pittsburg. Taken in connection with the Pittsburg Survey.
- Cards relating to antituberculosis work being done in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania.
- Card outlining the coöperation effected between the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis with the merchants and manufacturers of Pennsylvania.
- Card outlining the coöperation effected between the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis with the labor unions of Pennsylvania.
- Hygienic Associations and Institutions and Private Institutions.*
- (Photographs and comments), unsanitary housing conditions.
- Investigations made by Octavia Hill Association.

- Card (statements), in answer to question: "How can I sleep out of doors while living in the city?"
- Card (statements), hospitals and sanatoriums in and around Philadelphia treating tuberculosis.
- Card (statements), free dispensaries (Philadelphia) treating tuberculosis.
- Card (statements), tuberculosis and school-children of Philadelphia.
- Card (statements), The Bureau of Information, Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.
- Card (leaflets), issued by the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.
- Card (statements), purpose, Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.
- Card (statements), tuberculosis a house disease.
- Card (statements), alcohol and alcoholic medicines.
- Card (statements), The Pennsylvania Society's Educational Work.
- Card (statements), house dust.
- Card (statements), do you vote right?
- Card (statements), Employment Exchange, Pennsylvania Society.
- Card, the instructed consumptive is not dangerous.
- Card (statements), registration of tuberculosis.
- Card (statements), examination of sputum.
- Card (statements), disinfection of homes.
- Card (statements), money loss, due to tuberculosis, city of Philadelphia.
- Statistical card, deaths from tuberculosis (Pennsylvania), large cities and towns, 1905.
- Statistical card (diagrams), deaths from all causes (1906), Philadelphia, twenty to thirty years and thirty to forty years.
- Statistical card (diagram), deaths from pulmonary and from other forms of tuberculosis, by months (1906), Philadelphia.
- Statistical card (diagram), deaths from all causes (1905), by ages.
- Statistical card (diagram), death-rates per 100,000 population, from different causes (1905). Registration area United States, compared with Philadelphia.
- Set of publications, Pennsylvania physicians.
- One set of contrasted rooms, seven feet high, occupying 150 square feet of floor space. These rooms are carefully trimmed to present the contrast between a sanitary and an unsanitary room.
- One cabinet containing sputum cups, drinking cups, etc.
- Visiting Nurse Society*, Philadelphia, Pa.
- Two cards (statements), contrasted rooms.
- Card (statements), five typical tuberculous patients.
- Card (statements), tuberculosis problem and Visiting Nurse Society in coöperation with the Starr Center Association.
- Card (pictures).
- Consumers' League*, Philadelphia, Pa.
- Card (statements), work in sweat-shops.
- Three cards (statements), Consumers' League label.
- Two cards (statements), protection in employment.
- Consumptives' Home*, Chestnut Hill, Pa.
- Card (pictures).

- Presbyterian Hospital*, Philadelphia, Pa.
 Card (statements), history sheet and nurses' report.
 Card (statements), work of the Tuberculosis Class Nurse.
 Card (statements), purpose of the Tuberculosis Class.
 Card (statements), organization of the Tuberculosis Class.

 Card (picture).
- Starr Center*, Philadelphia, Pa.
 Four cards (pictures).
 Two cards (statements).
- Widener Memorial Home*, Logan Station, Pa.
 Card (pictures).
- Germantown Hospital*, Germantown, Pa.
 Four cards (pictures).
- Kensington Dispensary*, Philadelphia, Pa.
 Six cards (pictures and statements).
- Dermady Cottage Sanatorium*, Morton, Pa.
 Three cards (pictures).
 One shack.
- Fern Cliff Sanatorium*, White Haven, Pa.
 One card (pictures).
- Blue Ridge Mountain Sanatorium*, Blue Ridge Summit, Pa.
 Two shacks.
- Sunnyrest Sanatorium*, White Haven, Pa.
 One card (pictures).
 One model shack.
- The Orchards*, White Haven, Pa.
 One card (pictures).

PRIVATE INSTITUTIONS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

- Card, illustrating the work being done at Fern Cliff Sanatorium, White Haven, Pa.
- Models of two shacks used at the Blue Ridge Mountain Sanatorium, Blue Ridge Summit, Pa.
- Card and one model shack illustrative of the work being done at Sunnyrest Sanatorium, White Haven, Pa.
- Card, illustrative of the work being done at the "Orchards," White Haven, Pa.
- Cabinet, containing samples of sputum cups, drinking cups, one working model of sputum cup forms, together with paper-cutting outfit.
- Three cards illustrative of work being done at Dermady Sanatorium, Morton, Pa.
- Model of shack used at Dermady Sanatorium, Morton, Pa.

HENRY PHIPPS INSTITUTE.

- Model of present quarters of the Henry Phipps Institute.
- Model of proposed new building for the Henry Phipps Institute.
8. Architectural plans for proposed new building for the Henry Phipps Institute. (Six wall charts.)
- Specimen volume of case records.

- 10-12. Annual reports, bound in leather. (3 volumes.)
13. Set of blank forms of all kinds — hospital, laboratory, and office — bound in one volume.
14. Specimen packages of preventive supplies.
15. Specimen package of preventive supplies open to show contents.
- 16-18. History of the Henry Phipps Institute.
19. Photograph of present quarters, with description.
- 20, 21. Points of excellence aimed at in plans for new building.
22. International course of lectures.
- 23-25. Business management, accounts, etc.
- 26-28. Laboratory organization, with photographs.
- 29, 30. Training School for Nurses, with photographs.
- 31-42. Record of typical hospital case, including history, special examinations, laboratory reports, temperature sheets, autopsy report with bacteriological and historical findings.
- 43, 44. Hospital statistics for first, second, third, and fourth years.
45. Autopsy records.
46. Diet for hospital patients.
47. Rules for medical staff.
- 48-50. Photographs, with descriptive text, showing interior of Henry Phipps Institute.
- 51-56. Record of a typical dispensary case, with history, examinations, special examinations, laboratory reports, inspectress' reports, etc.
- 57, 58. Dispensary statistics for first, second, third, and fourth years.
59. Method of supplying milk.
60. Method of inspecting.
61. Supplies for prevention.
62. Rules for patients, in English, Yiddish, and Italian.
63. Map of Philadelphia, showing location of 1000 patients treated during first six months.
64. Photographs of dispensary with descriptive text.
65. Special clinics.

Exhibition of Pathological Material: Lesions of Lung and Other Viscera.

66. Chronic tuberculosis of lung, with cavity formation.
67. Tuberculosis of left lung, showing scattered areas of bronchopneumonia, also typical distribution of tubercles in grape-like fashion, following ramifications of bronchi.
68. Right lung. The entire upper lobe is replaced by a large cavity lined by a pseudomembrane. The lower lobe shows numerous miliary tubercles in groups.
69. Left lung. A few tubercles near apex of upper lobe and a few very small ones scattered elsewhere in the lung.
70. Liver. Caseous tubercles of liver from a case of pulmonary tuberculosis.
71. Base of right lung non-tuberculous. Extensive bronchiectasis.
72. Anthracosis of lung with tubercles.
73. Thickening of pleura. Large cavity upper lobe. Conglomerate tubercles and caseous pneumonia.
74. Cavity formation of left lung.
75. Right lung congested. Left lung riddled with cavities.

76. Congestion. Edema of lung. No tuberculous areas found. Alveoli dilated.
77. Hypernephroma.
78. Chronic tuberculosis with cavity formation. Miliary tubercles. Bronchopneumonia.
79. Large cavity with anthracosis.
80. Tuberculosis of lung. Thickened pleura. Cavities.
81. Tuberculosis of lung with cavity formation. Large loculated cavity with trabeculae running across it.
82. Tuberculosis of the mesenteric lymph-glands.
83. Parietal peritoneum showing tuberculous nodules. Bovine tuberculosis in human being.
84. Chronic tuberculosis of lung with cavity formation.
85. Chronic tuberculous ulceration of larynx and trachea.
86. Advanced tuberculosis of kidney.
87. Anthracosis and scattered tubercles with areas of bronchopneumonia. Cavity.
88. Ulceration of intestines.
89. Advanced caseous pneumonia. Small cavities.
90. Chronic tuberculosis of lungs with cavity formation.
91. Cavity in region of midclavicular line. Lung collapsed. Thickened pleura.
92. Chronic tuberculosis of lungs with cavity formation.
93. Tuberculosis of lung of infant three years old.
94. Caseous pneumonia of child's lung. Miliary tubercles.
95. Ulceration of intestine. Induration of margins of ulcers, especially in cecum.
96. Chronic tuberculosis of testicle.
97. Chronic tuberculosis of lungs with large cavities.
98. Left lung of case of pulmonary tuberculosis. Cavity formation. Thickening of pleura.
99. Chronic tuberculosis of lungs with enormous thickening of pleura.
100. Chronic tuberculosis of lungs. Miliary tubercles. Areas of caseation and early bronchopneumonia.
101. Large cavity of right lung.
102. Tuberculosis of the serous surface of the stomach. Large tuberculous nodules of bovine type.
103. Cavity formation of upper lobe, showing opening into pleura producing pyopneumothorax.
104. Tuberculosis of lungs—bovine type.
105. Tuberculosis of lungs, showing small cavity formation.
106. Lung, showing small sections of large cavity lined by a pseudomembrane.
107. Chronic tuberculosis of lungs, with increase of fibrous tissue.
108. Large cavity, occupying entire upper lobe of lung.
109. Right lung, showing right-sided pleural effusion.
110. Chronic pulmonary tuberculosis with large cavity formation.
111. Right lung. Large cavity of upper lobe. Lower lobe studded with tubercles.
112. Chronic obliterating pericarditis and miliary tuberculosis of lungs.

113. Large loculated cavity of upper lobe of right lung. Slight increase of fibrous tissue and recent cavity in lower lobe.
114. Large cavity of upper lobe of left lung with perforation into pneumothorax.
115. Chronic tuberculosis of lungs with cavity formation.
116. Right lung from case of chronic pulmonary tuberculosis.
117. Omentum showing extensive fibrocaseous tuberculosis.
118. Section of left lung showing rapid coalescence of miliary and conglomerate tubercles.
119. Acute tuberculosis of left lung with cavity formation.
120. Caseous nodules at apex of right lung. Isolated nodules through remainder of lobe.
121. Empyema.
122. Empyema.
123. Large cavity of upper lobe.
124. Calcareous mesenteric lymph-glands.
125. Large cavity of upper lobe.
126. Extensive tuberculous infiltration of lung with cavity at apex.
127. Actinomycosis of lung.
128. Tuberculosis of mesenteric glands.
129. Tuberculosis of Fallopian tubes.
130. Caseous tubercles of lung.
131. Old caseous nodules of lung.
132. Tuberculosis chiefly confined to upper lobe of lung.
133. Extensive cavity formation of lung.
134. Caseous tubercles of lung.
135. Marked thickening of pleura about upper lobe.
136. Gall-stones.
137. Marked anthracosis.
138. Empyema.
139. Empyema.
140. Complete consolidation of lung.
141. Tuberculosis of omentum.

Gelatin Plate Specimens.

142. Liver—areas of calcification.
143. Atheroma of aorta.
144. Peribronchial tuberculosis. Anthracosis.
145. Fibroid pleurisy of lung.
146. Early tubercles in kidney.
147. Tuberculous mesenteric glands.
148. Post-mortem intussusception of intestine.
149. Post-mortem intussusception of intestine.
150. Tuberculosis of kidney with cysts.
151. Tuberculosis of testicle.
152. Ulcerative tuberculosis of kidney.
153. Tuberculosis of intestine. Large cyst.
154. Fatty and amyloid liver.
155. Large caseous tubercles of liver.
156. Parenchymatous nephritis.

157. Tuberculous mesenteric glands.
158. Caseous pneumonia.
159. Amyloid spleen.
160. Tuberculous pericarditis.
161. Tuberculosis of adrenals.
162. Fatty cirrhosis of liver.
163. Amyloid spleen.
164. Passive congestion of liver.
165. Double ureter of kidney.
166. Atelectasis of lung.
167. Hemorrhagic infarct of lung.
168. Tuberculous nodules of spleen.
169. Intestinal adhesions in tuberculous enteritis.
170. Tuberculous bronchopneumonia.
171. Tuberculous bronchopneumonia.
172. Tuberculosis of udder of cow.
173. Tuberculosis of lung of cow.
174. Tuberculous nodules of spleen.
175. Miliary tubercles of mesentery.
176. Amyloid spleen with infarct.
177. Tuberculous ulcer of intestine.
178. Calculi in kidney.
179. Tuberculous ulcer of intestine.
180. Uric-acid gravel of kidney.
181. Miliary tubercles of kidney.
182. Miliary tubercles of liver.
183. Amyloid liver.
184. Thrombus of iliac vein.
185. Tuberculous lymph-gland of cow.
186. Tubercles of spleen.
187. Healed tuberculous lesions at apex of lung.
188. Caseous pneumonia.
189. Cavity of upper lobe of lung.

Exhibition of Pathological Material: Tuberculous Lesions and Complications Affecting the Central Nervous System (Gelatin Plate Specimens).

190. Calcified plates of spinal cord.
191. Tuberculous meningomyelitis.
192. Isolated caseating tubercles of the choroid plexus of the lateral cerebral ventricles.
193. Miliary tubercles of the choroid plexus of the lateral cerebral ventricles.
194. Large caseating tubercles of the choroid plexus of the lateral cerebral ventricles.
195. Gelatinous exudate of the lateral ventricles.
196. Gelatinous hemorrhagic exudate of the lateral cerebral ventricles.
197. Gelatinous hemorrhagic exudate of the lateral cerebral ventricles.
198. Hemorrhagic ependymitis with slight gelatinous exudation of the lateral cerebral ventricles.
199. Gelatinous exudate of the middle cerebral ventricles; subependymal hemorrhage complicating pulmonary tuberculosis.

- 200. Cortical venous thrombosis complicating pulmonary tuberculosis.
- 201. Subcortical venous thrombosis complicating pulmonary tuberculosis.
- 202. Venous thrombosis of the cerebellum.
- 203. Gross cerebral hemorrhage of venous origin affecting the cortex and subcortex, complicating pulmonary tuberculosis.
- 204. Productive (healing) type of tuberculous meningitis localized to the mesial surface of the cerebral hemispheres. Miliary tubercles of the choroid plexus.
- 205. Tyroma (organized tuberculous tumor of pons varolii).
- 206. Multiple tyromata of brain. Specimens showing tubercles in pons, cerebellum, and cerebral cortex.
- 207. Cortical atrophy; secondary tumor; marked venous congestion complicating advanced pulmonary tuberculosis.
- 208. Hemorrhagic cyst of pineal gland complicating pulmonary tuberculosis.
- 209. Colloid and hemorrhagic cyst of pineal gland complicating pulmonary tuberculosis.

Exhibition of Brains in Jars.

- 210. Tuberculous plastic meningitis.
- 211. Varicose veins of the cortex.
Passive congestion.
Secondary chronic leptomeningitis.
- 212. Atrophy of cortex with marked subpial edema.
- 213. Atrophy of cortex.
Internal hydrocephalus.
Terminal passive congestion.
- 214. Tuberculosis of cortex.
Tuberculous adherent pachymeningitis.
- 215. Gelatinous exudate in one posterior horn.
- 216. Atrophy of olfactory lobe.
- 217. Anomalous position of pineal gland.
- 218. Varicosity of veins of cortex.
- 219. Marked passive congestion with varicosity of veins of cortex.
- 220. Atrophy of cortex.
Thrombosis.
- 221. Multiple areas of hemorrhagic softening.
- 222. Tuberculous meningitis.
Hemorrhage of choroid plexus.
Hemorrhage of pons.
- 223. Tuberculous meningitis.
- 224. Inductive meningitis.
- 225. Turbid edema with gross atrophy.
- 226. Suicide attempted.
Atrophy of cortex.
- 227. Hemorrhagic softening of base.
- 228. Atrophy of cortex with edema.
- 229. Miliary tubercles, healing type, localized to mesial surface of the brain.
- 230. Hemorrhagic softening of the base of the brain.
- 231. Unilateral tuberculous meningitis due to thrombosis.
- 232. Tuberculous meningoencephalitis.
- 233. Advanced atrophy of the cortex.

234. Miliary tubercles of the meninges.
235. Tuberculous softening at the base of frontal lobe.
Congestion of cortex.
236. Tuberculosis of the meninges.
237. Venous thrombosis.
Perivenous leptomeningitis.
Venous hemorrhage.
238. Internal hydrocephalus.
239. Tortuosity of the veins of the cortex.
240. Marked infiltration of the epiglottis.
241. Ulceration of the epiglottis, exposing the cartilage.
242. Ulceration of the epiglottis, exposing the cartilage.
243. Numerous tubercles and ulcers on the laryngeal surface of the epiglottis.
244. Large superficial ulcer of the epiglottis.
245. Marked infiltration and breaking-down of the upper portion of the epiglottis, with exposure of the cartilage.
246. Marked infiltration of the arytenoid. Ulceration of the trachea.
247. Ulceration of the arytenoid, exposing the cartilage.
248. Deep fissured ulcer over the arytenoid.
249. Ulcers of the arytenoid and vocal cord.
250. Ulceration of the ventricle.
251. Marked ulceration and granulation of the subglottic region.
252. Marked granulation of the whole interior of the larynx.
253. Marked destruction of the laryngeal tissue.
254. Blood-clot filling the entire lumen of the larynx.

 AWARDS.

Very early in the organization the Central Committee announced a number of awards in connection with the exhibition, and in February, 1908, the Smithsonian Institution offered the Hodgkins Fund Prize of $1500 in accordance with the following announcement:

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION.

Hodgkins Fund Prize.

In October, 1891, Thomas George Hodgkins, Esquire, of Setauket, New York, made a donation to the Smithsonian Institution, the income from a part of which was to be devoted to "the increase and diffusion of more exact knowledge in regard to the nature and properties of atmospheric air in connection with the welfare of man." In furtherance of the donor's wishes, the Smithsonian Institution has from time to time offered prizes, awarded medals, made grants for investigations, and issued publications.

In connection with the approaching International Congress on Tuberculosis, which will be held in Washington, September 21 to October 12, 1908, a prize of $1500 is offered for the best treatise "On the Relation of Atmospheric Air to Tuberculosis." Memoirs having relation to the cause, spread, prevention, or cure of tuberculosis are included within the general terms of the subject.

Any memoir read before the International Congress on Tuberculosis, or sent to the Smithsonian Institution or to the Secretary-General of the Congress before its close, namely, October 12, 1908, will be considered in the competition.

The memoirs may be written in English, French, German, Spanish, or Italian. They should be submitted either in manuscript or typewritten copy, or if in type, printed as manuscript. If written in German, they should be in Latin script. They will be examined and the prize awarded by a Committee appointed by the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution in conjunction with the officers of the International Congress on Tuberculosis.

Such memoirs must not have been published prior to the Congress. The Smithsonian Institution reserves the right to publish the treatise to which the prize is awarded.

No condition as to the length of the treatises is established, it being expected that the practical results of important investigations will be set forth as convincingly and tersely as the subject will permit.

The right is reserved to award no prize if, in the judgment of the Committee, no contribution is offered of sufficient merit to warrant such action.

Memoirs designed for consideration should be addressed to either "The Smithsonian Institution, Washington, District of Columbia, U. S. A.," or to "Dr. John S. Fulton, Secretary-General of the International Congress on Tuberculosis, 714 Colorado Building, Washington, District of Columbia, U. S. A." Further information, if desired by persons intending to become competitors, will be furnished on application.

CHARLES D. WALCOTT,
Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

Washington, D. C., February 3d, 1908.

Up to the time of going to press, the award of the Hodgkins Fund Prize had not been announced. The arrangements for all the competitions, authorized by the Central Committee, were made by the subcommittee, of which Dr. Charles J. Hatfield was chairman (see page 16). This subcommittee organized a jury of awards and made all necessary arrangements to enable this jury to complete its task and announce the results before October 12th. The jury of awards, or Board of Judges, was made up as follows:

Awards. Class A: A cash prize of $100 to the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis; Mr. Wallace Hatch, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. "Plain Facts about Tuberculosis," Tract No. 9.

A Silver Medal to Verein zur Bekämpfung der Schwindsucht in Chemnitz und Umgebung; Chemnitz, Germany. "Schutz der Schwindsucht."

A Gold Medal to Dr. O. D. Wescott, Denver, Colorado. "Consumption is the Most Common Form of Tuberculosis."

Class B: Cash prize not awarded.

A Gold Medal to Dr. H. S. Goodall, New York. "Leaflet for Teachers."

A Silver Medal to Dr. George H. Kress, Los Angeles, California. "The Warfare Against Tuberculosis and the Relation of Teachers Thereto."

Class C: A cash prize of $100 to Verein zur Bekämpfung der Schwindsucht in Chemnitz und Umgebung.

A Gold Medal to Dr. George H. Kress, Los Angeles, California.

A Silver Medal to Miss Mabel Jacques, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

In Classes D, E, F, and G no awards were made.

Competition VIII.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the best exhibits sent in by any States of the United States, illustrating effective organization for the restriction of tuberculosis.

Awards.—A Gold Medal to the State of New York; Dr. Eugene H. Porter, Commissioner of Health, Albany, New York.

A Silver Medal to the State of Massachusetts; Dr. Arthur T. Cabot, Chairman of the State Committee, Boston, Massachusetts.

A Silver Medal to the State of Pennsylvania; Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, Commissioner of Health, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Competition IX.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the best exhibits sent in by any State or country (the United States excluded) illustrating effective organization for the restriction of tuberculosis.

Awards.—A Gold Medal to Germany; Prof. Dr. Nietner, Berlin, Germany.

A Silver Medal to Sweden; Dr. Bertil Buhre, Stockholm, Sweden.

A Silver Medal to Great Britain; Mr. J. J. Perkins, London, England.

Competition X—A.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the best contribution to the pathological exhibit.

Awards.—A Gold Medal to the United States Bureau of Animal Industry; Dr. John R. Mohler, Bureau of Animal Industry, Washington.

A Gold Medal to the Exhibit from England; Professor Sims Woodhead, Cambridge, England.

A Silver Medal to the Boston University; Dean of the University, Boston, Massachusetts.

A Silver Medal to the Henry Phipps Institute; Dr. Lawrence F. Flick, Director, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Honorable Mention to McGill University; Professor J. G. Adami, Montreal, Canada.

Honorable Mention to New York State Veterinary College, Ithaca, New York.

Honorable Mention to University of Michigan; Professor Victor C. Vaughan, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Honorable Mention to the German Exhibit; Prof. Dr. Nietner, Berlin, Germany.

Honorable Mention to the Special Exhibit of Saranac Laboratory for the Study of Tuberculosis; Dr. Edward R. Baldwin, Saranac Lake, New York.

Competition X—B.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the best exhibit of laws and ordinances in force June 1, 1908, for the prevention of tuberculosis by any State of the United States.

Awards.—A Gold Medal to the State of Wisconsin; Dr. C. A. Harper, Secretary State Board of Health, Madison, Wisconsin.

A Silver Medal to the State of Maryland; Dr. Marshall L. Price, Secretary State Board of Health, Baltimore, Maryland.

A Silver Medal to the State of New York; Dr. Eugene H. Porter, Commissioner of Health, Albany, New York.

Competition X—C.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the best exhibit of laws and ordinances in force June 1, 1908, for the prevention of tuberculosis by any State or country (the United States excluded).

No awards.

Competition X—D.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the best exhibit of laws and ordinances in force June 1, 1908, for the prevention of tuberculosis by any municipality in the world.

Awards.—A Gold Medal to New York City; Dr. Hermann Biggs, Department of Health, New York.

A Silver Medal to Saranac Lake; Dr. Edward R. Baldwin, Saranac Lake, New York.

A Silver Medal to the City of Chicago; Dr. W. A. Evans, Commissioner of Health, Chicago, Illinois.

Competition X—E.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the society engaged in the crusade against tuberculosis having the largest membership in relation to population.

Awards.—A Gold Medal to the National Swedish Antituberculosis Association; Dr. Bertil Buhre, Stockholm, Sweden.

A Silver Medal to the Maryland Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis; Mr. H. Wirt Steele, Executive Secretary, Baltimore, Maryland.

Competition X—F.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the plans which have been proved best for raising money for the crusade against tuberculosis.

Awards.—A Gold Medal to the National Swedish Antituberculosis Association; Dr. Bertil Buhre, Stockholm, Sweden.

A Silver Medal to the Wisconsin Committee of the International Congress on Tuberculosis; Dr. Mazyck P. Ravenel, Madison, Wisconsin.

A Silver Medal to the Working Men's Club; Mr. John F. Gunshanan, Hartford, Connecticut.

Honorable Mention to the Maryland Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis; Mr. H. Wirt Steele, Executive Secretary, Baltimore, Maryland.

Competition X—G.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the best exhibit of a passenger railway car in the interest of the crusade against tuberculosis.

No awards.

Competition X—H.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the best plans for the employment of arrested cases of tuberculosis.

Awards.—A Gold Medal to the Eudowood Sanatorium Farm; Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs, Towson, Maryland.

A Silver Medal to the Henry Phipps Training School for Nurses; Dr. Lawrence F. Flick, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Competition X—I.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the best exhibit of new architectural plans for a sanatorium for the treatment of curable cases of tuberculosis among the working classes.

Awards.—Gold Medal not awarded.

A Silver Medal to Mr. Lindley Johnson, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

A Silver Medal for the plans shown in the Agnes Memorial Exhibit; Wagner and Manning, Denver, Colorado.

Honorable Mention to Milton See and Son, New York.

Honorable Mention to Garland, Lister and West, London, England.

Honorable Mention to A. Randall Wells, Hastings, England.

Competition X—K.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the best exhibit of new architectural plans for a hospital for the treatment of advanced pulmonary tuberculosis.

Awards.—Gold Medal not awarded.

A Silver Medal to the exhibits of the Swedish National Antituberculosis Association; Dr. Bertil Buhre, Stockholm, Sweden.

A Silver Medal to the Henry Phipps Institute; Dr. Lawrence F. Flick, Director, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

A Silver Medal to the Boston Consumptives' Hospital; Dr. Simon F. Cox, Boston, Massachusetts.

Competition X—L.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for an exhibit of the most practical method for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis.

No awards.

Competition X—M.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the best exhibit of a unit package of preventive supplies for a tuberculous patient for a definite period of time (one, two, three, or four weeks).

Awards.—A Gold Medal to the State Board of Health of Maryland; Dr. Marshall L. Price, Secretary, Baltimore, Maryland.

A Silver Medal to the Henry Phipps Institute; Dr. Lawrence F. Flick, Director, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Competition XI.—A Gold Medal and two Silver Medals are offered for the best exhibit of a workshop or factory, constructed and managed in the interest of the crusade against tuberculosis. Each medal will be accompanied by a diploma or certificate of award.

But one award was made in this competition—a Silver Medal to the Massachusetts Exhibit, for the series of photographs showing devices to improve factory conditions in the State; Dr. Arthur T. Cabot, Boston, Massachusetts.

SPECIAL AWARDS TO EXHIBITS NOT IN COMPETITION.

A Gold Medal to the United States Government Printing Office for sanitary cuspidors and appliances; Dr. William J. Manning, Washington.

A Gold Medal to the United States Department of the Interior for an exhibit of tuberculosis among the Indians; Francis E. Leupp, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Washington.

A Gold Medal to the United States Department of Commerce and Labor for its exhibit of charts and maps bearing upon tuberculosis, prepared by the Census Bureau; S. N. D. North, Director Census Bureau, Washington.

A Gold Medal to the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service; Surgeon-General Walter Wyman, Washington.

A Gold Medal to the Department of Health of the State of Pennsylvania in recognition of its system of dispensaries and sanatoriums; Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, Commissioner of Health, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

A Gold Medal to the State of Colorado, with special mention of the relief map of the State exhibited by Dr. Charles Denison, Denver, Colorado.

A Gold Medal to the Massachusetts State Committee of the International Congress on Tuberculosis for the bound volume on "Tuberculosis in Massachusetts," Dr. Arthur T. Cabot, Boston, Massachusetts.

A Gold Medal to the Antituberculosis League of Porto Rico, for noteworthy progress since the institution of the League; Miss Acacia G. del Arroyo, San Juan, Porto Rico.

A Gold Medal to the National Association for the Combating of Tuberculosis of Denmark; Hon. C. Brun, Washington.

A Gold Medal to the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company for its exhibit of exemplary work in its hospital and welfare departments; Dr. R. W. Corwin, Pueblo, Colorado.

A Gold Medal to the Playground Association of America; Mr. Henry S. Curtis, Secretary, Washington.

A Gold Medal to the International Children's School Farm League; Mrs. Henry G. Parsons, New York.

A Gold Medal to the Journal of the Outdoor Life, Trudeau, New York, in recognition of services in the general campaign against tuberculosis throughout the United States; Mr. Warwick S. Carpenter, Trudeau, New York.

A Gold Medal to Dr. D. Sarason, Berlin, Germany, for models and plans showing new and interesting principles in house construction in its relation to the prevention of tuberculosis.

A Gold Medal to the Anna von Rath Stiftung, Berlin, Germany, for philanthropic work illustrated in its exhibit.

A Gold Medal to Professor J. G. Heymans, of the University of Ghent, Ghent, Belgium, for his exhibit illustrating his method of vaccination of cattle.

A Gold Medal to Professor Edouard Lang, of Vienna, for his efforts in the treatment of tuberculosis of the skin.

A Gold Medal to Dr. Simon von Unterberger, of St. Petersburg, for a valuable paper on "House Sanatoriums in the Fight with Tuberculosis," elaborating twelve theses or texts for wall charts.

A Silver Medal to Dr. Sims Woodhead, of Cambridge, England, for plans, with details and descriptions, of a sanatorium in England.

A Silver Medal to the State Department of Health of Pennsylvania for a model cottage for incipient cases of tuberculosis shown in Pennsylvania exhibit No. 26; Dr. Samuel B. Dixon, Commissioner of Health, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

A Silver Medal to the New York State Committee of the International Congress on Tuberculosis for its exhibit illustrating the production of clean milk; Dr. Herbert D. Pease, Department of Health, Albany, New York.

Medal to the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis; Dr. Livingston Farrand, Executive Secretary, New York.

Medal to the Sea Breeze Hospital; Miss Alice P. Thomson, Coney Island, New York.

Medal to the State Charities Aid Association; Mr. Homer Folks, New York.

A Silver Medal to the Central State Hospital Tuberculosis Department, Petersburg, Virginia, for preventive work in connection with tuberculosis among the negroes; Dr. W. F. Drewry, Petersburg, Virginia.

A Silver Medal to the Louisa M. Alcott and the Hawthorne Club jointly, of Boston, for an exhibit of their work in the training of children in the laws of hygiene and the prevention of tuberculosis; Dr. John B. Hawes, 2d, Boston, Massachusetts.

A Silver Medal to the Gaylord Farm Sanatorium, for its exhibit of the training of patients for after-care of themselves in their homes and occupations; Dr. David R. Lyman, Wallingford, Connecticut.

A Silver Medal to the Barlow Sanatorium, for the model, striving excellence in detail, construction, and installation; Dr. W. Jarvis Barlow, Los Angeles, California.

A Silver Medal to the Prudential Life Insurance Company, for its charts showing mortality from consumption in various occupations; Mr. Frederick L. Hoffman, Newark, New Jersey.

A Silver Medal to the Stony Wold Sanatorium for its method of securing maintenance through Ladies' Auxiliaries in many communities; Dr. H. S. Goodall, Lake Kusaqua, New York.

Honorable Mention to the Nathan Straus Exhibit in recognition of philanthropic effort in supplying milk to the children of the poor; Mr. Nathan Straus, New York.

Honorable Mention to the Department of Health of the State of Pennsylvania for twelve beautiful autotone films of human lungs, showing tuberculous conditions, this being the first application of this process to medical uses; Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, Commissioner of Health, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Honorable Mention to the State Board of Health of Maine for the exhibits of the Board; Dr. A. G. Young, Secretary, Augusta, Maine.

Honorable Mention to the State Board of Health of Michigan, for a model shack for home use, having novel and excellent features; Dr. F. W. Shumway, Secretary, Lansing, Michigan.

Honorable Mention to the New York State Department of Health, for six popular educational banners for use in tuberculosis campaigns; Dr. Eugene H. Porter, Commissioner of Health, Albany, New York.

Honorable Mention to the National Institution for Assisting Consumptives, Lisbon, Portugal, for an interesting sketch of the work of relief and prevention of tuberculosis in that country.

Honorable Mention to the Boston Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, in recognition of its special classes in hygienic instruction of delicate children, and its outdoor school for children afflicted with consumption; Mr. Walter E. Kruesi, Boston, Massachusetts.

Honorable Mention for the Exhibit of the Hospital for Crippled and Deformed Children; Dr. R. T. Taylor, Baltimore, Maryland.

Honorable Mention to Arthur V. Chapman of West Orange, New Jersey, for a model built by himself of a consumptive's shack, in which he has lived in his own back-yard for some years.

Honorable Mention to the Portland Open-air Sanatorium, for the model of a shack, and other models, showing valuable work done, and in progress; Dr. E. A. Pierce, Portland, Oregon.

Honorable Mention to the Pittsburg Sanatorium Educational Department, for its portable school exhibits; Dr. William C. White, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Honorable Mention to the Davos Hospital for Advanced Tuberculous Cases; Davos, Switzerland.

Honorable Mention to Dr. Theodore B. Sachs, of Chicago, Illinois, for his exhibit of charts showing results of investigation of tuberculosis conditions in Jewish districts in that city.

PUBLICITY.

In September, 1907, Miss Gertrude B. Knipp was engaged to supply regular information to the press concerning the International Congress on Tuberculosis. The following statement shows the distribution of this press information:

To newspapers in the United States	698
To medical journals in the United States.....	112
To other periodicals in the United States.....	371
To foreign newspapers	659
To foreign medical journals.....	393

The matter sent out was very generally utilized, and there is hardly a corner of the world which did not see some public mention of the Congress. In this country the active campaign of publicity developed a market for special articles, and a considerable number of such articles, prepared by independent writers, largely from information published by us, were sold to publishers.

When the date of the Congress approached, special facilities were provided for prompt and reliable reporting by the many correspondents sent to the Congress. The following account of this part of the work is reprinted here because it includes the judgment of an experienced publisher. It is taken from the "Journal of the Outdoor Life," Mr. Warwick Carpenter, editor.

"Ten days before the Congress opened press abstracts suitable for newspaper use were distributed by mail to 1580 newspapers, through the four important press services that have district headquarters in Washington. The arrangements to supply these press services with as much advance copy as could be secured were made several weeks earlier. To carry out this plan a letter was sent to all who were scheduled to read papers at the Congress and who could be reached in this country, asking for brief quotable abstracts. Early in September all of the material on hand, comprising 116 addresses or papers, classified according to sections and arranged chronologically, was gotten into type. To safeguard the 'release' of the copy at the proper time, each set of abstracts bore the 'release' line of the press service by which it was to be distributed. Of the 1580 papers served, the Associated Press handled 900, reaching the United States, Hawaii, Cuba, and Mexico directly, and getting in touch with Canada and the countries across the water by exchange services; the United Press, 375; the Hearst News Service, 250, and the New York 'Sun' Press Association, 55. Other copies were, of course, printed for the use of the local newspaper men, special correspondents, etc., during the week of the Congress.

"A schedule of the speeches that were in type was made out each day. Messengers were sent from one section room to another at short intervals to get the list of papers read up to a given time. Representatives of the press service were on duty in the press room, and as soon as a paper was read, a telephone call went to the central office of the press service, authorizing the 'release' of the copy already in type.

These figures show average receipts of 36 pieces of first-class mail (letters) daily for 337 days (Sundays not counted). During the month September 12th to October 12th, the incoming mail brought 125 pieces of first-class matter daily. The daily average of outgoing mail, for the whole time, was about double that coming in. During the month September 12th to October 12th the daily average outgoing mail was relatively very low.

COST.

When the Transactions are distributed, the Central Committee will have incurred a total expense amounting to more than $100,000 on account of the Sixth International Congress on Tuberculosis.

The funds were derived in part from membership fees, but chiefly through gifts by the generous citizens, whose names are recorded elsewhere as members of the Honorable Board of Counsel and of the College of Patrons. Besides the funds administered by the Central Committee, the Congress of the United States made two appropriations; one to the Department of State ($25,000) to meet the needs of the seven Federal Departments participating in the Congress and the Exhibition; the other ($40,000) being expended under the direction of the President, in preparing the New National Museum for the use of the Congress. The Central Committee had nothing to do with these two funds. Following is a statement of expenditures by the Central Committee up to January 1, 1909

Salaries and wages	$23,539.72

The Prize-Winning Essays and Leaflets.

In the following pages the essays and leaflets which were adjudged the best in the competitions are reproduced, as nearly as possible, in their original typographic style.

A cash prize of one hundred dollars was awarded to the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis for a leaflet entitled—

Plain Facts about Tuberculosis.

TRACT No. 9.

- Names. Consumption, decline, debility, phthisis, hectic fever are some of its general names. It may affect particular parts of the body and then be called by special names, as scrofula, hydrocephalus or water on the brain, lumbar abscess, iliac abscess, ischio-rectal abscess, fistula in ano, white swelling, bone caries, Pott's disease or hunchback, hip-joint disease, and lupus.
- Contagion. Tuberculosis is a communicable disease caused by the tubercle bacillus, a minute vegetable organism. It is always contracted from another suffering from the disease.
- Colds. It never comes from a cold, though a cold may first draw attention to it.
- Heredity. It is not hereditary. It is found most commonly in children of consumptives because they are more exposed to contagion.
- Implantation. The bacillus gets in by the nose, mouth, or an open wound. Wherever implanted it produces little nodules called tubercles. These may grow in size. They may soften, break open, and be expelled, leaving behind an ulcer or a cavity, bacilli being left in the walls of the ulcer to continue the disease.
- Cure. In cure nature throws a wall of scar tissues about the tubercle or cavity. This wall becomes gradually thicker and thicker, growing towards the center until nothing is left but a scar. This means perfect cure.

Plain Facts About Tuberculosis.

- Relapse. Until the scar is thoroughly formed, it may break down at any time, leaving the bacilli free to continue their action at that place, and a relapse ensues.
- Poisoning. While developing the disease the germs manufacture a poison which circulates in the blood, causing fever, increase in pulse-rate, chills, sweats, stomach disturbances, and wasting.
- Contributory Causes. Though the tubercle bacillus is the sole cause of the disease, there are several things which favor its development. The majority of people in good health are not susceptible. Anything tending to lower vitality improves the soil for the development of this little vegetable. Therefore poor and insufficient food, overwork, alcoholism, worry, dissipation, surroundings like a damp, dark, or overcrowded dwelling, severe diseases, like typhoid fever, repeated colds, etc., all tend to make a person susceptible to the disease.
- Incurable Cases. When the disease is far advanced and has affected the greater part of a vital organ or parts of many organs it is incurable.
- Curable Cases. In earlier stages the majority of cases can be cured.
- Mode of Cure. For cure the first thing necessary is to build the patient up to a perfect state of physical health. This is accomplished by rest, regular life, fresh air, and good nourishment.
- Rest. If the disease is active or advanced, rest, even rest in bed, may be necessary. In any case the patient must stop work and exercise until the pulse and temperature are under 100. He should return to work only on the advice of a physician. The patient should always have nine hours' sleep, retiring before 10 p. m.
- Fresh Air. He must sleep alone and when possible in a room alone. The windows of the sleeping room should be kept wide open day and night no matter what the weather. The idea is to make every inhalation one of unbreathed air. During the day the patient must spend as much time as possible out of doors.
- Diet. The diet should be generous, nourishing and easily digestible. The most nourishing food we possess is milk, raw eggs, raw or rare beef, and beefsteak. The more the patient consumes of these, the quicker he will build up.

Plain Facts About Tuberculosis.

- Alcohol. Alcohol (whisky, brandy, wines, and beer) is especially harmful.
- Prevention. In all cases, contagion to others can be prevented. The contagion or the germs are contained in the discharge from a tuberculous sore, therefore in cases of lung tuberculosis in the sputum. The germs are very small and frequently millions of them are spit up in a single day.
- Sputum. If the patient is careful with his sputum he is harmless; if he is careless, he is dangerous to others and also to himself. In tuberculosis spitting is one of nature's methods of getting rid of the germs. The patient should therefore never swallow his sputum, for fear of infecting other parts of the body. He should wear no beard or mustache to which particles of spit might adhere and be inhaled or swallowed. The hands should be washed and the mouth rinsed before eating.
- Spitting. To protect himself and others he should never spit where the sputum may dry and be swept into the air as powdered dust which may be inhaled. He should never spit on the floor, wall, carpet, stove, or sidewalk.
- Handkerchiefs. He should not spit into rags or handkerchiefs, since he contaminates the hands, face, and clothes with them.
- Spit Cups. The only things a consumptive should use to receive sputum are spit cups and paper napkins. If the spit cups are made of paper they should be burned; if of china or metal they should contain a solution of lye (ordinary household lye), be emptied into the hopper once or twice a day and boiled. Pocket sputum cups for use away from home may be obtained in drug-stores. The lips should be wiped with paper napkins.
- Paper Napkins. When a spit cup is not at hand, paper napkins should be used for the sputum. These should be used only once and put into a paper bag and burned.
- Coughing and Sneezing. When coughing or sneezing spit particles may be thrown out, and hence a paper napkin should be held before the lips.
- Breath. The breath of a consumptive does not contain the germs and will not produce the disease.

Plain Facts About Tuberculosis.

- Soiled Linen. The patient's soiled wash clothes and bed linen should be handled as little as possible and should be boiled before washing.
- Disinfection. Before a room which has been occupied by a consumptive is used again it should be thoroughly cleansed. The furniture, pictures, and curtains should be removed to the yard and scrubbed; carpets should be raised and disinfected; the floor scrubbed and the walls scraped and repapered.
- Advertised Cures. Consumptives are warned against the many widely advertised cures, specifics, and special methods of treatment for consumption. No cure can be expected from any kind of medicine or method except the regularly accepted treatment which depends upon pure air, an out-of-door life, and nourishing food.

It is in the power of man to cause all germ disease to disappear from the world."

CONSUMPTION IS THE MOST COMMON FORM OF Tuberculosis
AND IS A GERM DISEASE.

NO SPITTING, NO CONSUMPTION

This leaflet is published as a brief of information to those so unfortunate as to be the victims of this disease; as a warning to those whose physical condition predisposes them to the acquiring of this infection, and as a protest to those who are carelessly spreading the germs of consumption throughout the state.

Public health is the foundation on which reposes the happiness of the people and the power of the country."

It is an axiom of the great that, 'The State is all of us'; and from that we take the corollary, 'The greatest good to the greatest number.' The function of the State is, therefore, the welfare of the people; not alone material, striving to regulate by the machinery of law their commerce; not alone spiritual, directing the thoughts of men to the things not of this earth; but equally important are the things pertaining to the public health and the physical well-being—teaching men to lead healthful, wholesome lives and thereby transmit to their children and their children's children the strength and virility of sturdy manhood and womanhood."—John Selden.

Tuberculosis

Is a germ (parasite) disease; it is an infectious disease; it is a preventable and curable disease; it is commonly called CONSUMPTION.

Cause.

The growth of certain germs (bacilli) in the body tissues. In the lungs the disease is known as Pulmonary Consumption. Frequently associated with the disease of the lungs there is tubercular invasion of other organs or parts of the body; tuberculosis of the larynx, or throat; of the glands, chiefly of the neck, called Scrofula; of the joints, called White swelling; tuberculosis of the kidneys, of the bowels, of the peritoneum, and sometimes of the skin.

How the Disease is Communicated.

Millions of the germs of consumption are thrown off with the sputum that is coughed up from the lungs during each twenty-four hours; if the individual spits indiscriminately on the floor, the sidewalk, or the street the sputum dries rapidly, the germs are set free to mingle with the dust and to be blown about by currents of air, or swept up by the skirts of some woman in passing and breathed in by the passersby.

How the Disease is Acquired.

The means by which consumption may enter the human system are, (a) breathing the germs directly into the lungs through nose or mouth; (b) through the digestive tract, the eating of infected food-stuffs, the drinking of milk from tuberculous cows, the use of drinking glasses, eating utensils, and other articles that have been handled or used by consumptives; and (c) rarely, the infection being received through the skin.

The Disposal of Sputum.

Consumptives with a cough must expectorate, but they can do so in a way that will not seriously endanger the health of others. They owe this to the community in which they live and they owe it to themselves, for they can easily be further infected by breathing in the germs they have themselves spit out. They should be provided with proper receptacles in which they can expectorate when it is necessary; these are made in metal, glass, and paper, and are easily procurable at any good drug-store. For house use the square metal box with a paper refill is best; it is easily and quickly removed, without danger of soiling the fingers, and is then ready to be burned. For use out of doors there is a paper pocket cup that gives perfect satisfaction; these can be bought two dozen to the box at any of the shops. Handkerchiefs, old cloths, or preferably small gauze squares may be used and afterward burned. Paper napkins can be bought by the hundred for a few cents, and after once using immediately deposited in an ordinary paper bag that has been treated with a coating of paraffin on the inside, and the whole burned at the end of the day.

The Disposal of Sputum.

Symptoms of Tuberculosis.

The symptoms of incipient, pulmonary tuberculosis are few in number, and frequently not characteristic. They are often not sufficiently marked to attract the attention of the individual affected, and their significance may not be recognized by the physician, as there are other conditions which closely resemble beginning tuberculosis. The symptoms usually assigned to pulmonary tuberculosis, that is, persistent cough with expectoration, loss of appetite and weight, the spitting of blood, are really symptoms not of the incipient but of the advanced disease.

The following facts have been clearly demonstrated:

First: Incipient tuberculosis tends to recovery.

Second: Advanced tuberculosis can sometimes be arrested in its progress, or partially so, and life comfortably prolonged for a number of years.

Third: Far advanced tuberculosis, with or without mixed infection, tends to a fatal issue.

Fourth: Successful treatment and the prevention of the spread of the disease demand the earliest possible diagnosis.

Fifth: The positive diagnosis of incipient pulmonary tuberculosis may be made even when there is no cough or sputum; the finding of the tubercle bacilli in the sputum is merely confirmatory.

Treatment of Tuberculosis.

THERE IS NO SPECIFIC CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS. A SUFFICIENT AMOUNT OF PROPER FOOD, WITH PLENTY OF FRESH AIR AND REST, CONSTITUTE THE ESSENTIAL BASIS OF ALL SUCCESSFUL METHODS OF TREATMENT.

The consumptive is the ideal victim of the quack, charlatan, and vender of patent medicines.

If you have any reason to suspect that you have tuberculosis, consult a physician at once. The best treatment is OUTDOOR LIFE, REST, and plenty of GOOD FOOD, under careful and constant MEDICAL SUPERVISION.

If You Have Consumption

1. Be hopeful and cheerful, for your disease can be cured if you have not neglected it too long.
2. Obey your physician's instructions. You may improve steadily for months, and then lose it all by carelessness.
3. Spend as much time as possible out in the open air. Sleep out if possible. The night air is not harmful. If you have to sleep inside have your windows wide open. Sleep alone.
4. Be properly clad; do not load the body with tight clothes, or too many. Do not be afraid of cold weather as long as the body is adequately clothed.
5. Avoid eating when bodily or mentally tired, or when in a state of nervous excitement. Take plenty of nourishing food; consumptives often need more nourishment than they are inclined to take.
6. Milk, eggs, and fatty foods are especially valuable, but great harm may be done by overfeeding.
7. Eat slowly, chew your food well, avoid too much sweet, or anything which may cause indigestion.
8. Do not smoke, and do not drink liquor, wine, or beer, except by special permission from your physician, but drink plenty of good pure water between meals.
9. Sponge the chest with cold water morning and evening, then rub the body well with a coarse towel.
10. If you should have a hemorrhage do not be alarmed; do not take whisky to stop it, that will only make it worse, but keep quiet and send at once for a physician.

Be Hopeful and Expect a Cure.

To The Well.

Dust, dirt, dampness, and darkness are the friends of tuberculosis; sunshine, fresh air, soap and water are its enemies. Improper living, bad habits, and loss of sleep make you a favorable subject for infection.

Do not spend your money for beer or other liquors; they have no nutriment value, and are more or less harmful to the tissues of the body.

Spend your money for simple, well cooked food—good fresh meat, eggs, oatmeal, rice, and other vegetables, and for bread and butter, fruit and milk.

Do not live in houses or rooms previously occupied by a consumptive until they have been disinfected.

Keep your windows open day and night, live out of doors as much as possible, fill the lungs with pure air, breathe through the nostrils and not through the mouth.

Do not clutter up the house or your room with useless bric-a-brac, heavy hangings, or useless upholstered furniture; they are all dust-catchers, and dust is germ-laden. White-washed or painted walls are preferable to those covered with wall-paper; rugs that can be taken up and cleaned outside of the house are preferable to dust-catching carpets. Damp cloths and mops should be used instead of dusters and brooms.

THE PURE AIR, CLEAN LIVING, and GOOD FOOD which cure consumption are even more effective in warding it off.

Personal Cleanliness

Do not kiss any one.

Cover your mouth with your hand when you cough.

Wash your hands and clean your finger-nails before each meal.

Consult a dentist frequently as to the condition of your mouth and teeth.

Brush the teeth thoroughly and rinse the mouth before meals, and on arising in the morning and retiring at night.

Disinfection

Use a paper napkin with your meals, burning it immediately afterward.

See to it that the dishes you use, especially the silverware and drinking cups, are carefully scalded with boiling water after they are washed.

Handle your soiled personal and bed linen as little as possible, particularly handkerchiefs; before sending them to the laundry place them in a vessel containing a 5 per cent. solution of Carbolic acid, and let them remain there for a period of not less than two hours.

Fumigation

Formalin is probably the best fumigant we know of at the present time; it is also the simplest to use.

It is most effective when used in combination with the crystals of Potassium Permanganate. In the preparation of a room for fumigation all apertures, window crevices, key-holes, speaking tubes, etc., should be carefully stopped. For each 1,000 square feet of space to be fumigated use 10 ounces of the commercial solution of Formalin (40 per cent. of the gas in water) and 8 ounces of the crystals of Potassium Permanganate; spread the crystals in an even layer over the bottom of a wide, shallow pan, and over this pour the solution of Formalin, quickly leaving the room, placing a damp towel at the bottom of the door in order to confine the gas. Leave the room for twenty-four hours after starting fumigation, and preferably air for twenty-four hours before occupancy.

"How Should We Combat Bad Sanitary Conditions in Our Homes?"

1. By an educational campaign in the homes, carried out by the Board of Health and a staff of trained visitors.

2. By a compulsory notification of cases in all cities.

3. By enlarging the powers of health boards, so as to deal efficiently with the question of disinfection of the houses occupied by tuberculous patients.

4. By attention to housing of the poor, proper control of tenements, and the regulation by law of the number of persons in each house.

5. By placing upon the landlord the responsibility of providing, under control of the board of health, a clean, wholesome house for a new tenant.

6. By the wholesale condemnation of unsanitary streets and blocks and the rebuilding of them by the municipality."—Osler.

Verein zur Bekämpfung der Schwindsucht in Chemnitz und Umgebung. (C. V.)

Schutz vor Schwindsucht.

Eine der verheerendsten Krankheiten des Menschengeschlechtes ist die Schwindsucht. Ein Siebentel aller Menschen fällt ihr zum Opfer. Allein in Deutschland sterben daran alljährlich fast 130,000 Menschen.

Die Schwindsucht entsteht durch Einatmen eines winzig kleinen, nur bei sehr starker Vergrößerung sichtbaren Krankheitskeimes, des sogenannten Tuberkelbazillus. Sie ist ansteckend, d. h. sie kann von einem Menschen auf den anderen übertragen werden.

Aber nicht die ausgeatmete Luft etwa ist gefährlich; vielmehr findet die Ansteckung in der Regel durch den Auswurf statt, insbesondere dadurch, dass der Auswurf von Brustkranken auf den Fussboden oder ins Taschentuch gespuckt wird, hier trocknet und verstäubt und der eine oder der andere der zahlreich darin enthaltenen Krankheitskeime von Gesunden eingeatmet wird.

Die ersten Anzeichen der Lungenschwindsucht sind: längere Zeit andauernder Husten mit oder ohne Auswurf und Abmagerung. Oft bestehen ausserdem: Appetitlosigkeit, Mattigkeit, Bruststechen, abendliches oder nächtliches Fiebergefühl (Frösteln, Hitze), Nachtschweisse, Kurzatmigkeit und Bleichsucht. Ein fast sicheres Zeichen von Schwindsucht ist der Bluthusten.

Kein Mensch ist vor einer Erkrankung an Tuberkulose sicher. Es gibt aber zahlreiche Personen, die weit mehr als andere gefährdet sind, die Tuberkulose zu erwerben. Besonders häufig erkranken die Nachkommen Schwindsüchtiger, dann diejenigen, die im häuslichen oder beruflichen Leben in enge Berührung mit Schwindsüchtigen kommen, schliesslich die in staubigen Betrieben Arbeitenden (Müller, Bäcker, Glas-, Metall- und Steinschleifer, Feilenhauer, Wollarbeiter, Weber, Buchdrucker, Tabakarbeiter, Schneider u. a. m.).

Kinder sind gefährdeter als Erwachsene, besonders wenn sie an Skrofulose, englischer Krankheit oder Blutarmut leiden.

Wie schützt der Gesunde sich und seine Angehörigen vor Schwindsucht?

Die Wohnung sei geräumig, trocken, luftig, sonnig und sauber. Das grösste Zimmer ist zur Schlafstube zu wählen.

Die Nahrung sei eine aus Fleisch, Fett, mehlhaltigen Stoffen und Gemüsen zusammengesetzte. Für minder Bemittelte sind als billige Fleischnahrung zu empfehlen: Herz, Lunge, Kuheuter, Kalbsgekröse und mehrere Fischarten wie Schellfisch, Stockfisch und Heringe. Einen nahrhaften und preiswerten Fleischersatz bildet der Käse, besonders der Quarkkäse. Von pflanzlichen Nahrungsmitteln sind besonders reich an Nährstoffen und gleichwohl billig: Reis, getrocknete Erbsen, Bohnen und Linsen. Milch sollte, besonders von Kindern, nur in gekochtem Zustande genossen werden.

Wasche jeden Morgen den Oberkörper mit Wasser und Seife; nimm wenigstens einmal wöchentlich ein Voll- oder Brausebad!

Wasche stets die Hände vor dem Essen! Halte die Mundhöhle durch tägliches Bürsten der Zähne sauber!

Halte die Wohnung rein und staubfrei! Kehren wirbelt Staub auf! Wische Fussböden, sowie Möbel mit feuchten Tüchern!

Lass Licht und Luft in die Wohnung! Luft und Sonne vernichten in kurzer Zeit die meisten Krankheitskeime, darunter auch den Keim der Schwindsucht.

Verbringe Deine freie Zeit an Sonntagen nicht auf Tanzböden oder in rauchigen Lokalen, sondern gehe lieber ins Freie!

Vermeide Ausschweifungen jeder Art! Nicht dringend genug kann vor dem übermässigen Genuss alkoholischer Getränke gewarnt werden. Erschreckend gross ist die Häufigkeit der Schwindsucht unter den gewohnheitsmässigen Trinkern.

Gehe frühzeitig zu Bett! 7 bis 8 Stunden Schlaf sind unbedingt notwendig.

Ehe Du für ein schwächliches Kind einen Beruf wählst, frage den Arzt, welchen Beruf das Kind ohne Schaden für seine Gesundheit ergreifen kann!

Vermeide den engen Umgang mit Schwindsüchtigen, besonders das Küssen auf den Mund!

Lass Deine Kinder nicht von Schwindsüchtigen pflegen! Besonders Kinder in den ersten Lebensjahren sind sehr leicht mit Tuberkulose anzustecken.

Ganz meide diejenigen Schwindsüchtigen, die unsauber mit ihrem Auswurf umgehen, ihn z. B. ins Taschentuch oder gar in rücksichtsloser Weise auf den Fussboden spucken! Dagegen ist der gewöhnliche Verkehr mit sauberen und ihren Auswurf in reinlicher Weise in Spuckgefässe entleerenden Schwindsüchtigen ohne Gefahr.

Achte darauf, dass Dein Kind nicht auf unsauberen Fussböden herumkriecht! Gar leicht könnte es sonst vorkommen, dass es die an dem Fussboden beschmutzten Finger in den Mund steckt oder mit ihnen in der Nase bohrt und so die Tuberkulose erwirbt. In geräumigen Wohnungen stellt man den Kindern zweckmässig einen durch ein Holzgestell abgegrenzten Raum, der mit abwaschbarer Decke belegt ist, zum Spielen zur Verfügung.

Wie schützt der Schwindsüchtige seine Umgebung vor Ansteckung?

Es ist Pflicht eines jeden Lungenkranken, äusserst vorsichtig mit seinem Auswurf umzugehen.

Niemals spucke er auf den Fussboden, in die Gosse oder in den Aschkasten, aber auch niemals ins Taschentuch. Er entleere seinen Auswurf ausnahmslos in einen Spucknapf, oder wenn ein solcher nicht zu erreichen ist, in ein Taschenspuckfläschchen, das er stets und überall, wo er sich aufhält, bei sich in der Tasche führen muss.

Der Inhalt der Spuckgefässe ist täglich durch behutsames Ausschütten in den Abort zu beseitigen.

Beim Husten halte der Kranke ein Tuch vor den Mund.

Nie schlafe der Kranke mit anderen in einem gemeinschaftlichen Bett. Wenn möglich, bewohne er ein eignes Zimmer.

Körper, Kleidung und alle Gebrauchsgegenstände muss der Kranke peinlich sauber halten. Die gesamte schmutzige Wäsche des Kranken muss von der Wäsche der Gesunden getrennt gehalten und gesondert gewaschen werden.

Wenn möglich, benutze der Kranke eigenes Wasch-, Ess- und Trinkgeschirr. Er heirate nicht, es sei denn, dass er völlig geheilt und mindestens 2 Jahre hindurch geheilt geblieben ist.

Die Schwindsucht ist nicht nur vermeidbar, sondern, wenn frühzeitig erkannt, auch heilbar.

Deshalb versäume niemand, der an sich oder seinen Angehörigen und namentlich seinen Kindern die ersten Anzeichen einer tuberkulösen Lungenkrankung zu verspüren glaubt, schleunigst einen Arzt zu Rate zu ziehen, ehe es zu spät ist.

Association for the Prevention of Consumption in Chemnitz and Vicinity. (C. V.)

Protection Against Consumption

CONSUMPTION is one of the most destructive diseases of the human race. Its victims number one-seventh of the entire population. In Germany alone almost 130,000 persons die of consumption every year.

Consumption is caused by the inhalation of a very minute germ, the so-called tubercle bacillus, visible only under high magnification. The disease is contagious, that is, it can be transmitted from one person to another.

It is not, however, the expired air that is dangerous; the infection is, as a rule, carried by the expectoration or sputum, especially when the sputum of a consumptive person is expectorated on the floor or into a handkerchief, dries, and is converted into dust, and some of the innumerable germs contained in it are inhaled by healthy persons.

The first signs of consumption are: protracted cough, with or without expectoration, and loss of flesh. In addition there are very often loss of appetite, a sense of fatigue, sharp pains in the chest, feverishness in the evening or during the night (chilliness and heat), night-sweats, shortness of breath, and pallor. Spitting of blood is an almost certain sign of consumption.

Nobody is secure from infection with tuberculosis; but there are many persons who are in greater danger of acquiring the disease than others. The descendants of consumptives contract the disease more frequently than any others; next are those who in their homes, or in the course of their work, come into close contact with consumptives; and, finally, those whose occupation compels them to work in a dust-laden atmosphere (millers, bakers, glass-, metal-, and stone-grinders, file-makers, wool-workers, weavers, printers, tobacco-workers, tailors, and many others).

Children are more predisposed than adults, especially those who suffer from scrofula, rickets, or anemia.

How Shall Healthy Persons Protect Themselves and their Families Against Tuberculosis?

The house must be roomy, dry, airy, sunny, and clean. The largest room should be selected for a bedroom.

The food must consist of meat, fat, farinaceous substances, and vegetables. For persons of limited means the following inexpensive kinds of meat are recommended: heart, lungs, udder of cows, mesentery of calves, and various kinds of fish, such as haddock, cod, and herring. Cheese, especially whey-cheese, is very nutritious and a valuable substitute for meat. Among vegetable foods the following are particularly nutritious and at the same time inexpensive: rice, dried peas, beans, and lentils. Milk should be taken only after being boiled, especially by children.

Proper care of the skin is exceedingly important and is unfortunately very often greatly neglected.

The upper part of the body should be washed every morning with soap and water, and a full-bath or shower-bath taken at least once a week.

The hands should be washed before eating. The mouth must be kept clean by brushing the teeth every day.

Keep the house clean and free from dust. Sweeping raises the dust, and the floors as well as the furniture must be wiped off afterward with a damp cloth.

Have plenty of light and air in the house. Air and sunlight in a short time destroy most disease germs, including the germ of consumption.

Instead of spending your leisure time on Sundays in dance-halls or in smoky places, go out into the open air.

Avoid dissipation of every kind. The excessive use of alcoholic liquors cannot be too severely condemned. The frequency of tuberculosis among habitual drunkards is appalling.

Go to bed early. From seven to eight hours of sleep are absolutely necessary.

Before choosing an occupation for a delicate child, ask a physician what occupation the child may take up without injuring its health.

Avoid intimate association with consumptives, especially kissing on the mouth.

Do not have consumptives to take care of your children. During the first years of life children are particularly liable to become infected with tuberculosis.

Avoid all consumptive persons who are careless in the disposal of their sputum and expectorate into their handkerchiefs or even on the floor. On the other hand, remember that ordinary intercourse with consumptives who are cleanly in their habits and deposit their sputum in spit-cups or cuspidors is without danger.

See to it that your children do not crawl about on filthy floors. They are very likely to put their fingers, soiled from contact with the floor, into their mouths or pick their noses with them, and thus acquire tuberculosis. If there is room in the house for a 'baby-yard', the floor of which is covered with a rug that can be taken out and washed, it will be found the most convenient place for small children to play in.

How Shall a Consumptive Protect His Surroundings Against Infection?

It is the duty of every consumptive to use the utmost care in the disposal of his sputum.

He should never expectorate on the floor, into the sink or the ash-can; nor should he ever use his handkerchief for that purpose. The sputum must always be deposited in a cuspidor, or, if none is at hand, in a pocket-flask, specially constructed for the purpose, which he should carry with him wherever he goes.

The contents of cuspidors and spit-cups are to be emptied every day into the water-closet.

When coughing the patient should hold a handkerchief up to his mouth.

A consumptive must never sleep in the same bed with another person. If possible, he should occupy a separate room.

The person, the clothing, and every article that he uses must be kept scrupulously clean. The soiled linen of consumptives must be kept separate from that of healthy persons and washed by itself.

If possible, the patient should use his own washing-, eating-, and drinking, utensils.

A consumptive should not marry unless he is completely cured and has remained well for at least two years.

Consumption is Not Only Avoidable; if Recognized Early, it is Also Curable.

The earlier the disease is recognized, the earlier it is combated by a course of treatment in a sanatorium or other similar institution, the more favorable is the prospect of cure.

Hence, as soon as any one notices the first signs of tuberculous disease of the lungs in himself or in a member of his family, he should consult a physician at once, before it is too late.

A gold medal was awarded to Dr. H. S. Goodall, of Stony Wold Sanatorium, for an essay entitled Tuberculosis is one of the oldest, most common, and most destructive diseases. One-tenth or more of all deaths are caused by it. It is at the same time the most curable of all serious diseases. Its cause is the tubercle bacillus, discovered by Prof. Koch in 1882.

This bacillus is a minute form of plant life, rod-shaped, motionless, living and able to multiply with great rapidity by dividing into two again and again. Outside the body these bacilli do not multiply. They are killed by direct sunlight, fresh air, and other agencies. Direct sunlight kills them in a short time. Fresh air kills them slowly, in proportion to the degree of light and air. Rain dissolves the sputum and exposes the bacilli to the sun and air. Boiling for half an hour will kill the bacilli, and if sputum is in small particles a shorter time will do. Five per cent. solution carbolic acid mixed with equal volume of sputum will disinfect in twenty-four hours if occasionally stirred. It destroys bacilli in thin smears of sputum quite quickly. Intense cold does not injure tubercle bacilli. In a dark, damp room they may live for months, while in a room with open windows and strong light they do not live many days.

Tubercle bacilli cannot be identified unless stained in a certain way.

Then they look, through a microscope, like bits of red silk thread or like rows of little red beads. They are from 1-10,000 to 1-5,000 of an inch long and about 1-5 to 1-4 as wide. Over 16,000,000 could be placed in a single layer on a two-cent postage stamp. Flies carry tubercle bacilli about if they get at any sputum, and 5000 bacilli have been found in one fly speck. Tubercle bacilli enter the body chiefly with dust in the air we breathe, on the food we eat, through tubercular milk or meat; less often by kissing and through wounds in the skin. If breathed in, the bacilli may go at once to the lungs and cause disease, or they may be swallowed with the mucus from the throat and enter the stomach and bowels. They may then, like bacilli taken in with food, pass with the products of digestion into the circulation, to lodge in the lungs or elsewhere. They may cause local disease of the digestive organs. The bacilli in sputum which is swallowed may thus cause new centers of disease. Food exposed to dust and flies or handled by unclean tubercular persons may carry tubercle bacilli. Having entered the system the bacilli may be destroyed if the person is healthy; they may multiply and cause tuberculosis; or they may lie dormant for long periods, until the person's physical condition becomes suitable for their growth.

The tubercle bacillus found in man and that found in cattle and other animals are the same for all practical purposes, although differing in minor details. Tubercle bacilli from one creature may produce tuberculosis in any other creature.

Tuberculosis is communicable like typhoid fever, but not infectious like scarlet fever. The bacilli are thrown out of the body in the discharges coming from the diseased region, the pus from glands or bones, the sputum from the lungs or throat. Sputum contains great numbers of bacilli; the pus not so many. Sputum carelessly scattered by tuberculous people causes the vast majority of cases of tuberculosis. Tubercular milk and meat cause a small portion and should be guarded against by maintaining and extending the official inspection of milk and meat.

The germs from a consumptive are carried by the sputum, not by the breath. The breath itself is harmless. If sputum be carelessly allowed to scatter it dries, becomes powdered and mingled with the dust, and the bacilli are then inhaled by some one or they settle on the food and thus enter the digestive tract. If one expectorates upon the sidewalk or in a car, some one carries part of the sputum on his shoes or clothes into the house, where it will be inhaled. Dry sputum flies about and is very dangerous. Wet sputum clings where it lies and is not as dangerous. Wet sputum in a cup is perfectly safe so long as it is not spilled and is protected from the flies. The person who uses a sputum box is safe; the one who spits on the floor is dangerous and should be ostracized. Putting pins, pencils, hairpins, or fingers into the mouth is liable to scatter bacilli about. It is dangerous to swap gum, or to eat apples, etc., that another has bitten.

In rare cases actual tuberculosis may be directly inherited. An inability to resist this disease, a predisposition, may be inherited from parents who have tuberculosis or who from any cause are weak or unhealthy. Generally, however, the extension of tuberculosis throughout a family is due to the transfer of bacilli from one member to another through improper care of the sputum.

Any form of sickness or bad living which weakens one's power of resistance renders one liable to tuberculosis. Overwork, poor food, lack of fresh air, drinking, excessive use of tobacco, vicious habits, late hours, and inherited weak constitution or unsoundness, all predispose. Poverty is the greatest predisposing cause, for the poor must contend against hard work, long hours, poor and often insufficient food, and overcrowded, unsanitary, poorly ventilated quarters.

No age is exempt, but tuberculosis is most common in adult life.

If the tubercular discharges from a patient are properly collected and destroyed no danger results and the patient is not a menace to nurse, neighbor, or fellow-workman. Discharges from glands, bones, etc., must be caught on copious dressings. These dressings should be wet before changing, to prevent any dry discharge from scaling off, and should be immediately burned. All sputum should be deposited in small, burnable, waterproof paper boxes, carried about in a metal frame. The paper lining is to be renewed as often as necessary, at least once a day, and burned with its contents. It may be necessary to put some sawdust in the box to mix with the sputum, so that the latter may not run through the fire into the ashes. The metal container should be boiled, or soaked in 5% carbolic solution. A pocket box of the above paper may be used, but does not hold much and is not adequate if one raises freely. Both boxes are made by Seabury & Johnson, New York city, and the Aseptic Drinking Cup Co., Cambridge, Mass. If these cannot be afforded a tin cup part full of water will answer, but the cup with its contents must be boiled vigorously for half an hour before it is emptied, and it must be covered while boiling, as otherwise some germs on the surface may remain alive. Metal pocket boxes may be used, but should be boiled. Sputum must never be put where it can dry and fly away, as by expectorating into a cloth or handkerchief. Nevertheless a cloth should always be held over the mouth when coughing, to catch the fine spray that flies, and this cloth should be burned and a new one taken frequently.

Do not allow children in the sleeping-room of a consumptive. In a consumptive's room use small rugs instead of carpets, sweep only with a broom bag dampened with 5% carbolic solution, and dust with a cloth similarly dampened. Wash and boil both broom bag and duster frequently. Boil the bed linen. Use paper napkins at the table and gauze for handkerchiefs, and burn both. Knives, forks, spoons, etc., should be kept separate and well washed and scalded.

In the lungs the bacilli grow in the partitions between the air cells and passages, and as long as the membrane lining these spaces is intact no bacilli can get into the spaces and none can be found in the sputum, although the patient may be quite ill. It is dangerous to wait until bacilli are found before admitting that one has tuberculosis. The diagnosis can frequently be made upon other evidence before bacilli are found. The chance of cure is smaller after bacilli appear in the sputum. The bacilli do harm by destroying tissue and by poisoning the general system with soluble poisons. If recovery takes place the injured tissue is replaced by scar-like tissue.

The early symptoms of tuberculosis are slight cough, with or without expectoration, hoarseness, rapid pulse, slight fever (99.5°, if occurring frequently, is suspicious), loss of weight and strength, and gastric disturbance. Any of these, if persistent, or recurrent, calls for prompt examination of the lungs and sputum by an expert. Later on come night-sweats, the hectic flush, and shortness of breath. Hemorrhage, pain in the chest, and cessation of menstruation may be early or late symptoms. Pleurisy generally means tuberculosis. Bacilli in the sputum constitute a positive proof. Their absence proves nothing. As the lungs extend to the sixth rib in front and the tenth rib behind, the clothes must be entirely removed to the waist, to allow complete and thorough examination.

No medicine has any effect upon the tubercle bacilli inside the body; nevertheless consult your physician, for he can guide you safely past many pitfalls. Alcoholic remedies are injurious. Any medicine that disturbs digestion is injurious.

Fresh air, rest, and good food put the body in condition to overcome the bacilli. This is the treatment of to-day. Rest means absence of work, to sit or lie all day in the open air (in the yard, on the porch, or on the roof), to read, to sleep, to spend eight to ten hours nightly in bed.

Fresh air means to spend all day out of doors, and this resting, not exercising. Rest has never hurt a consumptive; over-exercise has killed thousands. Be out of doors but be protected from storms and from wind. Sleep outdoors or with windows open both top and bottom. Occupy a room with windows on two sides, if possible. On winter nights wear underclothing, stockings, a cap or hood, a cotton-flannel nightgown, and sleep between cotton-flannel sheets. Keep comfortable but have the air. At night there is no air other than night air, and the fresh outdoor night air is infinitely better than the stale indoor night air.

Food should be abundant, varied, nourishing, well cooked, and attractively served. Milk, eggs, meat, bread and butter, cereals, fruit, vegetables—but little pastry or sweets. Do not stuff; eat as much as your stomach can manage, but do not overwork it. All this treatment one may have at home, and the home treatment is all that most patients can get. For many it suffices.

Removal to a suitable climate combined with this treatment gives one a better chance than treatment at home. Treatment at a sanatorium shows better results than treatment at a hotel or cottage in the same region. However, comfort and plenty at home are better than discomfort and want in the best climate. Climate alone will not effect a cure nor enable one to work. Like food and rest, climate is desirable, but the two former are to be chosen if one cannot afford all three.

A cold sponge- or shower-bath, taken in a comfortable room daily, makes the skin perform its functions better, accustoms it to sudden changes of temperature, and renders one less susceptible to colds. If the reaction is not prompt and complete, the baths should be less cold until tolerance is acquired.

A person who has had or is likely to have tuberculosis should choose an occupation demanding as little heavy physical labor, anxiety, or wearing responsibility as possible, and affording the shortest hours, the most outdoor life, or best ventilation inside, with sufficient remuneration to provide sanitary quarters and plenty of good food.

A silver medal was awarded to Dr. George H. Kress, of Los Angeles, California, for an essay entitled—

The Warfare Against Tuberculosis and the Relation of Teachers Thereto.

Why a World-Warfare is Being Waged Against Tuberculosis.

Pulmonary tuberculosis, known also by the names of consumption and the great white plague, is responsible for one out of every five to ten deaths.

It has been estimated that the world annually offers up more than one million lives to this disease, two deaths occurring every minute.

In the United States, the death roll from tuberculosis every year means the loss of more than 150,000 citizens.

Most of these deaths (about 90 per cent.) are adults. The economic loss represented by these deaths means an annual deficit to this country of more than three hundred million dollars. In addition to this vast loss of money to the nation, there is the suffering endured by the victims of the disease and the sorrow of bereaved and often of dependent families.

All this vast amount of death, treasure, suffering, and sorrow is occasioned by a disease that can be prevented. The deaths of these citizens and all the loss that goes therewith are therefore altogether and entirely unnecessary!

Is it any wonder, then, that the civilized world has at last awakened to its responsibilities in this almost greatest of all public health problems and is determined to exterminate this wide-spread and unnecessary disease?

The basic facts essential to prevention and cure have been discovered. The task before the world is the application of this knowledge. The call to arms for battle with this great scourge has gone forth to all civilized nations and peoples.

The members of the teaching profession will have an almost sacred part to bear in that warfare.

The Important Rôle of Teachers in the Warfare Against Tuberculosis.

Teachers will have a tremendous influence in the fight against tuberculosis, because the successful eradication of the disease will depend in good part upon the extent to which the rising generation of citizens are taught concerning its prevention and cure.

What is Tuberculosis?

Tuberculosis is a disease usually affecting the lungs (although bones, glands, and other tissues are not infrequently attacked), and which runs most often a slow course of weeks, months, or years, being characterized by cough and other pulmonary symptoms with gradual loss of weight and strength and the presence of certain constitutional symptoms.

The Causes of Tuberculosis.

In 1882, Robert Koch, of Germany, proved that tuberculosis belonged to the class of germ or infectious diseases by discovering the particular or specific germ that must always be present in the body afflicted with this disease. This germ, because of its rod-shape, is called the bacillus tuberculosis.

Since then has been proven also that the predisposition to the disease exists in those persons whose health for any reason is below normal. In other words, the old idea that tuberculosis was hereditary has been shown to be an error. The most that can be inherited is the predisposition, namely, a weakened body, and a weakened body is far more often acquired than inherited.

The Specific or Germ Cause of Tuberculosis.

The specific or exciting cause of the disease is the microorganism or germ or bacterium known by the name of the bacillus of tuberculosis. This bacillus is so small that ten thousand placed end to end make only a single linear inch.

Like other bacteria it is a member of the plant kingdom. This particular germ belongs to the class of parasitic plants. In common with other plants it grows best in soils adapted to its needs. The soil it seems to prefer above all others is the lung tissue of a person whose health or resistance is below par.

The bacillus of tuberculosis is spread broadcast because a single consumptive can cough up in twenty-four hours sputum containing not millions but actually seven billions of germs. Under present conditions the care of this sputum is often neglected, and as it dries into dust, the germs are blown hither and thither, to contaminate not only the air that is breathed, but to get on things that are handled or eaten.

Types of this germ are also found among certain of the lower animals, where they also produce forms of pulmonary tuberculosis. Those found in dairy cows are particularly a menace, since milk is a good medium of transmission.

Predisposing Cause of Tuberculosis—A Weakened Body.

Through the discovery of the bacillus of tuberculosis and the elimination of the theory of hereditary transmission must disappear also much of the fatalism with which tuberculosis has been accepted by many persons.

The general groups into which the predisposing causes fall may be said to be bodily weakness or lack of resistance, resulting either from hereditary enfeeblement, overwork, underfeeding, previous diseases, vicious habits, overcrowding, or general unhygienic mode of living.

Many infants are born weak. Unless such children can be developed physically, they are apt to give but feeble resistance to disease.

Overwork, mental or physical, whether from necessity or from choice, through the bodily fatigue and weakness induced, is responsible for many infections from tuberculosis. Certain occupations also, like those with irritating dusts, frequent temperature variations, confined positions, and so on favor the production of bodily or pulmonary weakness.

Underfeeding, whether from insufficient or improper foods, is another factor responsible for much bodily weakness.

Previous diseases—and particularly in childhood, measles and whooping-cough, and later in life, grippe—often induce a lack of resistance, which through neglect, or in adult persons by too early return to work, place such persons in excellent receptive condition for infection.

Vicious habits, particularly over-indulgence in alcoholic drinks, to the neglect of good food, often results in lowered health and predisposition to tuberculosis.

Overcrowding is a far too frequent cause in the production of weakened bodies. Workshops, school-rooms, and homes seem often to be constructed to keep air out rather than to let it in. In many rooms persons are crowded into a limited air-space with almost utter disregard to ventilation. To breathe vitiated air is at all times harmful. An impression prevails also that night air is harmful and that open windows at night are dangerous. This is the contrary of the actual facts. Outside night air is almost invariably more pure than that of a closed room in which the oxygen is being consumed by human beings, lamps, or gas.

The Changes Produced in the Lungs by the Germ.

The bacillus tuberculosis is a parasitic plant which in pulmonary tuberculosis feeds on the lung tissues. At the same time it casts off substances which not only lessen resistance locally, but which, when they get into the blood and circulation, are largely responsible for the symptoms of the disease.

When the germs get into healthy lungs, even though they gain a foothold, they are usually overcome by the tissue cells and fluids.

But when the germs get into the lungs of persons whose health or resistance is below normal, the germs often gain the victory. The elementary change produced in the lung tissue is a little nodule about the size of a pin's head, called a tubercle. This tubercle can break down into an ulcer or small abscess. If many such be near together, a cavity may be formed.

In healing or cure the tubercles, ulcers and, abscesses are replaced in whole or in part by ordinary scar tissue, such as that by which wounds on the surface of the body are repaired.

The Symptoms of Tuberculosis.

The difficulty of early recognition, combined with the mildness of the discomfort in the early stages, are the factors largely responsible for neglect of this disease by its victims, until a time often so late as to not give much real chance for recovery.

In the beginning all that may be evident is a tired feeling or a tendency to fatigue after work, some variation in appetite, some slight loss of weight, and an irregular cough of somewhat obstinate character.

Later on, the loss of weight and cough may be increased, much sputum may be expectorated, fever may be noted, night-sweats may occur, and there is increasing weakness.

Still later may be shortness of breath, with accentuation of the above symptoms, and with or without hemorrhage or other complications. In this third stage is met the typical emaciated, weakened, coughing consumptive.

The Two Fundamental Facts in the Prevention of Tuberculosis.

These are two, being dependent upon the two causative factors.

The first implies the destruction of the germ.

The second implies the strengthening of the weakened body.

The Destruction of the Bacillus of Tuberculosis.

Most consumptives acquired the disease from other consumptives, and this because the latter failed to destroy their sputum, for it is through the sputum of consumptives that tuberculosis is almost exclusively spread.

The problem of destroying the germ almost narrows itself down therefore into destroying all sputum.

This is accomplished by having the patients expectorate into paper spit-cups or napkins that can be burned, or into pocket spit-cups that can be easily disinfected, or into spittoons containing solutions like lye or carbolic acid (five per cent.), which kill the germ.

Consumptives should avoid coughing or speaking into other people's faces; should have separate eating utensils which are boiled after use; should wear no beards; should bathe hands frequently, especially before eating; and should sleep in separate beds and rooms.

The bed and personal clothing and the rooms occupied by such persons should be sunned and aired as much as possible, for fresh air and sunlight will kill in a few hours the germs that live for months in damp, dark places. Because the germs live longest under such conditions, tuberculosis has also been called a house and a filth disease. Rooms of consumptives should also, when convenient, be fumigated from time to time by formaldehyd or other method.

Regarding infection through milk, it is hoped the time will soon come when all dairy herds will be free from tuberculous cattle.

The Development of the Resistance of the Body.

The elimination of the accessory or predisposing cause is accomplished by building up the bodily health.

The causes of physical weakness or retrogression were discussed in a previous paragraph and their eradication at the same time indicated.

In a few words, the proposition is to have all such persons breathe pure air only and constantly, every hour in the twenty-four; to eat slowly nutritious food-stuffs; and to obtain all the rest and sleep needed, with just enough bodily exercise to keep the body in good tone.

These are simple rules, but because they are in opposition to the present mode of living of many people, are extremely difficult of adoption. Teachers by word and practice in school-room can inculcate these truths with lasting effect on their pupils.

The Cure of Tuberculosis.

There is no medicinal or climatic specific or cure for tuberculosis. The basis of modern treatment, and that which is responsible for most of the healing and cures, is what is known as the hygienic-dietetic treatment. This is nothing more than the mode of life just mentioned. It can be carried out anywhere. Home climate with comforts and contentment is always superior to faraway climates with straitened circumstances and homesickness.

Tuberculosis is healed or cured by making the blood and tissues richer and stronger. This enables them to resist and often overcome the germs and to repair the damage which has been done.

The tuberculous patient, however, needs supervision by a physician who has made a study of the disease. Complications are constantly arising and the hygienic treatment is not as simply carried out in practice as it is expressed in words. Every consumptive therefore should be under the care of a private or dispensary or hospital physician. If he can enter a sanatorium (place of healing) his chances of cure will be increased.

Sure cures in the way of patent medicines, and especially cough medicines containing alcohol or opiates, are dangerous. Valuable time is lost by such temporizing.

Pure air, good food, sufficient rest, a hopeful temperament, and supervision by a competent physician—these are the elements that make for cure, just as they are also potent forces for prevention.

In spreading the knowledge of these truths teachers can be of inestimable service in this great struggle.

"THE TEACHER AN IMPORTANT FACTOR."

A cash prize of One Hundred Dollars was awarded to the Verein zur Bekämpfung der Schwindsucht in Chemnitz und Umgebung for a leaflet for mothers, reproduced below.

Schutz vor Schwindsucht.

Merkblatt für Mütter.

Eine der verheerendsten Krankheiten ist die Schwindsucht. Ein Siebentel aller Menschen erliegt ihr. Sie entsteht durch einen winzig kleinen, nur bei starker Vergrößerung sichtbaren Krankheitskeim, den Tuberkelbazillus. Sie ist ansteckend, d. h. sie kann von einem Menschen zum andern übertragen werden.

Nicht die ausgeatmete Luft ist gefährlich; die Ansteckung findet meistens durch den Auswurf statt, insbesondere dadurch, dass der Auswurf von Brustkranken auf den Fussboden oder ins Taschentuch gespuckt wird, hier trocknet und verstäubt, und einige der zahlreich darin enthaltenen Krankheitskeime von Gesunden eingeatmet werden.

Die ersten Anzeichen der Lungenschwindsucht sind: andauernder Husten, Auswurf, Abmagerung, Appetitlosigkeit, Mattigkeit, Bruststechen, Fiebergefühl (Frösteln, Hitze), Nachtschweisse, Kurzatmigkeit, Blutarmut. Ein fast sicheres Zeichen von Schwindsucht ist Bluthusten.

Kein Mensch ist vor Erkrankung an Tuberkulose sicher. Besonders häufig erkranken Nachkommen Schwindsüchtiger, dann diejenigen, die in enge Berührung mit Schwindsüchtigen kommen, schliesslich die in staubigen Betrieben Arbeitenden (Müller, Bäcker, Schleifer, Tischler, Schneider u. a.).

Kinder sind gefährdeter als Erwachsene, besonders, wenn sie nicht an der Brust aufgezogen sind, an Magerkeit, Blutarmut, Darmkatarrhen, Appetitlosigkeit, Skrofulose oder englischer Krankheit leiden oder Keuchhusten, Masern oder Scharlach eben durchgemacht haben.

Wie schützt die gesunde Mutter sich und ihre Kinder vor Schwindsucht?

Ganz besonders hat die Mutter die Pflicht, die Lehren der Gesundheitspflege strengstens zu beachten. Jede Vernachlässigung schädigt auch ihre Kinder.

Die wichtigsten Vorschriften lauten:

Die Wohnung sie geräumig, sonnig und sauber: Luft und Sonne vernichten bald die meisten Krankheitskeime, darunter auch den Keim der Schwindsucht.

Wähle das grösste Zimmer zur Schlafstube! Stelle lieber in jedem Zimmer Betten auf, als dass du viele Personen in einem Zimmer schlafen lässt!

Halte die Wohnung rein und staubfrei! Wische Fussböden, sowie Möbel mit feuchten Tüchern!

Gesunde Kinder und Erwachsene sollten in jeder Jahreszeit sich täglich einige Zeit im Freien aufhalten. Ein Fenster des Schlafzimmers lass auch nachts etwas geöffnet!

Meide Tanzböden und rauchige Lokale, gehe lieber ins Freie!

Gehe frühzeitig zu Bett! Erwachsene sollten 8 Stunden, Kinder 10 bis 12 Stunden schlafen.

Wasche Dir und Deinen Kindern jeden Morgen den Oberkörper, jede Woche zweimal die Füsse mit Wasser und Seife! Erwachsene sollten wöchentlich einmal, Kinder zweimal ein Voll- oder Brausebad nehmen. Säuglinge sind täglich warm zu baden.

Wasche Dir und Deinen Kindern stets die Hände vor dem Essen!

Halte die Mundhöhle sauber! Erwachsene und ältere Kinder sollten nach jedem Essen den Mund spülen, Zähne und Zahnfleisch mit der Zahnbürste reinigen, festsitzende Speisereste entfernen. Schlechte Zähne—auch die Milchzähne der Kinder—sollte man durch den Zahnarzt füllen lassen.

Die beste Ernährung für Kinder im ersten Lebensjahre ist die Mutterbrust. Für die gesunde Mutter ist sie die billigste und beste, für das Kind ist sie der beste Schutz vor Krankheiten auch fürs spätere Leben.

Ist die Mutter schwindsüchtig, so darf sie nicht stillen. Ist Brusternährung durch Mutter oder Amme nicht möglich, so ist das Kind im ersten halben Jahre nur mit verdünnter Milch zu ernähren.

Halte den Sauger sauber! Ausserhalb der Mahlzeit dürfen Kinder nie einen Sauger (Schnuller, Lutsch) im Munde haben.

Die Nahrung der Erwachsenen bestehe aus Fleisch, Fett, mehlhaltigen Stoffen und Gemüse! Einen nahrhaften und preiswerten Fleischersatz bildet der Käse. Von pflanzlichen Nahrungsmitteln sind reich an Nährstoffen und gleichwohl billig: Reis, getrocknete Erbsen, Bohnen und Linsen. Milch sollte, besonders von Kindern, reichlich, aber nur in gekochtem Zustande genossen werden. Die Milch, die ältere Kinder auch als Milchsuppe, Erwachsene auch mit Kaffee oder Tee geniessen können, stillt auch in unschädlicher Weise den Durst. Gib lieber Geld für Milch, als für alkoholische Getränke aus! Letztere sind für Erwachsene, auch für stillende Mütter, meist unnötig und entbehrlich, für Kinder so gut wie immer schädlich, ganz selten in Krankheitsfällen erlaubt und geboten.

Peinlich sauber halte alle Ess- und Trinkgeschirre—Nachtgeschirr und Klosett nicht weniger!

Sauber sei auch das Spielzeug Deiner Kinder! Kindern, die noch alles in den Mund steckne, sollte nur abwaschbares Spielzeug in die Hände gegeben werden.

Lass Dein Kind nicht auf unsauberen Fussböden herumkriechen! Gar leicht könnte es die am Fussboden beschmutzten Finger in den Mund stecken oder mit ihnen in der Nase bohren und so die Tuberkulose erwerben.

Vermeide den engen Umgang mit Schwindsüchtigen. Lass Deine Kinder nie von Kranken oder Unbekannten pflegen oder küssen!

Vermeide den engen Umgang mit Schwindsüchtigen. Lass Deine Kinder nie von Kranken oder Unbekannten pflegen oder küssen!

Vermeide den engen Umgang mit Schwindsüchtigen. Lass Deine Kinder.

Ganz meide diejenigen Schwindsüchtigen, die unsauber mit ihrem Auswurf umgehen, ihn ins Taschentuch oder gar in rücksichtsloser Weise auf den Fussboden spucken! Dagegen ist der gewöhnliche Verkehr mit sauberen und ihren Auswurf in reinlicher Weise in Spuckgefässe entleerenden Schwindsüchtigen ohne Gefahr.

Ehe Du für ein schwächliches Kind einen Beruf wählst, frage den Arzt, welchen Beruf das Kind ohne Schaden für seine Gesundheit ergreifen kann!

Wie schützt der Schwindsüchtige seine Umgebung vor Ansteckung?

Es ist Pflicht jedes Lungenkranken, äusserst vorsichtig mit seinem Auswurf umzugehen.

Niemals spucke er auf den Fussboden, aber auch niemals ins Taschentuch! Er entleere seinen Auswurf ausnahmslos in einen Spucknapf oder in ein Taschenspuckfläschchen, das er stets bei sich führen muss.

Die Spuckgefässe sind täglich in den Abort zu entleeren!

Beim Husten halte der Kranke ein Tuch vor den Mund.

Der Kranke schlafe in einem besonderen Bett! Womöglich bewohne er ein eignes Zimmer!

Körper, Kleidung und alle Gebrauchsgegenstände muss er peinlich sauber halten. Seine gesamte schmutzige Wäsche muss von der Wäsche der Gesunden getrennt aufbewahrt und gesondert gewaschen werden.

Er benutze eigenes Wasch-, Ess- und Trinkgeschirr.

Er heirate nicht, es sei denn, dass er völlig geheilt und mindestens 2 Jahre hindurch geheilt geblieben ist.

Ist der Vater eines Neugeborenen schwindsüchtig, so sollen Mutter und Kind ein besonderes Zimmer beziehen. Ist die Mutter schwindsüchtig, so muss das Kind in eine andere Wohnung und Pflege gegeben werden, soll es nicht der Ansteckung verfallen.

Die Schwindsucht ist nicht nur vermeidbar, sondern, wenn frühzeitig erkannt, auch heilbar.

Je früher die Krankheit erkannt, je früher gegen sie z. B. durch eine Kur in einer Lungenheilstätte eingeschritten wird, um so günstiger sind die Aussichten auf Heilung.

Deshalb versäume niemand, der an sich oder seinen Angehörigen und namentlich seinen Kindern die ersten Anzeichen einer tuberkulösen Lungenkrankung zu verspüren glaubt, schleunigst einen Arzt zu Rate zu ziehen, ehe es zu spät ist.

[TRANSLATION.]

Protection Against Consumption Directions to Mothers.

Consumption is one of the most destructive diseases. It destroys one-seventh of the entire population. It is caused by a very minute germ, the tubercle bacillus, which is visible only under high magnification. The disease is contagious, that is, it can be transmitted from one person to another.

It is not the expired air that is dangerous; the infection as a rule is carried by the expectoration or sputum, especially when the sputum of a consumptive person is expectorated on the floor or into a handkerchief, dries and is converted into dust, and some of the innumerable germs contained in it are inhaled by healthy persons.

The first signs of consumption are: protracted cough, expectoration, loss of flesh, loss of appetite, a sense of fatigue, sharp pains in the chest, feverishness (chilliness and heat), night-sweats, shortness of breath, and anemia. Spitting of blood is an almost certain sign of consumption.

Nobody is secure from infection with tuberculosis. The descendants of consumptives contract the disease more frequently than any others; next are those who come into close contact with consumptives; and, finally, those who are engaged in dusty occupations (millers, bakers, grinders, carpenters, tailors, and others).

Children are more predisposed than adults, especially those who have not been brought up on breast-milk, children suffering from emaciation (loss of flesh), anemia, intestinal catarrh, loss of appetite, scrofula, or rickets, and children who have just recovered from an attack of whooping-cough, measles, or scarlet fever.

How Shall a Healthy Mother Protect Herself and Her Children Against Consumption?

Strict observance of the laws of health is the special duty of a mother. Any infraction of these laws injures her children as well as herself.

The most important rules are the following:

The house must be roomy, sunny, and clean. Air and sunlight destroy most disease germs, including the germ of consumption.

Select the largest room in the house for a bedroom. It is better to put a bed in every room than to have several persons sleep in the same room.

Keep the house clean and free from dust. Wipe the floors and furniture with a damp cloth.

Healthy children and adults should spend part of every day in the open air at all seasons of the year. One window in the bedroom should be left partly open during the night.

Avoid dance-halls and smoky places; it is better to take your recreation in the open air.

Go to bed early. Adults require eight hours of sleep, children from ten to twelve hours.

Wash the upper part of the body every morning, and the feet twice a week with soap and water. This applies to yourself as well as to your children. Adults should take a full bath or shower-bath once a week, and children twice a week. Infants should have a warm bath every day.

Always wash your own hands and your children's before meals.

Keep the mouth clean. Adults and older children should rinse the mouth after every meal, cleansing the teeth and gums with a tooth-brush and removing all particles of food. If the teeth are decayed, have them filled by a dentist. This applies to the first set of teeth also.

The best food for infants during the first year of life is breast-milk. For a healthy mother it is the best and cheapest; also the best protection for the child against disease in later life.

If the mother is consumptive she must not nurse her baby. If breast-feeding by the mother or by a wet-nurse is impossible, the baby must be fed on diluted milk exclusively during the first six months.

Keep the nipples clean. Do not allow the child to suck rubber nipples.

For adults the food should consist of meat, fat, farinaceous foods, and vegetables. Cheese is a valuable substitute for meat. The following vegetables are both nutritious and cheap: rice, dried peas, beans, and lentils. Plenty of milk should be given, especially to children; but only boiled milk. Older children may take it in the form of milk- (cream-) soups, and adults with coffee or tea. Milk incidentally satisfies thirst and is a harmless beverage. Better spend money for milk than for spirituous liquors. They are in most cases unnecessary for adults, including nursing mothers; for children they are practically always harmful. In case of sickness only they are occasionally allowable or may even be prescribed.

Keep your eating-, drinking-, and washing-utensils clean—also the chamber and water-closet.

See that your children's toys are clean. Small children who put everything into their mouths should be allowed to have only washable toys.

Do not let your children creep about on dirty floors. The fingers become soiled by contact with the floor, and the child is very likely to put them in its mouth or pick its nose and thus acquire tuberculosis.

Avoid intimate association with consumptives. Never allow your children to be kissed by persons who are ill, or by strangers.

Avoid all consumptives who are careless in the disposal of their sputum and expectorate into their handkerchiefs or even on the floor. On the other hand, ordinary intercourse with consumptives who are cleanly in their habits and dispose of their sputum in spit-cups or cuspidors is without danger.

Before you choose an occupation for a delicate child ask your doctor what occupation the child may follow without injuring its health.

How Shall a Consumptive Protect His Surroundings Against Consumption?

It is the duty of every consumptive to use the utmost care in the disposal of his sputum. He should never expectorate on the floor, nor should he ever use his handkerchief for that purpose. The sputum should be disposed of in cuspidors or in a pocket-flask, which he should always carry with him.

The contents of spit-cups and cuspidors should be emptied every day into the water-closet.

When coughing the patient should hold a handkerchief up to his mouth.

The patient should sleep in a separate bed and, if possible, in a separate room.

The person, the clothing, and every article he uses must be kept scrupulously clean. The soiled linen of consumptives must be kept separate from the linen of healthy persons and washed by itself.

The patient should use his own washing-, eating-, and drinking-utensils.

He should not marry unless he is completely cured and has remained well for at least two years.

If the father of a new-born infant is consumptive, mother and child should move into a separate room. If the mother is consumptive, the child must be sent to another house and taken care of by some one else, if it is to escape infection.

Consumption is Not Only Avoidable; if Recognized Early, it is Also Curable.

The earlier the disease is recognized, the earlier it is combated by a course of treatment in a sanatorium or other similar institution, the more favorable is the prospect of cure.

Hence, as soon as any one notices the first signs of tuberculous disease of the lungs in himself or in a member of his family, he should consult a physician at once, before it is too late.

Facts a Mother Should Know Concerning Tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis a Disease Responsible for Untold Sorrow to Mothers.

Tuberculosis or consumption is a disease which robs the mothers of the world of one out of every ten children.

The causes of this disease are known, likewise the means whereby it may be prevented.

Every mother owes it to herself and her family to know about tuberculosis, so that the lives of her children may not be placed in peril.

The Frequency of Tuberculosis.

In the United States more than 150,000 persons die every year from tuberculosis. The great majority of these persons are in the prime of life. Many of these persons are married and their untimely deaths mean dependent families to be cared for by the State.

The loss in money to the United States from these preventable deaths every year amounts to more than three hundred million dollars. The suffering caused by the disease it is impossible to estimate.

Two Important Facts About Tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis is preventable.

Tuberculosis is curable.

These are most important facts, worthy of widest circulation, especially since contrary ideas prevail.

Universal prevention and cure of this disease will result only when there is universal effort against it.

In this work of prevention and cure, the mothers of the world can wield a tremendous influence.

The world counts on the aid of the mothers, for what mother would condemn either her own or any other child to an unnecessary death?

What Are the Causes of Tuberculosis?

First, there is an exciting cause, which is a very small plant called a germ.

There can be no tuberculosis unless this germ be present in the body.

Second, the person who takes this disease has a body that is favorable to it.

Any person whose health and strength are run down is predisposed to tuberculosis, because in such a person there is not much resistance.

The two things necessary, then, for tuberculosis are the presence of a certain germ in the body of a person whose health for any reason has been run down.

What the Germ Does in the Lungs.

When the germ gets into the body of a person who is run down in health, it finds a soil suitable for its growth and produces the disease called tuberculosis.

The germs produce little granules called tubercles, which may later become little ulcers or abscesses.

Poisons are also thrown out by the germs and get into the blood and these poisons cause most of the symptoms of the disease.

What Are the Symptoms of Tuberculosis?

The symptoms are different according to the stage.

It is the symptoms of the early stages that should be learned, for it is then that cure can be brought about and lives saved. What are these symptoms?

This disease usually comes on in very slow and mild fashion. That is what throws the persons infected off their guard. There may be nothing more than a tired feeling, especially after work, a lessened appetite, some loss of weight, and perhaps an occasional cough.

As the disease grows worse, these symptoms do likewise. The loss of weight may be very noticeable, there may be fever and night-sweats. With the more frequent cough much sputum may be expectorated.

In the far advanced stages some of these symptoms, like cough, loss of weight, and fever, may be very pronounced. Then we have the picture of the "consumptive."

How May Tuberculosis Be Prevented?

Tuberculosis is prevented by doing two things:

1. Killing the germs that cause the disease.
2. Having people become healthy, so that they will not be predisposed to the disease.

How Are the Germs To Be Destroyed?

The germs are scattered far and wide in the sputum which is coughed up by consumptives. One consumptive can cough up in a single day several billion of these germs.

When this sputum dries as dust, the germs are blown about in all directions to get into the air we breathe and on the food and things we eat and handle. In this way every person at some time in life probably gets the germs into his body.

To destroy these germs, all that is necessary is to destroy the sputum.

If sputum be coughed into paper cups or napkins, these can be burned and the germs destroyed. For spittoons, disinfectant solutions like lye should be used.

Coughing in people's faces or spitting on the streets, and especially on floors, is dangerous.

How May the Predisposition of a Weakened Body Be Overcome?

Bodily weakness, that is, the predisposition to tuberculosis, may be overcome by right living, particularly by breathing pure air, eating nourishing food, and getting the proper proportion of rest and exercise.

A child weak at birth should be guarded, and as it grows older made to spend much time out of doors.

Children weak from diseases like measles or whooping-cough should not be neglected. These and kindred diseases are often responsible for tuberculosis being set up later on in life.

Children should not be made to work at too early an age, nor allowed to study so hard as to interfere with health.

The food should be eaten slowly, and should always be nourishing. If cows' milk is used, it should be obtained, if possible, from a dairy having no tuberculous cattle.

The living and sleeping rooms of the family should always be well ventilated. The human body, if it is to be in a healthy state, must have pure air. Bedrooms should not be overcrowded and single beds are advisable.

The above rules can be taken to heart by grown-up persons as well.

These simple rules are worth observing because a healthy body is usually able to overcome tuberculosis, but a weakened body is not.

How May Tuberculosis Be Cured?

Tuberculosis may be cured by the same measures which prevent it, namely, by making the body stronger, so that it will be able to kill the germs that have gotten into the tissues.

The pure air, good food, lots of rest treatment cures more people of tuberculosis than all the medicines that are known.

Avoid patent medicines for tuberculosis, particularly cough medicines, as these usually contain alcohol and opiates, which though they may make the patient feel better, usually allow the disease to grow worse.

The above methods should be carried out under the advice of a private or dispensary physician who has made a study of the disease.

"DEVELOP HEALTHY BODIES."

A silver medal was awarded to Miss Mabel Jacques, Philadelphia, for an educational leaflet, reproduced below.

Educational Leaflet for Mothers.

Upon the children of the present age depends largely the future of the world, physically and hygienically as in every other way. The mothers of these children have, or rather should have, a controlling influence over them; therefore, fundamentally speaking, the mothers of to-day control the future.

Tuberculosis, or consumption as it is more generally termed, being one of the greatest evils of the present, children should be taught to help in the elimination of this evil in the coming age.

Broadly speaking, all the work of the tuberculosis campaign is carried on along preventive lines. Under this head we divide our work into two classes: instruction and nursing. The former we might also divide into instruction to persons suffering with the disease, and to those that are not. It is probably under the latter heading that the mother can lend her aid most effectively.

Any child may contract tuberculosis if exposed to it, provided his system is in a run-down condition. The old idea that children inherit consumption from the parent has been completely overthrown. It is not a hereditary disease. In days gone by the consumptive was kept in a warm, badly ventilated room, surrounded doubtless by his family. His children were likewise coddled and kept as much as possible from the air, lest they too contract the inevitable cold such as their father has. Consequently they are in a run-down, unhealthy condition, well suited to harbor and nourish the germs which they breathe in, as their father breathes them out. In due course of time they likewise develop consumption, though years may elapse before any visible signs are evident. But this is not heredity.

The consumptive of to-day knows, or should know, that taken in the early stage the disease is curable. So let us take for our example the up-to-date consumptive. He does not keep himself and his family in an overheated, badly ventilated room. On the contrary, he has all the air available, and if possible lives in the open. He keeps his children away from him and insists upon their also having an abundance of fresh air. He is particular to keep from them all eating utensils and articles used by him, and his fear is, not that his children will necessarily have the disease, along a line of heredity, but lest in coming in contact with him or his sputum, which is filled with the tuberculosis germ, they may contract the disease; hence the children of the up-to-date consumptive grow steadily into strong, healthy men and women instead of the narrow-chested, thin, delicate consumptives that the children of the behind-the-age tuberculous parent developed into.

A mother can easily understand from the above illustration how much her influence, started in the right direction and under the banner, so to speak, of the International Crusade against Tuberculosis, will be of unquestionable value in overcoming the spread of the disease and the development of it, in the next generation.

This applies not only to a mother having some member of her family afflicted with the disease, but also to ones who have not; and for those coming under the latter class, I will suggest a few rules which will be of great usefulness to them:

1. Children should, in all seasons, sleep in well ventilated rooms (it not only promotes healthfulness, but also a quiet and restful sleep).

2. Do not coddle them; teach them to care for themselves as soon as possible and in every way possible.

3. Teach them to breathe properly. Deep chest breaths, through the nose and not the mouth. (Mouth breathing not only is injurious to the lungs and prevents their proper development, but is liable to cause throat and nose troubles.)

4. Encourage outdoor life, such as games and sports, also light garden work, if possible, when they are old enough.

5. Watch carefully the carriage of the child, being sure that chest is expanded, thus throwing shoulders back into proper position, and giving the lungs room for development and free action.

6. Give children plain, simple food, but plenty of it at regular hours. (Discourage eating between meals, it upsets the digestion.) Lack of proper digestion causes lack of nourishment, often the beginning of a consumptive tendency; in other words, the likelihood to contract the disease.

7. Have all children in bed at an early hour. Those who are kept up late (as 9 or 10 P. M.) make sickly adults. Insist upon regular hours of sleeping, as of eating.

These rules carried out, even in a fairly bad climate, generally result in healthy children, who, if they come in contact with disease are in a condition strong enough to resist the germs which cause it, and to literally throw them off from their system. From these children will grow a race of healthy men and women.

Mothers who have in their families some member afflicted with the disease, have, in a way, a more difficult course of training to carry on, and yet in another way not quite so difficult, as usually there is the oversight of a physician or nurse. However, the mother's aid to the physician is invaluable, and a few rules, easily applied, will perhaps help to carry out this aid systematically and with more assured success.

1. Arrange for patient to sleep alone in a well ventilated room. If possible, let him occupy some sheltered place out of doors.

2. Keep separate all eating utensils and articles used by patient. Boil them thoroughly after use.

3. Destroy all sputum by burning. Sanitary cups for this purpose can be bought at a drug-store or obtained free from a tuberculosis dispensary.

4. Keep healthy children away from afflicted member of family as much as possible, never allowing them to come in contact with patient, as kissing, shaking hands, or embracing them in any way.

5. Insist on patients carefully carrying out the prescribed form of treatment, which now, in most cases, is that carried on in the special sanatoriums for the disease.

If these rules are followed, a consumptive can live at home without being of any physical menace to his family. They apply to the rich as well as the poor. This being true, let the mother of the poor child take up the fight, as well as the mother of the rich, for rich and poor children alike will grow to be the men and women who are to form hoped for healthy future generations of the world.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and activities. It emphasizes that this is essential for ensuring transparency and accountability in the organization's operations.

2. The second part of the document outlines the various methods and tools used to collect and analyze data. It highlights the need for consistent and reliable data collection processes to support informed decision-making.

3. The third part of the document focuses on the role of technology in modern data management. It discusses how advanced software solutions can streamline data collection, storage, and analysis, thereby improving efficiency and accuracy.

4. The fourth part of the document addresses the challenges associated with data security and privacy. It provides guidelines for implementing robust security measures to protect sensitive information from unauthorized access and breaches.

5. The fifth part of the document explores the importance of data quality and integrity. It discusses strategies for identifying and correcting errors in data, ensuring that the information used for analysis is accurate and reliable.

6. The sixth part of the document discusses the ethical considerations surrounding data collection and use. It emphasizes the need for transparency in data practices and the importance of obtaining informed consent from individuals whose data is being collected.

7. The seventh part of the document provides a summary of the key findings and recommendations. It reiterates the importance of a comprehensive data management strategy that encompasses all aspects of data collection, storage, analysis, security, and ethics.

8. The final part of the document includes a list of references and a glossary of key terms. This section provides additional resources for further reading and clarification of the concepts discussed in the document.

Rules and Regulations.

I.

THE SIXTH INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS ON TUBERCULOSIS will be held in Washington, D. C., from September 21 to October 12, 1908.

THE GENERAL SESSIONS will be held on Monday, September 28, and Saturday, October 3, at 11.00 o'clock A. M., in the Assembly Hall in the New National Museum.

THE SECTION MEETINGS will be held in the NEW NATIONAL MUSEUM daily from September 28 to October 3.

THE EXHIBITION will be held in the New National Museum, and will be open daily from September 21 to October 12.

II.

MEMBERSHIP.

There are two classes of members:

ACTIVE MEMBERS pay a fee of five dollars, and they receive, besides the ordinary privileges of membership, the full set of published transactions without extra charge.

ASSOCIATE MEMBERS pay a fee of two dollars. They do not receive the published transactions or vote in the Congress. They receive the official badge, the printed matter distributed during the Congress and at the Exhibition; they share in the entertainments, attend the meetings, clinics, demonstrations, etc., and have the benefit of special transportation and hotel rates.

The Exhibition will be open to the general public, and so will the special evening lectures, all the lectures given in connection with the Exhibition, and the general sessions on Monday, September 28, and on Saturday, October 3.

III.

Each active member of the Congress will receive, without charge, one copy of the TRANSACTIONS of the Congress, which will be published in four or more volumes.

The price of the Transactions to NON-MEMBERS will be $15.00 per set, or $5.00 per single volume. The Transactions will be sold by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, 105 East Twenty-second Street, New York.

IV.

The Congress is divided into seven sections, as follows:

- Section I. Pathology and Bacteriology
- Section II. Clinical Study and Therapy of Tuberculosis—Sanatoriums, Hospitals, and Dispensaries.
- Section III. Surgery and Orthopedics.
- Section IV. Tuberculosis in Children—Etiology, Prevention, and Treatment.
- Section V. Hygienic, Social, Industrial, and Economic Aspects of Tuberculosis.
- Section VI. State and Municipal Control of Tuberculosis.
- Section VII. Tuberculosis in Animals and Its Relations to Man.

V.

The general sessions of the Congress are the opening meeting in Washington, on September 28, at 11.00 o'clock A. M., and the closing meeting, on October 3, at 11.00 o'clock A. M. The section meetings will be held daily in accordance with the announcements in the program.

VI.

The official languages of the Congress are English, French, German, and Spanish.

VII.

The Congress, under general supervision of the Committee on the International Congress, is conducted by a President, Vice-Presidents, a Secretary-General, and a Treasurer.

Each section is conducted by a President, Vice-Presidents, and one or more Secretaries.

At the general opening meeting honorary presidents of the Congress will be appointed upon motion of the Committee of the International Congress.

At the first session of each Section the proposals of the President of the Section will be acted upon and honorary presidents of the Section will be elected.

The responsible direction of each Section is held by the regularly appointed President, who, however, is privileged to invite the elected honorary presidents of the Section to take the chair.

VIII.

Each contributor of an address, paper, or report to the Congress, or to any of the Sections, was requested to present to the Secretary-General of the Congress a short summary before July 15, 1908.

The referees and co-referees participating in the discussion of a theme are each allowed not more than fifteen minutes.

The limit of time allowed for the reading of papers is not to exceed ten minutes.

Each speaker participating in the discussion of themes or papers is allowed five minutes.

Each participant in a discussion must write out his remarks and hand them to the Secretary of the Section before the close of the meeting, in order to secure their appearance in the transactions.

IX.

The Secretary of each Section is to record the minutes and transactions of the Section and furnish a report to the President of the Section, who is responsible for the presentation of the proceedings to the Secretary-General, including the papers and discussions of the Section.

X.

No resolutions relating to purely scientific questions are to be acted upon by the Sections or by the Congress. All resolutions presented to the Congress must be referred to a Committee on Resolutions to be appointed, on nomination of the Committee of the Congress, by the Congress at the opening session. This Committee shall report at the closing session of the Congress.

General Index.

The italic numerals refer to volumes and not to Sections.
 Volume I contains the proceedings of Section I and Section II.
 Volume II contains the proceedings of Section III and Section IV.
 Volume III contains the proceedings of Section V.
 Volume IV contains the proceedings of Section VI and Section VII, with the Joint Session of Sections I and VII.
 Volume V is the official volume.
 VI refers to the Supplementary volume or "Special Lectures."
